CITY ESCAPES UNSCATHED

Victoria escaped virtually unscathed from overnight snow, high winds, phone and power failures that hit other parts of Vancouver Island west of Sooke and north of the Malahat.

Between three and four inches of new snow was reported on the Malahat, creating the worst driving conditions of the season while highway maintenance crews plowed, salted and sanded the pavement.

But further north conditions became steadily worse late Tuesday and early this morning, some parts of Duncan getting a foot of snow and a total 11 inches reported at Cassidy airport just south of Nanaimo.

Meanwhile, Jordan River and Port Renfrew were without electric power and telephone connections to Port Renfrew were reported out by the RCMP at Sooke.

Carrier Destination: Mideast or Vietnam?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A powerful U.S. navy carrier fleet sailed toward the Indian Ocean today amid intense speculation as to its ultimate destination.

Rumblings persisted over State Secretary Henry Kissinger's interpreted warning of possible U.S. military action in the Persian Gulf. At the same time there is increasing concern here over the Vietnamese situation.

There were reports that senior defence officials pondered in recent days whether to delay the Enterprise's entrance into the Indian Ocean because its appearance there now might agitate Arab and other countries already aroused by Kissinger's veiled remarks about possible U.S. military action.

The six-ship study mission, led by the 85,000-ton nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise, was expected to enter the Indian Ocean within a few days after a voyage from Subic Bay in the Philippines.

Pentagon spokesman William Beecher said Tuesday the group is on an operational mission, but denied reports it is bound for waters off South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, waves of South Vietnamese planes attacked the Viet Cong headquarters at Loc Ninh and nearby Communist areas in retaliation for the loss of the capital of Phuoc Long province, the Saigon command announced today.

Fighter-bombers raided troop concentrations, anti-aircraft positions, ammunition dumps and supply centres in the Communist zones below the Cambodian border north of Saigon Tuesday night and today, and pilots reported ammunition explosions that sent smoke 3,000 feet into the air, a command spokesman said.

Saigon today also appealed to the United States to help turn back the Communist offensive.

"We need assistance, especially from the American people," acting Foreign Minister Ngo Khac Tinh said.

"The government and people of Vietnam call on the United States government to support this struggle."

Tinh, in comments at a special government briefing, accused Communist nations of "helping North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to invade South Vietnam."

"The Vietnamese people cannot sit here with our hands tied after fighting 20 years for the cause of freedom," he said.

The loss of Phuoc Long province north of Saigon, the biggest government defeat since U.S. troops pulled out of South Vietnam two years ago, extended Communist territory to within 35 miles of the capital.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials said privately the decision of Congress to slash Indochina military aid is partly to blame for the losses during the three-week-old Communist offensive.

In Washington, a White House spokesman said President Ford has been watching the stepped-up fighting with concern but would "live up to the law" barring U.S. military action in Indochina.

Military officers in Saigon said an estimated 2,000 troops and 40,000 civilians are missing in Phuoc Long. Many of the missing are believed to be dead or captured, they added.

CITY STRIKE TALKS VITAL

A critical mediation meeting was under way today in an attempt to avert a strike of 280 city outside workers.

Mediation officer Clark Gilmour was meeting representatives of City Hall and Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees. The union has served strike notice but cannot strike until Gilmour withdraws as mediator.

The municipal employers co-ordinating committee, meanwhile, met this morning and issued a public statement at noon which said in part:

"Some plain words must be said. Massive pay raises only speed inflation and are ultimately self-defeating. An economic recession is no time to seek major gains.

"In the past five years, salaries and benefits paid by our local governments have risen by more than 60 per cent while the Canadian consumer price index rose by 34 per cent. Current municipal salaries are well in advance of what is paid by many for comparable work."

The statement, couched in generalities, did not say if the employers are prepared to increase the rejected 15.75 per cent wage offer or what they will do if a single strike occurs.

Capital Regional District board chairman Jim Campbell declined to say whether or not the committee has decided to institute a general lockout in the event of a single strike.

"Well, we don't want to threaten anyone," he said after this morning's meeting. "We are prepared to respond to situations if we have to."

It was disclosed three weeks ago that such a move had been discussed by the committee, comprised of representatives of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Sidney, the regional district and Greater Victoria school board, but no decision had been made at that time.

Campbell, who said he was speaking personally, expressed disappointment at the decision by members of CUPE Local 388, representing 200 office and technical employees at City Hall, to reject a 15.75 per cent wage increase for this year and adjustments for lower-paid classifications as high as 34 per cent.

The union said the offer was not accepted because it did not contain a cost of living clause.

"I'm really concerned that it appears clear to me that the union hierarchy is directing individual locals," said Campbell, who acknowledged that Local 388 had recommended members accept the pay offer.

"In my personal view that is the problem. I think the advice is incredibly bad at this stage of the game and in these times."

Watergate Prisoners To Go Free

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Wednesday reduced the sentences of three major Watergate figures — John W. Dean III, Jeb Stuart Magruder and Herbert Kalmbach — to time already served and set the stage for their immediate release from prison.

Sirica, the judge who first broke open the scandal and presided over the recent Watergate cover-up trial, gave no reason for reducing the sentences of the three defendants.

Sirica said in his brief commutation orders that "on consideration of the defendant's motion for reduction of sentence . . . it is ordered that the unexecuted and or remaining portion of the sentence . . . is reduced to time already served."

A spokesman for the federal court said he believed the three men would be released immediately. The three were all in Ft. Holabird, Md., where they were taken to testify at the cover-up trial and had not been returned to prisone where they had been serving time.

President Ford had no prior knowledge of the release and would make no comment, a White House spokesman said.

Dean was former president Richard M. Nixon's chief accuser during the Watergate scandal; Magruder, a key figure in the Committee to Re-Elect the President, and Kalmbach was Nixon's personal attorney.

Sirica handed down three short orders amending his sentences in each of the three cases.

According to the orders, Dean filed his reduction of sentence motion Dec. 2, Magruder filed his on Sept. 18 and Kalmbach's was filed Oct. 9.

Gas Tax Wires Flying

Premier Barrett fired off another telegram to Ottawa Tuesday repeating his request for immediate talks on natural gas taxation despite a negative response earlier in the day.

At the same time Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told reporters B.C. has not ruled out the possibility of a court battle over resource taxation.

Acting Prime Minister C. M. Drury replied to Barrett's original request for a meeting with federal cabinet ministers, sent out Monday, by suggesting that any uncertainties concerning new federal taxation proposals "have been explained."

Barrett had said in his original telegram that "proposals, ambiguities and uncertainties at the present time are having serious impact upon natural gas development in B.C."

Drury replied that if there are urgent problems in drilling, the federal government would hope B.C. could make arrangements "as they have been made in Alberta."

Essentially Drury was suggesting that Barrett follow the lead of Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed in compensating gas companies for the increased taxes they would be forced to pay under the federal proposal.

In B.C. such a move would likely mean increasing the price the B.C. Petroleum Corporation pays to producers for gas since the BCPC now pays 22 cents per thousand cubic feet for the gas it buys and sells it for an average of 82 cents thus accruing a large profit.

By insisting that taxes be based on the fair market value of gas, Ottawa is saying it will tax companies on a value of gas higher than the 22 cents it is paid by the BCPC.

But Barrett said the B.C. government has no intention of backing down on its marketing scheme, worked out earlier in the year with federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, and he wired Drury back again seeking a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau, Macdonald and Finance Minister John Turner.

Barrett said drilling companies must know the outcome of the dispute within 10 days if this winter's drilling program, already delayed, is to be salvaged at all.

He suggested Jan. 10 as a possible day for talks in Ottawa.

RAID NETS IRA CHIEF

DUBLIN (UPI) — Police raided a small home near Dublin today and captured a top Irish Republican Army leader accused of masterminding the pre-Christmas bombing blitz in Britain. The IRA said the arrest endangered the fragile Northern Ireland cease-fire.

Police said Kevin Mallon, 37, second in command of the outlawed IRA, the most wanted man in all of Northern Ireland, Britain and Ireland, offered no resistance.

U.K. Pilots Rip Hijack Gamble

Times News Services

LONDON — The British Airline Pilots' Association today condemned the drawn-out negotiations and fake flight to France used to thwart Britain's first internal hijack as a dangerous gamble with the lives of crew members.

The nine-hour drama ended Tuesday night with the Capture at Stansted, 34 miles northeast of London, of the hijacker who used a toy pistol and a dummy grenade to take over a BAC111 jet with its five crew members, extort $235,000 and demand a flight to France.

The only casualty was a steward who was bitten by a police dog.

The hijacker was to appear in court today. Police did not announce his identity but said he was an unemployed 27-year-old native of Iran living in England.

It was the first hijacking ever of a domestic British flight. The man commandeered the British Airways BAC111 as it was preparing to land at Heathrow Airport here after a flight from Manchester.

He held stewardess Barbara Brindley at gunpoint and demanded: "Tell the captain I would like to go to Paris. I have nothing to live for and we must go there."

Police said later the gun was a realistic-looking toy and the canister contained no bomb.

When the plane landed at Heathrow, the hijacker allowed the 46 passengers to get off and demanded the money and a parachute. Troops and police ringed the plane.

The hijacker held the crew for seven hours while the pilot, seemingly angry, tried to talk security officials in the control tower into producing the ransom. He said the man was "obviously deranged" and was threatening to shoot the crew and blow up the plane.

Finally, officials handed over a parachute and the ransom.

But French authorities refused to allow the plane to land in France. Security chiefs decided to have it fly over England for more than an hour, then land at Stansted, an airport for charter craft north of London, where they would try to make the hijacker believe he was in France.

Two plane loads of troops and police were rushed to Stansted, and all signs and billboards there were covered, but the ruse did not work.

Police said the hijacker realized he was not in France and demanded a car to take him to Dover.

A police dog handler grabbed the hijacker a few yards from the plane, and in the melee the handler's dog bit Bond. His wound was minor.

NEWS BRIEFS

First Trains Move Since Strike End

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first freight trains to move on B.C. Railway tracks since a strike by shopcraft workers began six weeks ago were in operation Tuesday. Two northbound trains, one out of North Vancouver and one out of Prince George, started moving shortly after a new nine-month contract between shopcraft workers and the railway was signed.

Gold Price Up

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold rose on all European bullion markets today on renewed demand from the Middle East as well as Europeans.

MD Protest Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. government salaried doctors Tuesday shelved plans to disrupt services as a protest against the government's refusal to recognize the B.C. Medical Association as their formal bargaining agent.

Fare Hike Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC) has launched legal efforts to halt proposed rail passenger fare increases to take effect Jan. 15.

USC Boxcar Still Not Full

People in Great Victoria have contributed $20,000 to the local Unitarian Services Committee campaign — and the goal of a boxcar-load of milk for children in Bangladesh is almost met.

Christmas has passed. But gifts are still in fashion. Hunger in Bangladesh hasn't passed with the holiday season.

It will cost $22,785 to buy, insure and ship the 36,000-pound carload of powdered milk. That's the target Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the USC, hoped for when she launched the Greater Victoria icampaign six weeks ago.

It was optimistic. The most successful previous annual campaign produced $16,641.83 in 1971.

But it was truly needed, she said.

Just $2,800 to go.

What sort of people have brought the campaign so close to success? Beth, Jennifer and Cathy sent their $2 with a note explaining they collected it Christmas carolling.

One family sent $10 with word they had decided to contribute instead of going out to dinner.

Many people said they were giving to the USC in place of sending Christmas cards.

The one question remaining? Will the rest of us sit around, counting on the other person to get that boxcar rolling?

Contributions to the Unitarian Services Committee can be mailed in care of the Vic-

6,600 Oilmen Out

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (UPI) — An estimated 6,600 Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union members defied their national leaders and struck Gulf and Texaco oil refineries at one minute past midnight today, setting up picket lines and shutting down the sprawling facilities.

"We are going on the old union philosophy of no contract, no work," said Floyd Forse, chairman of the Texaco main plant group, OCAW local 4-23.

The walkout came despite announcement by OCAW president A. F. Grospiron in Denver that negotiations with the petroleum industry would continue today. Contracts expired at midnight Tuesday, but the union instructed its 60,000 members at oil refineries across the nation to remain on their jobs.

SEARCH LAUNCHED FOR MISSING MAN

A full-scale search on Salt Spring Island was launched by the RCMP today for a man who apparently wandered, naked, into the bushland Tuesday afternoon.

An RCMP spokesman said two police dogs were called in and an aerial search carried out by the RCMP helicopter, based at Pat Bay airport.

He said the man, known only as Joe, lived in the Ganges area, having no fixed address, wandering from place to place.

He is believed to be 22.

He left the home of a friend, Glen McGee, about 2:30 p.m., McGee following him about half an hour later.

Customs Probed Gift to Margaret

OTTAWA (UPI) — A scrape with the RCMP and Customs officials has convinced Prime Minister Trudeau that he and his family have to begin looking gift horses in the mouth.

Nudged by a recent incident in which Customs and police officials investigated a $3,000 gift of photographic equipment from King Hussein of Jordan to Trudeau's wife Margaret, the prime minister has begun preparing guidelines on gift acceptance which may be made public by March, a spokesman for his office said.

During Hussein's visit to Canada last September, Mrs. Trudeau told him she was studying photography. When he learned she did not have her own equipment, he promised to give her a camera.

During an October trip with Trudeau to Brussels, a special courier from Hussein delivered the equipment to Mrs. Trudeau.

It subsequently entered Canada twice without import duty being paid, triggering the investigation, spokesmen said.

The equipment brought from Brussels by Mrs. Trudeau is impressive: a Nikon F2 single lens reflex with built-in light meter; a motor drive; a 28mm wide-angle lens; a normal lens; an 80-200mm zoom; a Braun vario-computer auto-flash; a full series of filters and a camera bag itself worth about $300. At Canadian prices, the equipment would cost slightly more than $3,000.

"The king was here in September . . . the king offered Mrs. Trudeau a camera, which was delivered in Brussels by a representative of the king," a spokesman for the Prime Minister's office said.

Mrs. Trudeau displayed the equipment to news photographers aboard the government plane bringing the official party back from Europe, he added.

After two days in Canada, he said, Mrs. Trudeau left for Japan, carrying the new equipment. Reports from Japan that she was using new equipment alerted the Customs bureau and the RCMP.

On her return in November the prime minister's office was approached by both agencies and asked to explain how the equipment got into Canada.

E-N FREIGHT ROLLS AFTER 2-DAY HALT

The Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway passenger and freight service is expected to resume Thursday after a two-day halt in operations caused by a freight car derailment.

A spokesman for CP Rail, which operates the E & N service between Victoria and Courtenay, said today the track should be cleared by late today.

Clean-up crews have been working around the clock, he said, after five southbound freight cars and a caboose left the tracks early Tuesday morning about 13 miles north of Victoria.

He said the cars were derailed mid-point between Goldstream and the Malahat in a rock cut and the location hampered quick clean-up.

Cause of the derailment is still under investigation.

The $1,000 Pinch

TORONTO (CP) — Pinching a girl on the buttocks cost Orval J. Reid, 19, of Guelph, Ont., $1,000 Tuesday.

Reid was convicted in provincial court of indecent assault for following the gril as she got on and off a subway train, whispering obscenities at her and pinching her.

B.C. Seeks Solutions

tive alternatives" to the fixed positions now being presented by both sides.

The premier refused to elaborate on those alternatives but called "very interesting" a newspaper report that the Canadian Petroleum Association believes the true value of natural gas is actually in the region of $1.50 per thousand cubic feet.

Presumably, if B.C. agreed to increase its export price of gas it would also agree to increase the price paid to producers and allow Ottawa the additional share of taxes it is seeking.

Meanwhile Attorney-General Macdonald repeated Tuesday that the dispute is a consistitutional one and while B.C. hopes to avoid a court battle, that possibility has not been ruled out.

While it is a "grave constitutional issue," he said, it involves the distribution of income in Canada and is therefore a social and political question more than a legalistic question.

"We hope it wouldn't go to court but we can't rule it out," said Macdonald.

Tory leader Scott Wallace has called on Premier Barrett to "act as a Canadian first" and find a compromise solution in the federal-provincial battle over natural gas taxation.

Barrett should follow the lead of Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed in softening the blow to oil companies by paying them a higher price for natural gas through the B.C. Petroleum Corporation.

"From a purely constitutional point of view," said Wallace, both the federal and provincial governments appear to be within their rights.

But if both governments refuse to give in, gas companies will be paying federal corporation taxes based on a cost of gas higher than the BCPC pays them and therefore they will be "caught in the middle of a serious financial squeeze," said Wallace.

If Barrett displayed the same spirit of compromise shown by Lougheed and raised the price of gas paid by the BCPC, said Wallace, exploration for new gas sources would proceed.

Killer Dogs Strike Again

STORM PASSED

Victoria, which had been expecting up to three inches of snow, got only a trace of slush, but Gonzales weather station reported winds rising to 42 from west southwest gusting to 64 by 6:30 a.m.

Less than a quarter inch of precipitation was recorded in Victoria, with three quarters Victoria, with three quarters

At 11 a.m. power was still out on a stretch of the West Coast Road between Sooke and Jordan River, and at Port Renfrew B.C. Hydro said.

Otherwise only metchosin, Albert Head and William Head areas had power failures in the Capital Region, for less than two hours early this morning.

Chemainus and Ladysmith were without power from about 9:30 p.m. for up to four hours in Ladysmith, and today the Lake Cowichan transmission line was still down due to about 24 inches of snow.

Highway traffic north of Duncan was slowed or halted as far as Campbell River in the north and Port Alberni to the west.

More snow was forecast up-island today and schools in Nanaimo area were closed.

Hydro officials in Parksville and Qualicum Beach said power outages were extensive, but predicted restoration of service today.

Western Washington suffered similar problems as winds gusting to more than 50 miles an hour felled trees and downed power lines, closing highways in the Stevens and Snoqualmie Passes through the Cascade Mountains.

In Oregon, gale force winds left widespread damage along the coast and in the Willamette Valley, while in Salem, three persons were injured when a tree was blown over on a mobile home.

The Allan Littler children went out early Saturday morning to do the chores on the family's 14-acre farm in Happy Valley and returned in tears to report their small flock of sheep had been killed by dogs.

For the Littlers the tragedy was a re-run of an event two years ago "to the day" when their first flock was wiped out by dogs.

"We were just trying to build our little flock up," Mrs. Littler said today. "They killed three pregnant ewes and one registered ram and left us nothing."

The animals were found in the creek bed by her 13-year-old son Tom, and for the family it was the last straw.

"It was the same time two years ago, a Saturday, when dogs killed our first flock — five ewes, all about to lamb. They left only one survivor which lambed later."

Mrs. Littler said precautionary steps had been taken in the meantime and the sheep had been enclosed in a small pasture — "But somehow the dogs got in.

"We thought we had adequate fencing, but obviously it wasn't dog-proof enough."

Starting another flock is "something the family will have to consider," she said. "But I doubt whether we will, mainly because of the children — it's an emotional thing for them when the sheep are killed."

Dale Carnegie, domestic animal protection officer for the district said the dogs came about 5 a.m. Saturday "did their business and were gone."

"Unless people take responsibility for their dogs, the killing will increase," he said.

The kills are most prevalent at lambing time, Carnegie said, adding "unless people realize that their dog, any dog, is looked after, it can become a killer, it will get worse."

The new Domestic Animal Protection Act allows for fines to be levied against owners of dogs which kill sheep ranging from $15 to $500 and fines for non-purchase of licences run from $50 to $500.

But it isn't the fines that prompt the Littlers to keep their own two dogs penned up when not under supervision — it has more to do with the thought of their sheep.

Erawan 'Guilty'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British freighter Erawan was found wholly to blame Tuesday for a collision which occurred with the Japanese freighter Sun Diamond in the outer reaches of Vancouver harbor Sept. 25, 1973.

Judgment was delivered by Mr. Justice Frank Collier of the federal court of Canada on a series of suits and cross-suits brought by the owners of the ships involved.

The major depression which crossed Vancouver Island Tuesday evening was crossing central B.C. this morning. While the largest amounts of snow have already fallen most areas will continue to receive a few snowshowers and gusty winds. Along coastal areas the showers will be mixed rain and snow.

As this disturbance moves into Alberta this evening the Arctic air which stalled near Prince George will resume its southward trek later today. However it is not expected to go beyond the coastal ranges. Overnight temperatures in the southern and central interior are expected to be colder tonight due to Arctic air.

DOMINION PUBLIC WEATHER OFFICE 10 A.M. FORECASTS
Valid Until Midnight

Greater Victoria: Today and Thursday, cloudy with showers mixed rain and snow. Windy at times. Highs both days 35 to 40. Lows tonight near 30.

North and West Vancouver Island: Today and Thursday, cloudy with frequent snowshowers at times mixed with rain in coastal areas. Brisk northerly winds. Highs 35 to 40. Lows tonight 30 to 35.

Greater Vancouver, Lower Mainland, East Vancouver Island: Today and Thursday, mainly cloudy with snowshowers except mixed rain and snow along coastal areas. Windy at times. Highs both days mid-thirties. Lows tonight near 30.

Hero's Star to City Man

A Victoria man who drowned last summer while attempting a helicopter rescue of a fisherman adrift in Lake Superior has been awarded the Star of Courage.

Kari Joronen, 29, son of Mr. and Mrs. Antti Joronen, 740 Burdett, died during the rescue attempt when the helicopter overturned and dropped into the Lake.

JORONEN
. . . rescue try.

He was with pilot Victor Solomatenko, of Toronto, when he tried to rescue Aime Breton by lowering a rope. Breton failed to grab the rope and Joronen climbed out of the helicopter cabin and stood outside while the pilot steered the aircraft closer to the water. At that point the helicopter overturned and dropped into the Lake.

Joronen and Breton were lost, but the pilot, who has also been awarded Canada's second highest decoration for bravery, managed to escape.

Born in Finland, Joronen moved to Victoria with his family about 20 years ago. He graduated from Victoria High School, and started flying with the Kinsmen Air Cadet Corps and later took flying lessons in Sudbury, Ontario.

He was with White River Air Service in Wawa, Ont., at the time of his death.

In addition to being an accomplished skier and fisherman he had worked as a diver and quartermaster on one trip to Alaska with the icebreaker Camsell.

Mrs. Antti Joronen, expressed gratitude for the honor today.

Charges Pending Over Flip-Tops

Charges will be laid against several stores in B.C. for violation of the new ban on the sale of carbonated drinks in flip-top cans, a government official said Monday.

A spokesman from the water resources branch said the government has checked out a number of stores and is consulting with its lawyers on charges.

Maximum penalty for sale of flip-top cans is a fine of up to $500.

The new regulations under the Litter Act which came into effect Jan. 1 prohibit cans of beer, ale or carbonated beverages or drinks which have detachable flip tops.

The detachable tops are considered a safety hazard as well as a litter problem.

But the new regulations do not cover flip-top cans containing drinks with more than 85 per cent pure fruit juice or cans containing puddings or other desserts.

Levi Probes UIC On Benefits Stall

Human Resources Minister Norm Levi said today he is holding discussions with the Unemployment Insurance Commission to determine how many people are receiving welfare because of delayed UIC benefits.

Levi said he has no idea how many people are on the social assistance rolls because of UIC delays or how much money the province is paying out to such people.

A provincial civil servant had charged Tuesday, that the UIC is robbing the provincial treasury by arbitrarily withholding unemployment benefits and forcing the temporarily jobless onto welfare rolls.

Walter Muller, a job-finder for welfare recipients in Vancouver and Social credit candidate in the last federal election, estimated that about 20 per cent or $24 million of B.C.'s welfare payments went to people whose unemployment insurance benefits had been delayed or "callously" cut off.

"The problem is the tremendous discrepancy in the waiting period for UIC benefits," said Levi. "It's supposed to be two weeks, but we have reports that some people are waiting, six, eight or even nine weeks."

The human resources department has a responsibility to help those in need, he said, so if someone comes into a welfare office saying they have no money and are waiting for UIC benefits, they are eligible for social assistance.

In previous years a complicated repayment process was established between the federal and provincial governments to refund the provinces for money extended to UIC recipients, said Levi, but the process was "so bureaucratic and so expensive the provinces just gave up."

Levi said talks with UIC officials will continue in an effort to determine what percentage of people wait more than two weeks for UIC benefits and to try to tighten up that waiting period to ease the burden on provincial coffers.

Amalgamation Makes Sense

Amalgamation of the four core municipalities into one is a hardy perennial in Victoria area politics. This much-discussed proposal has been kicked around so long by municipal councils, mayors, municipal affairs ministers and capital regional boards — but never acted upon — that it's become rather shop-worn and tattered around the edges.

It's a pity, because the scheme makes just as much common sense now as ever. With the problems of municipalities multiplying in a geometric progression, the present set-up looks more and more old-fashioned all the time.

Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and Central Saanich operate like so many little feudal city-states, each with its own police and fire department, planning staff, purchasing commission, and so on and on. What waste through duplication there must be!

In 1971, then municipal affairs minister Dan Campbell suggested the four core municipalities could save $500,000 a year alone in salaries paid to selected municipal officials at upper levels. The economies of scale are impressive. Campbell said the per capita costs of providing municipal services in the Greater Victoria area were far out of line when compared with a municipality like Burnaby, which is comparable in size and population.

For example, why should it have cost Burnaby $5.68 per head for waste removal while Victoria paid $8.91? Why did the cost of public works come out to $7.86 per capita in Burnaby, while the bill was $15.30 in Saanich? If taxpayers need convincing about the advantages of amalgamation, the figures speak for themselves.

And if they're worried about losing their identity in a large metropolitan municipality, it should be simple enough to ensure permanent representation on the new council with a ward system, such as newly-amalgamated municipalities like Kelowna, Nanaimo, Prince George and Kamloops have adopted.

The present municipal boundaries in the Victoria area may have made sense years ago, but they are artificial now — the region is a continuous urban region from Dallas Road to Gordon Head, Willows Beach to Esquimalt harbor.

Once upon a time Oak Bay was a residential hideaway, Saanich was mainly farmland, Victoria a quiet community of single-family dwellings — but no longer. They are all heavily inter-dependent, as traffic and shopping patterns show at a glance.

Premier Barrett has announced a provincial study of merger in the suburbs east of Vancouver which comprise his riding in the legislature. Might we suggest the government do the same in the province's capital?

BCR Employees Sprint Ahead

When it comes to a strike in a provincial government operation the Barrett administration often seems to be at sixes and sevens. It almost gives the impression of sitting on its hands until the public furore dies down and then settling at almost any price. First it was the 1973 ferry strike in which Transport Minister Strachan said workers were holding a gun to the government's head. Twice shy, the government went on to settle for increases between 12 and 21 per cent in 1974. Now the six-week British Columbia Railway strike has resulted in a 22 per cent increase over nine months for shop craft workers.

In fairness it should be said the government acted quickly and decisively when life and limb were at stake in the lower mainland firefighters strike last summer. But the BCR contract of less than one year resulting in increases of $1.29 per hour on the tradesmen's rate of $5.80 per hour, plus $110 per man, retroactive until Oct. 31, is not a healthy portent for the settlements the government is currently negotiating with the 20,000-plus B.C. Government Employees Union. The government insists on keeping individual settlements secret until all the contracts have been negotiated, ostensibly to keep one settlement from being used as a bargaining tool in another. In essence it is more of political ploy than a bargaining ploy, assuming BCGEU executives talk to one another.

Meanwhile, Victoria and numerous other B.C. municipalities are enmeshed in hard bargaining with their own employees, trying to keep costs down in order to forgo large municipal tax hikes. The example from the provincial government is not reassuring. Negotiation, not confrontation, was the catch phrase of the NDP government when it came to power in 1972, although to date real negotiation has been a lacklustre affair and confrontations have been frequent.

As prices show no signs of slowing down unions cannot be blamed for attempting to keep ahead of inflation. But a 22 per cent increase over nine months is not keeping up, it is sprinting ahead. Because of secrecy surrounding provincial civil servant wage negotiations, not to mention the government penchant for largesse, the public will eventually receive the bill in the form of a fait accompli. A fait accompli, it might be said, which could set new inflationary standards for future wage settlements throughout the province. Without figures it is impossible to criticize the government, but the BCR increases are enough to make the public uneasy about future revelations.

RICHARD GWYN

Public Is Ahead of Politicians

OTTAWA — "There go my followers," the late Indian leader Mahatma Ghandi commented as a crowd streamed past his house. "I must hurry to catch up with them."

Frequently, the public is ahead of its political leaders. Governments today are so elephantine and so much effort is needed just to keep the machinery running that those in charge have no time or energy left to stand back and think about where they should be going.

This is the case in Canada. Nation and society are on the turn. The public, I believe, recognizes this by instinct and commonsense. The politicians are still tinkering with their machinery.

More Optimistic

Two bits of evidence to support, or to explain at least, my thesis:

First, when you talk to people about the economic dangers ahead their comments are quite schizophrenic. They are worried, yet, also they seem half-pleased at the prospect that endless economic growth may cease. Only half-articulated there is a strong underground sentiment against too much affluence, too much technology, too much complexity and a strong hankering for a more disciplined, simpler and more human social order. Call it puritanism re-born if you will, but many people, I am convinced, are ready to accept greater sacrifices than the politicians yet have dared think of asking from them.

Second, and again in casual conversations, people are far more optimistic than are the experts. Time and again they refer to the fact that Canada, for all our problems of inflation and of recession, is in better health than almost any other country. Time and again you realize that Canada's traditional inferiority complex has vanished totally and indeed is close to being replaced by an unattractive, self-congratulatory chauvanism.

If the politicians just would hurry up they would find that Canadians are ready to do something utterly un-Canadian — to debate fundamental questions about the kind of country we want to live in, its size, shape and texture, where it should be going and what it should be doing in the world.

JEAN MARCHAND
. . . to lose his job

That's my main New Year's forecast: a swelling demand for leadership and for challenge from a Canada suddenly turned cocky. I don't predict that the politicians will recognize this.

My guesses for 1974, made a year ago, didn't turn out too badly. My forecasts for 1975, some general, some particular enough that I can be charged as guilty if they don't happen, are:

- Foreign policy will become a subject of public debate for the first time in years. We cannot evade the moral responsibilities forced upon us by the world food crisis nor, equally, from the political consquences of our strength as an "agri-power," one of only four or five in the world.
- The debate about Canada's future size and shape will be touched off by the green paper on immigration to be published next month. The immediate political issue is the color of immigrants. The basic issue involves a debate between "perpetual growth" versus "a stable society" and it affects almost every aspect of our lives — resource consumption, land use and rationing, urban congestion, population growth and distribution, conservation and pollution.

Native Rights

- Our chief economic challenge will be an incomes policy — how to decide how much each group in society, from pensioners to unions to corporations, should get from an economic pie that almost has ceased to grow. Our present system simply has ceased to work. It produces endless strikes on the one hand and pay raises as unjustifiable as the 70 per cent for judges on the other hand. Finance Minister Turner's attempt to jawbone "restraint" already is dead. The only solution left, though we are still psychologically a long way from it, is a national incomes policy implemented by government.
- A prime social issue will be native rights. The financial consequences of native land claims haven't yet sunk in. Once they do, a white back-lash is likely. The basic issue will be conscience versus pocket-book.

Some specific forecasts. A cabinet shuffle in May or June. Watch for Transport Minister Jean Marchand and Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner to lose their posts, for Herb Gray who was dropped last summer to come back in and for British Columbia MP Iona Campagnolo to become the second woman minister.

The Conservative leadership convention will be held this fall. Watch for a strong, dark-horse performance by Toronto MP Sinclair Stevens, just named the party's financial critic.

TOM WICKER

CIA Will Get Whitewash Job

NEW YORK — The "blue ribbon" commission appointed by President Ford to protect the public against domestic spying by the CIA looks suspiciously like a goat set to guard a cabbage patch. Having the CIA investigated by such a group is like having the Mafia audited by its own accountants.

Not that the "blue ribbon" is likely to indulge in unadulterated whitewash. Ford's spokesman concedes that enough CIA abuses have been alleged to warrant investigation. So Ford's commission can hardly ignore these charges, and may even sustain some of them. The question is whether this group can be expected to go any further — whether it will really dig into the agency's operations and history, examine its control and direction, question even the need for its existence in the same form and with the same powers and immunities it had in the darkest days of the cold war a quarter-century ago.

No Minorities

It can be confidently predicted that this commission, instead, will get lavish CIA co-operation, obtain its information mostly through that co-operation, and ultimately publish a report that rebukes unnamed officials for "lack of judgment" or for being "overzealous" in protecting national security. A few obvious recommendations for tighter supervision may be thrown in, and the commission will surely express confidence in the CIA's future behavior and reaffirm the vital necessity for the agency's indispensable services.

This prospect is suggested, first, by the commission's origins. It is the brainchild of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who has been the chairman of the Forty Committee, the high-level body that gives the agency its policy direction and control. Thus Kissinger himself might conceivably be damaged by further revelations of agency abuses.

The commission apparently was discussed in advance with those to be investigated, William E. Colby, the CIA directors, and Richard Helms, who was director when domestic spying is alleged to have been at its peak. Kissinger already has stated that he sees no reason to relieve Helms of his post as ambassador to Iran. Vice-President Rockefeller, who is Kissinger's close friend, patron and one-time boss, was proposed for the chairmanship by Kissinger — who obviously does not intend to lose control of the inquiry or let it conflict too sharply with his personal or foreign policy interests.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER
. . . cold warrior

Another thing wrong with the commission is Rockefeller. Not only is he closely associated with Kissinger; all during the Nixon administration, he also was a member of the foreign intelligence advisory board, which is charged with such civilian review of CIA activities as there is. He, too, could be damaged if it is now disclosed that in those years he was either duped by the CIA or acquiesced in its improper activities.

More than that, however, Rockefeller has been throughout his public career a renowned cold warrior, a persistent advocate of strong military policies against Communist expansion, a critic of peaceful co-existence, one who considered nuclear war survivable and therefore thinkable — a hard-liner who is not likely to be overly critical of CIA efforts to "protect the national security," even if they were "overzealous." A chairman more in sympathy with the CIA's world view, or with the "vital necessity" for its operations could hardly be found.

Still a third problem is the membership, which appears thoroughly establishmentarian and conventional. The only demonstrated departure from accepted views in this group is rightist and militarist, in the persons of Ronald Reagan and General Lyman Lemnitzer. George Meany's secretary-treasurer, Lane Kirkland, and Douglas Dillon, a pillar of the foreign policy establishment, are not likely to dig further into CIA "national security" operations than they have to.

Henry's Brainchild

There is no strong critic of foreign policy or of the defence and intelligence establishments, no active civil libertarian, not even a revisionist academic to leaven the commission's deliberations with skepticism or outrage. Only Erwin Griswold, who once fought Joe McCarthy, and John T. Connor and Edgar Shannon, both of whom opposed the invasion of Cambodia, offer hope that an articulate minority might at least challenge the CIA's protestations and evasions.

This commission, moreover, includes no women and no minorities, both of whom warrant representation as part of the public, and either of which might have contributed valuable non-establishment perspective.

Windy Nothings

Mr. Trudeau is quoted in the press as follows:

"The economic outlook is serious but not desperate.

"The worst will not necessarily happen.

"The challenge for the government is to walk the fine line between too little and too much.

"An error could bring on recession while miscalculation could worsen the inflation rate.

"To maintain the balance Finance Minister Turner urged spending restraint in his November budget."

That's all, dear reader. I doubt if I have ever heard more windy nothings packed into one speech or a worst example of clacking tonsils by one of our politicians. — Garnett Weston, 4021 Shelbourne Street.

Political Football

It is debatable whether the 63 Jordan River miners who were laid off earlier this month, lost their jobs because of Bill 31 or a hundred other reasons.

These men have received the cold shoulder from their parent body, and were ignored while others out of work received $100 Christmas bonuses. The government said these men could use liens on the assets of that mine as collateral for bank loans so the miners could obtain finances immediately. The bankers say a person can get a loan provided he is known to the banker, has collateral, pays interest on his loan, but since he has not a job or may be moved elsewhere, it is not a risk the banks are going to take. The wages owing these men are $51,371.82 minus holiday pay. Under the bill of human rights these men are entitled to their wages and, to be more technical, the interest on that money too.

It is time the minister of mines and the minister of labor quit tossing the football and left it to the attorney-general. Alex Macdonald can have a look into the mining industry, its owners, its aliases, its shareholders and its operations. Since the NDP government has sensitive concern for the people of British Columbia, then let them not tackle their foes at the expense and to the detriment of the people. But let the NDP grow wiser as they grow older and grow better as they grow wiser.—Anne V. Sherbrook, 1919 Davie Street.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of January 8, 1915

ST. DIE, France—A brilliant exploit by French alpine troops, who charged on skis down the snow-covered mountain slopes at Bonhomme, a post on the Alsatian frontier, forced the Germans to retire on Orbey, five miles down the valley of the river Weiss toward Colmar. The Germans held the railroad from St. Marie to St. Croix, menacing St. Die, where the French heavy artillery opened fire Jan. 3. This led the Germans to expect an attack from that direction. At the same time, the alpine troops, leading the way for the French infantry, advanced on the German custom house at Diedelshausen, near Bonhomme.

Cockpit Privacy: Is It Warranted?

By ROBERT NIELSEN
Toronto Star

Next time you board an airliner, how can you be sure the pilot and co-pilot won't fly it like careless fools?

The answer — although you'll be statistically safer than in your car — is that you can't be sure. And the pilot's union isn't about to give you a guarantee.

Newspapers recently carried a hair-raising story of casualness, inattention and negligence in the cockpit of a DC-9 just before it crashed near Charlotte, N.C., killing 71 people.

Here's what the cockpit tape recorder revealed later about the conversation:

The pilot and co-pilot were gabbing away like two guys waiting in a barber shop — about school desegregation, about the energy crisis, about the Nixon pardon — but hardly at all about the exacting task at hand, which was to land the aircraft in a dense fog.

During descent they failed to perform a basic duty, the calling out of altitude at prescribed intervals. They did have some businesslike discussion about going on down, and after getting their "clear to land" message from the airport tower, they had time for some notable last words.

"Yeah, we're all ready."

"All we have to do is find the airport."

"Yeah."

The next sound on the recorder was the first impact of the crash, at a point where the aircraft should still have been nearly 1,000 feet in the air.

The Airline Pilots Association of the United States is as sore as a gumboil — not at the conduct of the DC-9's two officers, but at its being spread on the public record.

"We felt it's an invasion of personal rights to take what a man says on the flight deck and publish it," says Lou Davis, public relations director of the association. "It can also prejudice the trial of an officer who survives (as one did at Charlotte), because the recorder gives only the audible aspect of an accident. It doesn't tell what they're doing manually; they can run cockpit checks without talking, just by pointing."

At the insistence of the pilots' association in both the U.S. and Canada, the cockpit recorder must be used only as an investigative tool after an accident — not to monitor air crews to discover whether they're following laid-down procedures.

To ensure this restriction, the recorder is fixed to erase the tape every half-hour. So there is no record of cockpit voices at all if the flight ends safely — as, of course, more than 99.9 per cent of them do.

How about using the recorder as a performance monitor? Wouldn't this guard against the kind of casualness that preceded the Charlotte disaster?

'Invasion of Privacy'

To Davis and to Capt. John Wright, president of the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association, that would be adding Big Brother to watch over what they claim is already the most carefully observed, inspected and physically examined position in the world.

They don't flatly deny that it might enhance safety, but they see it as an "invasion of privacy," open to abuses. "When management are involved in inspecting things, their motives aren't always objective," says Davis. "They could be looking for a reason to fire a guy."

The two big carriers in this country, Air Canada and CP Air, and the U.S. Eastern Airline, whose DC-9 crashed at Charlotte, are well aware of pilot touchiness about the recorders. They are not pressing to extend their use to performance monitoring.

Yet the carelessness at Charlotte, though exceptional, evidently was not unique. The U.S. Federal Aviation Administration contends that the non-precision approach used there, and commonly used at smaller airports, is perfectly safe—given normal conditions and proper crew discipline. Then it adds this chilling comment: "Many approaches are being flown in a hit-or-miss fashion."

Is the situation better in Canada? Without knocking the Yanks, Air Canada, CP Air and the civil aviation branch of the transport ministry all imply that it is.

"We believe we have a good appreciation of the cockpit standards and professionalism of the pilots, and at present we don't think there's a requirement for an electronic monitoring system," says Walter McLeish, director-general of the civil aviation branch.

"The potential is there in the future, but it would be premature to use performance monitoring today unless we took all appropriate safeguards to make sure it was used only for safety purposes."

McLeish does not deny "theoretical advantages" in using the cockpit recorder to check performance.

The airlines are confident that rigorous training and retraining, plus frequent inflight inspections, are holding their pilots to correct procedures.

And yet there was the case at Malton in 1970 where a variation from prescribed landing procedure, worked out privately by pilot and co-pilot, led to premature deployment of a ground air-braking device and the loss of 109 lives.

Compensated for Hardships

The pilots' spokesmen have invoked the magic phrase "civil rights" to oppose performance monitoring by the cockpit recorder. That may be enough to bring the civil liberties associations rushing to their side — but not this occasional air traveller.

For the following reasons:

● The pilot's job is to get passengers there safely, and that should take absolute precedence over his on-the-job civil rights. At $35,000 to $90,000 year, depending on the type of aircraft, for a maximum of 75 hours' flying a month, he is well compensated for any curtailment in flight of his normal, on-the-ground liberties.

● The invasion of privacy could be held to a minimum by saving cockpit tapes only of the critical take-off and landing periods; by monitoring them on a spot-check, rather than a total, basis; and by legally requiring the monitor to keep the contents secret unless errors or negligence were discovered, in which case only the appropriate transport ministry and airline officials would be informed.

That would leave pilots free, for the greater part of most flights, to tell jokes, discuss politics, or make cracks about their bosses.

Fair enough.

Rednecks Against the Redskins?

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — What follows after this paragraph is unusual. It is the reply of George Manuel, president of the National Indian Brotherhood, to a recent column of mine. While I can well contest some of its criticisms my column roused such concern and anger among Indians that it is only fair to give a spokesman for them a full run at rebuttal:

Douglas Fisher has posed the question: "Shouldn't we all, including the Indians, consider that all of us within the bounds of this country have no more and no less than any other Canadians as a principle of citizenship and as a basic right?" He also states: "Special rights (for Indians) for ever and ever is divisive."

He further argues: "We are enshrining in perpetuity a unique kind of citizenship based on (Indian) blood," and that "something of an aristocratic principle (is) at work." He insinuates but never states flat-out this should not be. Perhaps he refrains from this flat-out statement because he knows full well there already is an aristocracy in Canada — but it is certainly not Indian; it is English-French, or French-English.

Indians have never been aristocrats in this continent. Indians have long been and continue to be a down-trodden minority. Only since the 1940s have we even been considered human.

To justify taking over our land the Europeans portrayed us as savages.

Since we savages have learned to use the Europeans' own social institutions to maintain our aboriginal rights, and to insist the Europeans adhere to their own moral preachments in treatment of us, we find it a bitter irony the Europeans now wish to elevate us from being savages to being aristocrats.

Some aristocrats. Indians suffer the highest unemployment rates in this country. Indians have the shortest life expectancy, the poorest housing, the poorest health, the greatest proportion of numbers in penal institutions, "social and welfare difficulties galore . . ." in Fisher's words.

Recently the U.S. representative to the U. N. spoke of the "tyranny of the majority." In Fisher's own words this tyranny has "alienated from (the Indians) the whole domain." This is a polite phrase meaning: "We have (stolen, or swindled, or usurped) from the Indians a whole continent." Since our whole "domain" has been "alienated" Fisher says we should not now have or maintain any special rights.

Here is how argument becomes tinged by the tyranny of madness. It is sheer madness to state there should be no special place for the Indians in their own "domain," but the majority will maintain a special place for the English and French. If special rights for Indians are divisive, then surely special rights for English and French are also divisive. If we do away with the "Indian fact" let us also do away with the "French fact" and the "English fact" in Canada's so-called mosaic.

First Inhabitants

Our claim as Indians to special status is founded on aboriginal rights, the right of first inhabitants, and has been recognized in the constitution of Canada. If Mr. Fisher cannot understand why we wish to maintain our unique status he simply does not comprehend the simplest fact of Canadian history: My ancestors are indigenous, his are immigrant.

Succeeding federal governments have often stated that doing away with "special status for Indians" would solve the problems of Indians. Yet "the sorry lot of so many non-status Indians and Metis" as mentioned by Fisher, offers living, breathing, walking proof that so-called "equality of citizenship" under provincial jurisdiction is simply a cruel hoax and mirage. If anything, the conditions of non-status Indians and Metis, who are under provincial responsibility and thus presumably accorded "equal citizenship," is even worse than the conditions of status Indians. The Indians, at least, are guaranteed some services and attention by the federal government and a "special place" by the British North America Act.

In relation to those services provided Indians by the federal government, Mr. Fisher's arithmetic needs correcting. His figures sound suspiciously like those used by a mythical department of Indian affairs public relations crew.

Simple calculation tells us that if $4,000 per Indian is being expended on Indian programs for 250,000 Indians (as stated in Fisher's article) this would total one billion dollars per year. In fact the actual budget for the department of Indian affairs is $360 million. Of this amount $180 million goes for administration and operations. Only $90 million goes directly to Indian bands and Indian reserves, in the form of grants, loans and programs. This $90 million divided among 250,000 Indians equals only $360 per Indian. The other expenditures do not go directly to Indians — they go directly to white people as salaries or subsidies in the name of Indians.

Contrast this with the $725 million spent for the 110,000 people in Prince Edward Island, as reported by Statistics Canada for 1972. This amounts to $6,500 per islander. The expenditures of the Canadian International Development Agency are more than $750 million this year for overseas developmental assistance.

Others Benefit

We Indian people do not begrudge these programs and expenditures. But we are most concerned that all our former wealth is being accrued and distributed from our "domain" for the benefits of others while we are now forced to scratch and beg for our very existence in the shadow of the dominant society, whose affluence has been derived at our expense.

Mr. Fisher states: "The settlements will give (Indians) broad rights . . . over huge reaches of land . . . which will more than rival some of our provinces in size."

The fact is the Indians and Inuit in James Bay are being offered reserve lands totalling 4,000 square miles or two square miles per family of five. For this they are relinquishing their rights to more than 400,000 square miles of land, in some portions of which they will be allowed to hunt and fish so long as this does not interfere with "development."

The James Bay settlement is no model. It is merely a continuation of the old-time treaty negotiations. A close study reveals the old chiefs may have even struck a better bargain. The one who will benefit most from the James Bay settlement is the aristocracy of the money barons and rel estate developers.

We have a real fear that Mr. Fisher's article may be just another spark to fan the flames of that so-called "backlash". He may be sounding the clarion call for "rednecks to unite against the redskins." We fear his article may be a part of a "hate the Indian" campaign, just at a time when we Indians were beginning to see some hope in overcoming the serious problems faced by our people in this country.

My personal advice to Doug Fisher is: Go cure your myopia, correct your arithmetic, study elementary Canadian history, and it may help you to see why your great-great-grandchildren will still be living with the unique Indian status of my great-great-grandchildren.

Peddlers of Patriotism

By HARRY BRUCE

The ad is a comic strip, only serious. It shows two young men with square jaws. They're wearing dressing gowns. They have silky scarves loosely knotted at their throats, and they're both in wheelchairs.

They are Canadian war heroes, elegantly recovering from combat wounds; and, since they're also fantastically clean-cut Canucks, their chatter turns not to anything so gross as the sexual opportunities among the nursing staff but, rather, to the anti-inflation campaign back in Canada.

Joe is the deeper thinker of the two. Canadians, he believes, are making the domestic price ceiling work "and I wouldn't be surprised if that isn't the most important thing on the home front."

There's a moral to the story: "If we are to avoid inflation, every one of us must play fair. So let's all pledge ourselves to keep down living costs . . . but only what we need . . . observe the ceiling . . . save for the future of a happy and prosperous land."

The advertisement appeared in Maclean's in January, 1945 — 30 years ago — and it speaks of a time in which Canadians truly believed that if they acted together, like some huge and spirited church group, they could conquer inflation.

Just as neighbors helped bring in one another's harvests, and fishermen helped haul out one another's boats, so all Canadians could keep the cost of living in line. It was just a matter of co-operating, doing one's best, playing fair.

A message like that would appear hopelessly naive today, and so would the sponsor. It was John Labatt Ltd., and if you are young, you might well wonder why a brewery was shelling out hard cash not to peddle ale but, rather, to fight inflation with comic strips.

But in this same mouldy Maclean's, Calvert Distillers ringingly declares "Canadians in countless ways can be the link that joins the British Commonwealth and the United States . . . What greater guarantee of lasting peace than complete and absolute understanding between John Bull and Uncle Sam?"

Now is that any way to sell a bottle of rye? Or, for that matter, Canada?

Or take O'Keefe's full-color Canada Unlimited map. It shows all the stupendous natural resources of Canada and, under a wreath of Canadian leaves and Canadian acorns, tells us that "with peace, our fighting men and women will return to happy homes and loving arms and peaceful work."

And to the rich, hearty, man-sized flavor of a real veteran's (unrationed) ale? No sir. O'Keefe's big map ostensibly pushes not beer, but Victory Bonds.

Hiram Walker and Sons, Ltd. uses a drippingly sentimental Franklin Arbuckle illustration of a newspaper carrier boy on a snowy night to inspire us with this sermon: "Let's never allow anything to stand in the way of individual accomplishment. For if anything should, Canada cannot survive."

Hiram Walker says it is "serving the United Nations with war alcohol," but this is the only clue in the whole ad that its sponsor's business is booze.

Beer and liquor companies, you see, were somewhat like the manufacturers of, ahem, birth-control devices. They were not supposed to tell you how great their product was in ads the children might see. Indeed, in 1945, only a few years had passed since the days when they could not buy magazine space even to print their names.

And now, only one generation later, magazine liquor ads tell you that this cocktail, or that highball, or this absolutely smashing new concoction is sparkly, zesty, crisp, dry, smooth, light, mild, gentle, and generally just superwonderful at doing whatever trick you want done.

The photographs are so sharp you can almost hear the ice clinking, the mix fizzing, the luscious model's pretty gasp of satisfaction as she downs the drink and stretches out invitingly on the grass beside your picnic hamper.

And so far as the power of such advertising is concerned, one Bernard David, a California liquor dealer, has let a secret out of the vat. He says that his outfit puts identical vodka into $3.25 and $5.25 bottles. The public prefers the $5.25 bottle 15 to 1.

Not only vodka, people insist on buying the more expensive bourbon labels even though, as David says, a bourbon by any other name would taste as sour.

"Advertising by the big brand names," he argues, "has turned us all into automatons."

His revelations fall into the category of things - we - suspected - all-along-but-never-knew-for-sure. Perhaps they're not entirely true of Canada. Still, if liquor advertising is even half as effective here as David says it is in California, maybe the booze interests should go back to parading their patriotism.

Pair Committed to Trial In Armed Cardroom Theft

Two men charged with armed robbery at the Criterion Club cardroom, 562 Yates, were committed to stand trial in a higher court after a preliminary hearing Tuesday before Judge William Ostler in provincial court.

Charged in the $1,670 holdup on Sept. 5 are Henry Frank Guiney, 42, of 304 Oswego and Leo Arnold Baker, 24, of 885 Craigflower.

Baker is free on $5,000 bail but Guiney has been unable to raise $7,500 bail.

Both men have elected trial by judge and jury in B.C. Supreme Court.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An impaired driver was sent to jail and a man who defrauded the Unemployment Insurance Commission was fined $540 in Victoria provincial court Tuesday.

Judge William Ostler sentenced Gene Kenneth Smith, 29, of Brentwood Bay, to 20 days in jail for impaired driving, and to another 20 days for driving while under suspension.

Smith pleaded guilty to both charges which were laid following an accident on Stelly's Crossroad at Brentwood Bay Monday night.

Prosecutor Clarence Vause noted Smith had been convicted of impaired driving less than three weeks ago, had been fined and suspended from driving for three months, and placed on six months probation.

Ostler said the recurrence of impaired driving in such a short span of time was "scandalous."

"Apparently the punishment set on the first occasion had no effect on you at all," the judge said, adding he would extend Smith's driving ban to one year.

William Lowe, 25, of 1254 Johnston, pleaded guilty to making nine false statements while receiving unemployment insurance benefits between January and May 1974.

Lowe had indicated he had no earnings during the period when in fact he had worked from Jan. 25 to March 3.

The accused received $1,046 in benefits to which he was not entitled, a VIC investigator said. The commission had made arrangements for restitution, he added.

Lowe's record includes thefts, driving infractions, and breaking and entering dating back to 1970.

Ostler fined him $60 for each of the nine violations of the Unemployment Insurance Act.

A $5.25 investment in LSD turned into a $150 fine for Stephen Lawrence Knight, 18, of 1736 Newton, who pleaded guilty to possession of the restricted drug Dec. 14 on Yates.

Drug officers said they found three hits of LSD concealed in a book of matches Knight had tucked into his shorts. He told officers he had bought the drug for $1.75 a hit earlier in the evening.

A 53-year-old man received a one-day jail term and was placed on three years probation for cashing a $540 cheque which bounced.

Rodney Walter Stanley Wells, address not known, pleaded guilty before Judge Harold Alder to obtaining money by false pretences at the Ingraham Hotel July 19.

Police said Wells cashed a cheque drawn on an account jointly held with a business partner. The cheque was returned stamped "not sufficient funds" and "two signatures required."

Alder ordered Wells to repay the hotel.

In Judge Fred Green's traffic court, Norman Alcan Anderson, 30, of 51 High Street, was fined a total of $825, prohibited from driving for eight months and placed on six months probation with the condition he attend the impaired driver's course.

Anderson pleaded guilty to impaired driving in Colwood Nov. 16 and was found guilty of failing to remain at the scene of an accident Oct. 19. Green set a $450 fine on the first, $375 on the second.

Ostler, noting the drug had been bought with welfare money, ordered the fine paid immediately or a 14-day jail term in default would be imposed.

Bahr was also charged with possession of six counterfeit $50 bills and of uttering two of the bills at downtown Victoria stores last week.

He pleaded not guilty and was remanded to today for bail discussion.

$300 FINE FOR DRUG

Terrance Paul Weaver of Langford was fined $300 and placed on one year probation when he pleaded guilty in county court Monday to possession of MDA.

Weaver had been originally charged with possession of MDA for the purposes of trafficking. The crown, however, did not proceed with the charge after Weaver entered a guilty plea to the lesser offence.

Harrassment Noted

the need for a legal ombudsman here, a municipal council subcommittee reported that police harrassment of juveniles has been brought to its attention.

Subcommittee member Joyce Hicks said other matters brought to her group's attention include severence of unemployment benefits without notice, destruction of property by policemen with search warrants, and failure of police or courts to let juveniles see lawyers before court appearance.

Duncan IWA Recovers Back Wages

DUNCAN — The Duncan local of the International Woodworkers of America said today it has been successful in recovering $25,734.50 in wages owed to 87 former employees of Slegg Forest Products' sawmill at Cowichan Bay.

The company, which closed in March, 1973, after financial problems in meeting payroll, never reopened but the labor department, acting on behalf of the IWA, seized money from a recent auction sale of sawmill equipment and land.

In addition to the $25,734.50 recovered for back wages, about $20,000 was also recovered for worker benefits such as pension plan payments, medical, health and welfare premiums, Workers' Compensation and Unemployment Insurance payments and some union dues.

Local president Fernie Viala said $20,000 of the back wages has been distributed to former employees but the union is trying to find 15 people who have cheques owing.

MAN DIES IN SNOW

RCMP identified the man as Arthur Poulin, 27, of 389 Obed, and said the accident occurred on Poulin's brother's farm near Ranfurly, about 80 miles east of Edmonton.

Police said Poulin, who was born in the Ranfurly area, was visiting his family for the holidays when the accident occurred.

Crash Pair Survived 50-Hour Terror

SEATTLE (UPI) — For 50 hours, the two survivors of the plane crash lay in the snow-covered wreckage fighting for their lives.

"I almost wanted to call someone on the telephone and say, 'Hey, we're alive'," said Mrs. Marilyn Foos.

But there was no telephone around as Mrs. Foos, 49, lay with an injured pilot near her side and three dead persons — including her husband — just a few feet away.

The five were on a flight from central Washington to Seattle Sunday so Mrs. Foos' Husband, Paul, 50, could get treatment for throat cancer. But stormy weather formed thin chunks of ice on the wings of their twin-engine Cessna 206 and it plowed into the forests of the Cascade foothills 25 miles southeast of Seattle.

The wreckage was seen Tuesday morning and Mrs. Foos and Gregory Bennett, 25, the pilot, were in Valley Green Hospital in nearby Renton a few hours later, listed in serious but stable condition with numerous fractures and cuts and some internal injuries.

The bodies of Foos, nurse Lenore Crowley, and another pilot, Michael Bass, were to be removed from the crash site today.

Mrs. Foos said she remembered little of the crash.

"They told us we were bucking 60-mile-an-hour winds. I looked out and saw ice forming on the wings. We then started to lose altitude. Suddenly I saw a tree out the window and then we smacked into the side of that mountain."

"We were very calm from the beginning," she continued. He (Bennett) kept saying, 'I'm going to leave, I'm going to walk out.' But I wouldn't let him.

"I felt remorse for my husband and Bennett would tell me, 'You've got to think of yourself, of your life'."

Bennett struggled out of the wreckage to make sure the emergency locator beacon was working. Then the two took stock of their food — and found they had just five lifesavers. But, said Mrs. Foos, "We never lost faith."

In the hospital Tuesday night, Mrs. Foos said she was looking forward to a visit today with her daughter, 13, and son, 15.

"One thing that kept me alive was that I couldn't stand the thought of them having both of their parents dead," she said.

$196,913 Contract

A $196,913 contract has been awarded Dalziel Construction for construction work on the old Victoria Press building on Douglas Street.

Work on the building, which was purchased by the provincial government last year, and has already had extensive renovation, involves some demolition, erection of new partitions and mechanical and electrical work.

DOUBLE-HEADER

KAMPALA (Reuter) — Four persons were struck dead by lightning while attending the funeral of a relative — also killed by lightning. Radio Uganda said Tuesday 29 other persons were in hospital after the funeral.

Jobless Warning for Britain

LONDON (Reuter) — Alarmed British industrialists issued an urgent warning Tuesday night that Britain's high inflation will cause soaring unemployment, and appealed to Prime Minister Harold Wilson for an emergency meeting.

Informed sources said later that Wilson has agreed to meet them soon.

The warning was issued by Britian's main employers association, the Confederation of British Industry, which represents 12,000 businesses and most major employers. Many companies are in trouble, it said and asked the Labor prime minister for an early meeting "to discuss the developing situation."

The CBI said unemployment will rise quickly if inflation is unchecked. Inflation is estimated at 17.3 per cent in Britain.

"The events of the last few days have underlined the effect of a prolonged period of high inflation, linked with price controls and high corporate taxation," said the CBI.

The statement came as industrial and financial sources expressed anxiety about Britain's position in the last several days.

The London stock exchange plunged to a 20-year record low a few days ago after the country's second biggest oil company, Burmah Oil, asked for government aid.

In recent days the sports car maker Aston Martin has collapsed, and the giant British Leyland car firm has received help from the government.

Wilson already has agreed to a request from Jack Jones, general secretary of the Transport and General Workers Union, Britain's biggest union, for a meeting soon to discuss industrial relations.

Wilson is also to preside over a regular meeting of representatives of industry, unions and government today.

Hope for Canada In World Woes

CALGARY (CP) — Some of the economic extremes of 1974 may be alleviated but the outlook for 1975 remains gloomy for the western world, Dr. Ben Gestrin of Toronto, vice-president of economics for the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce said Tuesday.

He told an economic outlook conference, sponsored by his bank for oil industry executives, that the oil-importing nations will have a projected cumulative deficit of $624 billion by 1980 as a result of increased international oil prices.

Canada, sheltered against the higher international oil prices, is expected to fare better than most other industrialized nations in the current world-wide recession, said Dr. Robert Rene de Cotret of Ottawa, vice-president of the conference board in Canada.

But Canada's energy self-sufficiency may end in a few years until frontier and oil sands resources come on stream to bridge the gap resulting from declinng levels of conventional oil and gas production, said Marshall Crowe, chairman of the National Energy Board.

Hardest hit by the drain of petroleum dollars are the United Kingdom, France, Italy and Japan, where inflation is about double the rate of Canada and which have a greater dependence on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries for their energy needs, Gestrin said.

To service the huge petroleum debt, oil importing countries would have to lower their standard of living, attract investment from and increase exports to OPEC and "develop alternative sources of energy," he said.

Dr. de Cotret said Canada is expected to experience in 1975 a real economic growth of one per cent, an unemployment rate of seven per cent and inflation at the rate of between six and eight per cent — still bad but an improvement over 1974 and better than most other developed nations.

In comparison, the United States is forecast to have a two per cent decline in real economic growth, a jobless rate of 7.5 per cent and an inflation rate at about the same level as Canada.

10-Mill Hike Faces Knife

Victoria's provisional $32 million budget for 1975 would require a mill-rate increase of close to 10 mills if it was adopted without any changes.

But changes there will be, so many and of such substance that the document presented to city council earlier this week will probably bear little resemblance to the final budget which must be adopted by May 15.

City officials emphasize that the provisional budget is a rough piece of financial guesswork, which attempts the near-impossible task of drawing up revenue and expenditure tables based on numerous imponderable — including yet-to-be-decided salary increases and a possible increase in provincial per capita grants.

Highly tentative though it is, the budget has to be given its first airing at council's inaugural meeting, under the rules laid down in the Municipal Act.

Over the next few months it will be subjected to an intensive process of screening and revision, as officials attempt to minimize the impact of what Mayor Peter Pollen warns will be a "substantial" mill-rate increase.

The provisional budget total is up $3.6 million or about 12 per cent on the city's 1974 operating budget of $28.4 million.

NO DUCKING ISSUE OF LAKE POLLUTION

SEATTLE (AP) — Ducks may look picturesque paddling across a lake, but from the standpoint of water quality the view is not so pretty.

John Courchene of the city water department says eight ducks create as much pollution as one man, and "if you've got 2,000 ducks in a reservoir, you've got trouble."

Water Supt. Kenneth Lowthian said one of the worst problems is on Youngs Lake in southeast King County, where rockets are being used to scare off the ducks.

The seven-inch SCRAM — secure crops, remove animal marauders — rockets are fired over a group of rafting ducks. The missiles explode in a burst of carboard and paper confetti which, apparently, results in polkution that is insignificant compared with that caused by the ducks.

BLOOD ARRIVES, SURGERY AGAIN

Supplies of blood from the Red Cross in Vancouver have been received by both of Victoria's general hospitals and surgery postponed by a blood shortage has been rescheduled.

Meanwhile, blood donor clinics in Sidney Friday and in Victoria Monday and Tuesday will give local residents a chance to help overcome the province-wide shortage.

At Royal Jubilee Hospital a spokesman said today blood ordered by the hospital arrived today and open heart surgery, delayed because the hospital was down to its last 20 units, will continue. The hospital usually does four such operations a week.

A spokesman at Victoria General Hospital, which also faced a dwindling supply earlier this week but did not have to curtail surgery, said a blood supply arrived Tuesday and "everything is normal."

The blood clinic in Sidney Friday will be at Sanscha Hall, from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. and 7 to 8:30 p.m. There will also be a clinic Thursday aboard HMCS Provider.

Clinics will be held Monday and Tuesday at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort, from 2:30 to 4:30 and 6:30 to 9 p.m., Monday and 1:30 to 4:30 and 6:30 to 9 p.m., Tuesday.

Monday's clinic will be the scene of a "bloodathon" held by the University of Victoria Rugby Club. Players donating blood will seek sponsors as in a "walkathon" and money will go toward a rugby trip to Argentina and Uruguay.

The UVic club members, who will turn out in uniform, are challenging all other Victoria clubs to match their blood donations.

Registered Home-Owners' Plan Like RRSPs—Only Better

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The new registered home ownership plan is just like the registered retirement plan—except it's a lot better.

Both can be purchased at local banks, credit unions and trust companies and both can be used as full deductions against taxable income.

However, retirement plans become taxable when they are withdrawn. Homeownership funds are never taxed.

Both plans can be purchased at any time up until the end of February, 1975, and claimed as deductions against 1974 earnings.

The registered retirement plans are available immediately. The registered home ownership plan awaits parliamentary approval before sales begin, but some financial houses are already accepting applications, with no money exchanging hands yet.

According to the federal plan, any person 18 years or older who was not owner or co-owner of a residence at any time in 1974 is eligible for an immediate start on the registered home ownership program.

Whether the taxpayer owned a house prior to Jan. 1, 1974, is irrelevant. However, if he owned a house at any time in 1974 he (or she) is excluded for the 1974 taxation year.

Some taxpayers transferred their houses to their wife's name prior to Jan. 1, 1975, and they will be eligible at this time next year to start a plan against 1975 taxes.

Under the plan, the taxpayer can deposit a maximum of $1,000 per year at a financial institution and deduct $1,000 per year off his taxable income. He can do this each year until 1983, the last year the plan will be operating.

The money in the plan can be withdrawn at any time, along with interest accrued, and there will be no tax charged against the investor as long as the money is used to buy a house, or to furnish a house. In either case, it must be a home the owner lives in, not one he buys and rents out.

Once funds have been withdrawn from the plan, the taxpayer can not start a new one. If he starts this year, the plan runs for a maximum of 10 years. If he starts next year, the plan has a maximum life of 9 years.

Thus, it has been called a one-time home ownership plan, strictly scheduled to end in 1983.

A person qualifying for an immediate start would be eligible for 10 annual reductions. If he were in the 40 per cent tax bracket, this would save him $400 in cash each year for 10 years in taxes alone.

In addition to the $4,000 tax savings, he would have $10,000 in savings plus accrued interest over 10 years to put towards a house.

The registered retirement savings plan is similar except it can be stopped and started at any time without penalty — but funds withdrawn become subject to taxation in the year they are taken.

They come in all sizes but for maximum tax benefit there are two categories.

A person not contributing to a company pension plan may buy a registered retirement plan for $4,000 or 20 per cent of his gross salary, whichever is smaller. The full amount can then be deducted against taxable income.

A person eligible for the $4,000 plan (earning $20,000 and not contributing to a company pension plan) saves about $1,800 in cash on his taxes.

The second category of workers can not do as well.

For them, the maximum they can contribute to all pension plans for tax benefit is $2,500 or 20 per cent of gross salary, whichever is smaller. This means a person earning $12,500 a year contributing $1,000 to a company pension plan, can buy a registered retirement plan for $1,500, to bring his total pension contributions to $2,500.

His tax saving is just under $1,000 in a cash rebate.

Registered retirment plans can be withdrawn at any time but become subject to taxation. The federal government reasons that, normally, they will be withdrawn at age 65 when earnings decline and the taxation will be minimal.

In practice, many of the registred retirement plans are being withdrawn to provide a sabbatical holiday. The funds have to be taken in a year when other earnings are low or the immediate tax saving will be lost by taxes when the funds are withdrawn.

1974 MLS Sales Up

Sales under the Multiple Listing Service totalled $62.7 million in 1974, up from $58 million in 1973, the Victoria Real Estate Board said Monday.

There were 1,900 separate sales during the year compared with 2,300 a year earlier.

December sales under MLS totalled $7.8 million for 174 transactions, up from $4.6 million in 12[illegible] sales the previous December.

INCOME TAX TIPS

Following is a selection of tax tips as supplied by the federal income tax department to assist taxpayers in filing their 1974 returns.

Q. The Family Allowance cheques received for our children are made out to my wife. Does this mean she must report the payments as income?

A. Not necessarily. The law requires that the individual who claims a personal exemption on behalf of a child for whom the payments are received must report the payments as income. If neither parent claims an exemption, the person to whom the cheques are made out must report the income. For further information, refer to Item 7 of the Income Tax Guide provided with your income tax return.

Q. My wife and I are both retired. She receives the Old Age Security Pension. When I am making out my income tax return and claiming my wife, must I include the Old Age Security Pension as part of her income?

A. Yes. The Old Age Security Pension as well as any supplement received are her income and must be taken into account in determining the amount, if any, of your married exemption.

Q. My employer pays me an allowance to cover my board and room while I am working at distant work sites away from my ordinary place of residence where I support my wife and family. Previously, I was told that this had to be included in income for income tax purposes because I was not a construction worker. I understand that this no longer applies. Is this correct?

A. Yes. This exempting provision now applies to all workers employed at a distant work site providing they meet the other necessary conditions.

Q. I received a lump sum upon retirement. I do not want to pay tax on it at this time but would like to invest it so as to spread the tax over a number of years. Is there some way that this can be done?

A. Yes. A person can use such amounts to purchase an income averaging annuity from a licensed or otherwise authorized person. The annuity may be for life, or a guaranteed term not exceeding 15 years but not extending beyond the annuitant's 85th birthday.

Q. What is the general rule as far as capital gains or losses are concerned?

A. The general rule is that one-half of capital gains are included in income and taxed at a person's normal rate of tax. When dealing with capital losses, one-half of such losses may be deducted against one-half of capital gains. When losses exceed gains, subtract one-half of your gains from one-half of your losses and deduct up to $1000 of the difference.

'DEATH ALLEY' ON COOK ST.

Cook Street between Dallas and Fort was described as Victoria's "Death Alley" Tuesday.

The tag came from coroner Edmond St. Jorre as an inquest began into the death of Dorothy Crighton, 76, of 805 Cook, Victoria's first traffic fatality for 1975.

Mrs. Crighton, a retired librarian and former Colonist music critic, died late Sunday after being struck by a car as she walked across Cook at Burdett.

St. Jorre adjourned the inquest to Jan. 13.

Earlier St. Jorre postponed to March 6, an inquest into the death of Mrs. Kathleen Arden, 78, of Colwood last November. The adjournment was allowed to permit the RCMP to continue their investigation.

Rent-Hike Loophole Talks On

The British Columbia Rent Review Commission has begun discussions with some landlords in the province about exemptions from the 10.6-per-cent ceiling on rent increases.

Acting commission chairman John Brewin said Tuesday landlords can be exempted from the ceiling under a section of the Landlord and Tenant act if they sign a contract with the commission "to regulate rents payable by tenants during a period of not less than five years."

Brewin said it will probably be at least a month before the commission signs any agreements with landlords. There will be no wholesale rent exemptions, he added.

The acting commissioner said the section can be used to alleviate hardships for landlords, particularly in cases where rents were not raised for several years before the rent ceilings went into effect in 1974.

Brewin said the five-year provision could be used to bring rents to a reasonable rate, provided landlords agreed to keep increases moderate for the next five years.

He said the terms of each contract will probably be negotiated individually and that landlords might have to limit increases to an economic standard such as the consumer price index.

A number of landlords have expressed interest in negotiating the five-year contract, Brewin said. He added the general attitude of landlords towards the 10.6 per cent ceiling for 1975 is one of resignation.

Back to Square One On Hawkers Licences

Street hawkers, who looked as if they might be taxed to extinction by a $700 trades licence fee, obtained a new lease of life in the city of Victoria Tuesday.

City council decided in caucus to set the fee at $200 and limit vendors to plying their wares in Centennial Square.

The decision took council back to square one, for essentially the same proposal had been first considered and then rejected last November in favor of the higher $700 fee.

Ald. Bill Tindall, who had helped draft the new Trades Licence Bylaw, seemed to be under the impression that council wanted to eliminate hawkers altogether, but Mayor Peter Pollen later denied that was the intention.

City solicitor Jakob de Villiers, in presenting the proposed amendments Tuesday, suggested council might want to limit the number of licences issued to hawkers, but it was agreed to leave that matter open.

The Causeway Save-Tower Campaign Grows

That 80-foot tower which sits atop the Causeway Esso station and dominates the Inner Harbor scene will be recommended for preservation as a landmark and "pivotal point" of interaction between waterfront and downtown.

Ald. Sam Bawlf, who ran into some early opposition with his save-the-tower campaign a few months ago, made real headway Tuesday at a meeting of council's central area development committee.

The committee instructed the city engineer to study the feasability and approximate cost of retaining the tower once the gas station is demolished, and integrating the property into the park-promenade theme of the adjoining Causeway.

Bawlf suggested the study should include the possibility of installing "20th century washrooms," and accommodating the tourist information centre in the service station's underground parking area.

Once a comprehensibe plan is ready it will be submitted to the provincially-funded beautification agency, the Capital Improvement District Commission.

The property was bought by the city last year for $225,000 and immediately turned over to the provincial government.

Bawlf again enthused over the tower's qualities — "it appeals to the human spirit as a prominent thing on the landscape" — and noted it would cost $100,000 or more to build today.

"Of Mayor Pollen?" asked Bawlf.

"Something like that" replied the mayor. "Let's give it some real significance."

Pollen seemed to think the tower was of the architectural style known as "1931 California schlock," but Bawlf insisted it is Art Deco — "the consummate design theme of the 1930s."

UNION MEETS

VANCOUVER — The B.C. Labor Relations Board called Johnston Terminals management and Teamsters' Local 31 to a special meeting this morning to discuss the refusal of 1,100 employees to work.

Union members on Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland have voted to stay off work to protest the suspension of a Nanaimo driver and a Port Alberni driver who had refused to work overtime.

The union has been seeking a special mid-contract cost-of-living pay raise and drivers at many companies are refusing to work overtime in support of this position.

Johnston Terminals president James Methven denied today he has ever threatened to liquidate if the employees don't return to work.

News reports quoted Ed Zimmerman, secretary of Teamsters' Local 31, as saying Methven said this last Friday. But Methvin said today it is "untrue."

However, the company does plan to go to civil court seeking damages from the Teamsters' Union for an illegal strike, he said. Zimmerman has said the union urged the men to go back to work but they decided otherwise.

Woman's Trial Set On Murder Charge

NANAIMO (CP) — Marilyn Joan Frank, also known as Marilyn Wells, 33, was committed for higher court trial Monday on a charge of murder punishable by life in prison.

Frank was charged after the body of Frank C. Wells, 43, of Richmond, was found Nov. 20 aboard his 36-foot boat at the harbor float base here. He had been fatally stabbed.

Gemini Under Scrutiny

The American deepsea tug Gemini, towed by the Vancouver tug Ocean Master, reached the safety of Port Hardy Tuesday night.

She is being examined today to see whether she can be patched up and make her own way to Seattle.

The Gemini cracked a stern plate Thursday when caught in a violent storm on her way from Anchorage, Alaska. Seawater got in and contaminated some of her fuel.

The weathership Quadra was diverted from Station Papa, 800 miles out in the Pacific, to stand by the tug until the Ocean Master reached the scene.

A spokesman for Rivtow Straits Ltd., the Ocean Master's owners, said today the Vancouver tug will remain in Port Hardy and if temporary repairs on Gemini are ipossible, will tow the American vessel to Seattle.

Having been given some fuel by the Quadra, the Gemini was able to make way under her own power until noon Tuesday when she was taken under tow by the Ocean Master.

B.C. Seeks Answers On Airclub Refunds

The B.C. consumer services department has requested some answers from Airclub International on repayment of funds paid by British Columbians for cancelled Airclub flights.

Airclub, a low cost group travel organization operating out of Seattle, was ordered by the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board in December to stop all flight operations after Jan. 15.

Several Airclub flights have been cancelled since that announcement and provincial director of consumer services Michael Hanson has asked the club how and when it plans to refund money paid by Canadians for cancelled flights.

Hanson also requested full details on the club's plans for putting deposits into trust for flights after Jan. 15. The B.C. government believes the money for B.C. customers should be put in an account in B.C.

Hanson requested answers to his queries by Jan. 10.

In an earlier letter to Hanson from Airclub vice-president Ed McDevitt, the organization said reductions in staff will cause some delays in refunds but all money should be returned to members within 60 days.

It also confirmed that a trust account has been set up for money for all flights after Jan. 15.

The Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Aviation Administration in the U.S. have refused Airclub permission to fly but the club has appealed the decision and is awaiting the results in U.S. federal district court.

RCMP FUNDING BOOST SOUGHT

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald will meet federal officials later this month to press for greater financial support for RCMP services in B.C.

Macdonald said Tuesday he will continue to urge Solicitor-General Warren Allmand to increase federal financing of the RCMP by "10 per cent at least."

Ottawa has proposed a 10 per cent cut in financing, said Macdonald, but B.C. wants "a more generous formula" than exists now in order to increase RCMP forces in the province.

B.C. wants to stress crime prevention, he said, and the RCMP are "the front line" in prevention.

Negotiations between the federal and provincial governments are aimed at the new RCMP contracts which will begin April 1, 1976.

B.C. now has 1,219 RCMP officers on its provincial force, 1,191 on its municipal forces and a variable number working on drug squads and other federal forces.

Macdonald again denied the B.C. government has any intention of setting up its own provincial police force.

"We wouldn't be pushing for a better formula if we wanted to get rid of the RCMP," he said, adding that it should be up to municipalities to decide whether they want local police or RCMP services.

BANGKOK (AP) — Forty persons were reported drowned in three southern provinces of Thailand as torrential rains continued today for the fifth consecutive day.

Mozart Highlights Program

Second half of Victoria Symphony's season opens Sunday at 2:30 p.m. and Monday at 8:30 p.m. at the Royal Theatre with a pair of concerts that highlight the orchestra and two of the newer distinguished, resident professional musicians in this city.

The work that will bring these two polished musicians into the solo spotlight is the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola by Mozart.

Harry Cawood, who has delighted audiences with his stylish musical performance since he joined the orchestra as concertmaster at the beginning of this season, is the violinist.

As well as other notable appointments in England, Cawood was associate leader of the London Mozart Players, a highly regarded chamber orchestra.

Violist Gerald Stanick shares the spot. He has toured extensively in Europe, Asia, Canada and the United States, and appears frequently with the CBC as soloist and chamber musician.

He is on the faculty of music at the University of Victoria. One of his greatest treasures is the rare Maggini viola dated 1600, on which he plays.

This program is further noteworthy in that it is being broadcast by CBC.

Also to be performed under Laszlo Gati's direction, is the Hairy Janos Suite by Zoltan Kodaly.

This suite was made from the musical material of Kodaly's celebrated folk opera. Full of melody and drama it is based on a humorous Hungarian legend of a swashbuckling hero's life and loves.

Bartok's intricate and delightful Divertimento for Strings completes the program which is a challenge for any orchestra and should prove a delight for audiences.

MODERN DANCE CLASSES SET

Modern dance teacher and choreographer Linda Rabin, who has worked as rehearsal director for the Batsheva Dance Company in Israel and Ballet Rambert in England, will present some special classes in Victoria Saturday and Sunday.

The classes are being hosted by the Shirley Rolland Contemporary Dance Company at their studio, 743 Alderbury Road, Esquimalt.

In the special workshop sessions, Rabin will give placement and modern classes in the Graham and Limon technique, from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. on both days.

A fee of $6 will be charged for the two classes and those who wish to register may do so by phoning Mrs. Rolland at 383-2375.

Soprano to Perform

In partial fulfilment of the requirements for her Bachelor of Music degree, soprano Pierann Moon will give a recital tonight at 8 in the University of Victoria MacLaurin auditorium.

Miss Moon will be accompanied by Jocelyn Abbott, pianist, and other UVic instrumentalists.

Among music to be performed are works by Handel, Schubert, Schutz, Wolf, Mahler, Messiaen and Bernstein.

The concert is open to anyone interested and there is no admission charge.

SIMON COMEDY CLOSE TO HOME

The latest of the Neil Simon plays, The Gingerbread Lady, cuts closer to the bone of humanity than does any one of the other sit-coms the American playwright has concocted.

An expose of the nutty side of life in a city renowned for its nuttier aspects, it will lead off the 1975 portion of the current theatre season at McPherson Playhouse.

Directed by Robert Price, The Gingerbread Lady opens Friday and will be seen Saturday and Jan. 13 through 18 except Jan. 15 at 8 p.m.

Playing anti-heroine Evy, a woman caught up in the throes of middle age and a rest cure from the bottle, is Doris Chillcott of Vancouver.

Jazz Pianist in Concert

Victoria composer and jazz pianist Rusty Thompson will perform 13 original compositions in concerts Friday and Saturday at Open Space, 510 Fort Street, at 8 p.m.

He will be accompanied by Dave Keens on reeds, Neil Swainson, bass, and Bob Brown, percussion. Thompson's quartet is well known locally having played most recently at Duke's, Victoria's new jazz club.

Thompson has performed at UVic and has lectured on jazz at several local schools. His music contains jazz, rock and classical influences.

Tickets may be purchased both nights at the door.

CHORAL GROUP TOURING

A select choral group from Willamette University in Salem, Ore., the Willamette Singers, will present a varied program Thursday at Oak Bay United Church.

The concert, which will begin at 8 p.m., is part of the ensemble's winter tour of Washington and British Columbia.

The group of 15 singers, conducted by Walter Farrier, Willamette's director of choral activities, will perform six Renaissance madrigals, sacred music and contemporary works by Jean Berger, Halsey Stevens and Jack Boyd.

The program will also include English, American and Japanese folk songs and a humorous work.

200 Seniors Seek Housing

DUNCAN — Before excavation has even started, 200 applications have been made for the 132-unit senior citizens' home to be built here.

Mayor Ken Paskin said he hopes construction will begin in early spring.

Financing of the $2 million complex is being discussed among civic, provincial and federal governments.

"We want to make sure we have the rents at a manageable figure for those people on fixed incomes," said Paskin.

All You Really Need at Sea

VANCOUVER (CP) — The disabled Liberian freighter Corinna was inspected Tuesday and her cargo of 223 Datsun automobiles was found to be undamaged by a 19-day ordeal in the North Pacific.

The Corinna was towed here Monday night by the tug Sudbury II, completing a 1,050-mile rescue which began when the 510-foot freighter's engines broke down in the North Pacific Dec. 18 about 1,200 miles northwest of Vancouver Island.

The 11-year-old Brazilian-built freighter was rusty and weatherbeaten but cargo inspectors for the auto importer which hired the Chinese-owned, Japanese-based vessel said the cargo was "fit as a fiddle."

"I've seen cars in a lot worse condition on ships that haven't had half the time this one had in crossing," one inspector said.

The cars, securely lashed with nylon rope, were checked daily at sea to ensure they hadn't shifted as a result of 40-foot swells, said Corinna captain Jung-Wen Wang.

After unloading her cargo at the CP Rail's dock, the vessel was to head for drydock for repair.

"Then we go back to sea," said Captain Jung-Wen.

BURNABY (CP) — Overcrowding forced the emergency department of Burnaby General Hospital to remain closed Tuesday for the fifth consecutive day.

Dr. H. W. Zimmerman, chief of the medical staff, said influenza is partly responsible for the demand for hospital treatment.

"We have had many older people admitted with pneumonia because of 'flu," he said.

Dr. Zimmerman said all hospital beds were filled, except for some in maternity and pediatric, and two stretchers kept available at all times because of regulations.

Several operations have been postponed, the doctor said.

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court jury Tuesday found Santokh Singh Atwal, 24, of Vancouver not guilty by reason of insanity in the axe slaying of a sawmill worker April 26.

Two phychiatrists testified that Atwal was insane when he allegedly attacked co-worker Raneswar Singh Grewel, 31, of Vancouver.

Grewel died almost instantly.

Mr. Justice Harry McKay ordered Atwal to be held in custody at the pleasure of the lieutenant-governor.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ian Manning, former administrator of Surrey Memorial Hospital, has been awarded damages of $25,484 in a judgment handed down Tuesday by Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Manning was fired from his post in March, 1973.

John Baigent, counsel for Manning, said the award would end up at about $10,500 after deducting $8,000 received initially in severance pay, $5,542 in fees earned in the eight months following his dismissal and $1,500 in estimated additional earnings due Manning.

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Gordon Synder of Wonowon, 54 miles north of here, was fined $1,500 in provincial court Monday for shooting three grizzly bears.

Synder pleaded guilty to charges of exceeding tag limits, and was fined $500 for each of three bears he shot in October.

Charges are also pending against two Fort St. John men who took possession of the bear pelts.

A fourth bear which Synder shot was accompanied by a legal tag and was sent to Prince George to be sold.

P. George Rejects Sex Shop

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Joe Payne, 23, a former Victoria resident who wants to open an adult sex shop in Prince George, said Tuesday he will appeal a decision announced Monday in the British Columbia Supreme Court that upheld city council's decision to refuse him a business licence.

Mr. Justice E. D. Fulton ruled that city council had the right under provincial law to exercise a discretion on whether such a licence should be granted and did so reasonably and with the public interest in mind.

The company which wants to open the Garden of Eden, would sell lingerie, bed sheets, printed matter and "adult" items and would allow only adults on the premises. Payne would be manager.

Kelly Covin of Victoria, owner of the Garden of Eden, said he hopes the case will go to the British Columbia Court of Appeal as soon as possible.

SANUCCI ACQUITTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

John Frank Sanucci, 29, was discharged Tuesday on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Mary Margaret Jones, 33, at Roberts Creek last July, but will appear in Victoria Provincial Court Thursday or Friday this week on a deportation order.

In a written judgment in Vancouver Judge J. J. Anderson found there was insufficient evidence to convict the defendant.

Sanucci was originally charged after the woman's death July 12. That charge and one of jumping bail while awaiting a hearing on the first manslaughter charge were later stayed before a coroners' jury opened its inquest into the woman's death.

The inquest jury ruled that Sanucci caused Mrs. Jones' death by a blow or blows. A second charge of manslaughter was then laid.

The two-day preliminary hearing, which began Friday, heard evidence that Mrs. Jones was not in good health for the last few months of her life. The court heard medical testimony that there were no injuries or bruises that could have caused death.

Mrs. Jones died from a ruptured spleen.

Meanwhile, Sanucci has been awaiting deportation. Lyle Hopkins, B.C. immigration director, said Sanucci will be deported to the United States.

That Training Toil Pays Off for Rams

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

When a high school basketball coach starts preparing for a new season with only three holdover players, he might have a penchant for panic.

But not Dale Bate.

Instead of reaching for the panic button, the Mt. Douglas coach sent his Rams through a series of strenuous workouts and arranged a rugged exhibition schedule prior to opening games in the Greater Victoria High School Boys' Basketball League.

And Tuesday night Rams showed the benefits of their toil, trimming Esquimalt Dockers 67-47 on the Mt. Douglas court in one of four season-opening contests.

"Although we've worked hard we still have a long way to go," said Bate after Tuesday's victory. "It's a long season and anything can happen.

"But I am surprised we beat Esquimalt by as much as we did. They have a good club, with some fine talent, and I'm expecting them to be a lot tougher when we play them on their home court."

The only time the Rams trailed was early in the contest, when some weak shooting and turnovers allowed the Dockers to take a 6-0 lead.

It didn't take long for the Rams to settle down. Working inside the Esquimalt defence with consistency, they held an 18-14 lead after the first quarter and extended it to 33-23 at the half. By the end of the third quarter they were ahead 54-35.

Bate believes in matchup defences and Tuesday his defence was far superior. The Rams continually forced their rivals to take long shots while eliminating most rebound opportunities.

Mt. Doug's lone returning starter, John McManaman, had scoring problems, but forward Tom Watson picked up the slack.

Watson not only rebounded well but scored a team high 21 points and played aggressive defence. Rick Shenton added 13 for the Rams.

Ben Shotton topped Esquimalt with 16 points although six-foot-three centre Bob Vanderford was the club's standout, collecting 14 points and most of the team's rebounds.

Bays Start Right

Mark Higgins paced the Bays with 17 points, one better than clubmates Larry Dalziel's 16 points and Steve Pescod's 15.

Stu Montgomery topped the Panthers with 14 points while Richard Nyren added 11.

Reynolds Wins

At Reynolds, the Roadrunners won their opener by edging Dunsmuir Demons 59-52, aided by the 20-point performance of Eric Jones. Greg McGinnis chipped in 18 points for the Roadrunners.

Dave Bayliss hit for 18 points for the Demons while Brian Grant had 14.

Belmont Breezes

In the other game, Belmont Braves coasted to a 77-42 triumph over Claremont Spartans at Claremont High School. Bruce English scored 18 points for the Braves while Grant Westmorland had 12 for the Spartans.

DUNSMUIR (52) — Dave Bayliss 18, Royal Edmondson 10, Greg Witt 10, Brian Grant 14, Dave Shergold, Glen Newman, Gary Newman, Mark Porter.

PARKLAND (53) — Ted Inman 2, Mike Nauss 8, Sean Hunter 8, Fred Clark, Greg Tredgett 6, Steve Akam 4, Jeremy Gye, Lyle LeClair, Richard Nyren 11, Stu Montgomery 14.

ESQUIMALT (47) — Ben Shotton 16, Bob Vanderford 14, Dave Carey 5, Jim Bergin 4, Ron Arcuri 4, Scott Browning 2, Rob Zeitz 2, Larry Wright, Mike Olinek, Wayne Bowie, Neil Clare.

MT. DOUGLAS (67) — Tom Watson 21, Rick Shenton 13, Robert Spanier 9, John McManaman 9, Lee Woodruff 4, Bill Kent 3, Jim McDermott 2, Dale Douglas, Dan Pimlott.

BELMONT (77) — Rob McTavish, Ryan Thibadeau 6, Bruce English 18, Rick Reece 14, Bruce Robertson 7, Len Jansen, Chris Cahan 8, Darrell Johnson 2, Dave English 10, Wayne McChesney, Ken Hilchey 2, Steve Dunbar 10.

CLAREMONT (42) — Gary Gawley 10, Ken Berry 4, Grant Westmorland 12, Raul Estrada 1, Mike Wyatt 4, Rick Merrifield 4, Pat Sabourin 7, Stu Westmorland, Mike Watt.

Girls' Scores Lopsided

All four opening games in the Greater Victoria High School Girls' Basketball League ended in one-sided decisions Tuesday.

Mt. Douglas tripped Esquimalt Dockettes 52-12 for the west victory margin, Belmont Tomahawks outgunned Claremont 41-22, Reynolds Roadrunners hammered Dunsmuir 41-18 and Oak Bay humbled Parkland 45-19.

Bev Gait and Leslie Cross led Mt. Doug with 12 points each while clubmate Lorraine Mosher added 10. Sharon Doherty was high scorer for Esquimalt with eight points.

Sheila Chalmers pace the Tomahawk win with 10 points while Judy Wright sank 12 points in a losing cause for Claremont.

Claire Turner led the well-balanced Roadrunner attack with nine points and eight-point cushions were added by Rhonda Keller and Sharon Levine. Dunsmuire, playing for the first time in the high school league, collected seven points from Cheryl Archer and six from Shelly Canning.

Nine different players provided the points for Oak Bay, led by the 10-point effort of Cindy Bray. Marilyn Benn topped Parkland scorers with nine points.

Okay, Coach—How Old Is a 12-Year-Old?

Okay, so you're a minor hockey player and you're not getting enough ice time. And how can you be a star if you don't get to play?

And it's all the coach's fault too!

Sure it is, most of the time; and the main reason is that he just doesn't recognize the difference between "chronological age" and "physical age" and the importance of the difference in growing children.

Think not? Well, think otherwise. And it all comes under the heading of the intriguing subject:

How old is a 12-year-old hockey player?

This was the rhetorical question posed in a paper recently presented to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association by Dr. William Ross of Simon Fraser's Kinesiology Department and Dr. Robert Hindmarch of UBC's Department of Physical Education.

The theme was simple. Giving evidence that children mature physically at vastly different rates, Ross and Hindmarch suggest this is an important factor for the CAHA to recognize in operating age-class leagues.

And it makes sense. For instance, a 12-year-old may range in "physical age" from nine to 15 depanding on whether he matures early or late, and he may also range in weight from 70 pounds to 150 pounds, and in height from four feet, two inches to five feet, seven inches.

'Wasteful of Talent'

The degree of difference in weight varies according to the "chronological age" in 13-year olds it has been shown that the weight difference can be as much as 113 pounds. So not all youngsters are equal, are they? Yet they play together. And it further suggested by Hindmarch anl Ross that the CAHA conduct mass studies to remedy the situation, which they term wasteful of talent and destructive of personality; and also institute studies of size, stature, shape, proportion, maturation, stamina, strength and flexibility of youngsters.

Now to the coaches. The report stresses that age-class programs are often conducted by well-meaning, but insensitive volunteers who fail to recognize the great variation in physical maturity, and discriminate against under-sized and late-maturing individuals, most of the time solely in the interests of winning.

This, say Ross and Hindmarch, is why Canada is losing some of tomorrow's brightest stars. There is an undue emphasis on winning and the side effect in minor hockey is that others, who may develop later, could turn out to be just as good, and perhaps even better hockey players in the long run, just don't get to play.

So if you are an ectomesomorph beware. That means you are lean and muscular but are slower to develop than a mesomorph. That's the robust type with well-developed muscle, heart and circulatory systems, obviously better equipped to play hockey, and usually the youngster who gets all the breaks early.

Of course, if you are an endomorph, you've got a problem too. You're short and heavy, and there's not much you can do about that, is there? Except to learn to skate, and hit, or play goal and hope things change for the better.

Tab That Ectomesomorph

So the real problem rests with the ectomesomorphs. Forced to play in an age-class league late-developing youngsters usually have less opportunity to play and consequently less opportunity to develop their skills. Through frustration they may drop out of hockey never realizing their full potential.

Allowed to play and develop, however, they may become the best players of all as a result of having a physical build more appropriate for the game.

Hockey isn't the end-all of the report. Because Ross and Hindmarch question the ability of hockey as a primary means of developing physical fitness and place the onus on schools to establish programs for all young Canadians. They suggest the need for a federally-sponsored service to provincial departments of education which, upon request, would certify those schools conducting adequate fitness and recreation programs for all children medically able to participate.

This, besides being the ultimate, will take time.

But until then, come on coach! Give that endomorph a chance. Better still, take a look down the bench and pick out an ectomorph (he'll be the skinny one), or especially an ectomesomorph (he'll be lean, too, but more muscular), and give them an extra shift or two.

They may be better than you think. And if not right now, later.

See you in the finals.

One Loser Becomes Winner After Stealing Spotlight

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

It was Brandon coach Norm Johnson's idea, but a loser came up a winner Tuesday night.

"It's the least I can do," Johnson said after he laid out a bonus for goaltender Glen Hanlon. The 17-year-old earned the monetary reward and the respect of 2,112 Victoria fans with his shot-stopping heroics display against the Cougars at Memorial Arena.

The Cougars won the Western Canada Hockey League encounter, 4-1, but Hanlon stole the show.

Hanlon made 52 saves, including 22 in the second period, as the fired-up Cougars extended a home-ice undefeated streak to 15 games. At the other end, Victoria goalie Lloyd Saar was called upon to make only 13 stops.

Victoria dominated each and every period, but the result was in doubt until Jim Gustafson and Dan Lucas fired third-period goals. Cougars took a 2-0 lead in the first session on goals by Greg Miazga and Rick Peter. It was 2-1 after the second, but the game would have been out of Brandon's reach if it hadn't been for Hanlon.

The Wheat Kings, who face the Cougars again tonight, simply lacked a defence. Part of the problem might have been the absence of forward Bob Mullett, who came down with the flu Sunday, and defenceman Dale Anderson, who suffered a leg injury.

Hanlon didn't think this was the night. He foiled Morris twice on clear-cut breaks.

Cairns will join injured Curt Fraser on the sidelines today. An elbow injury will keep Fraser out of action for at least another week while Cairns is scheduled to undergo surgery today.

With the Cougars not scheduled to play again until they visit Edmonton on Jan. 17, Cairns will go into hospital to have polyps scraped from his throat.

Fifth Cat Picked For Stars

Victoria Cougars will have the most and the youngest representatives on the Western division team in next week's Western Canada Hockey League all-star game.

A fifth Victoria player was named to the all-star team Tuesday. He is defenceman Gordie Roberts, one of seven players added to round out the 19-player Western Division lineup.

In addition to Roberts, others added Tuesday were Barry Smith and Brian Shmyr of New Westminster Bruins, Greg Vaydik and Barry Dean of Medicine Hat Tigers, and Brad Gassoff and Neil Lyseng of Kamloops Chiefs.

Cougars selected last week were defenceman Rick LaPointe, centre Mel Bridgman, wingers Pete Morris and Dan Lucas.

Lucas is 16 and Roberts 17, the youngest of the players participating in next Tuesday's game at Memorial Arena.

Victoria's Pat Ginnell will manage the team while Harvey Roy of Kamloops will coach the western squad. Additions to the eastern team managed by Del Wilson of Regina Pats and coached by Jackie McLeod of Saskatoon Blades, are expected to be announced today.

REGINA HOOP FUTURE DIM

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

It's inconceivable that a team could finish its basketball season on Jan. 7, but that's the way it is for Regina University Cougars.

The Cougars, playing exhibition games this season after dropping out of the Great Plains Conference, ended their schedule by losing 70-62 to University of Victoria Vikings Tuesday night in the final game in the old UVic gym. Vikings and Vikettes move into the new McKinnon Building for their next home games Jan. 17 and 18 against Lethbridge Pronghorns.

Vikings weren't at all sharp, shooting only 33 per cent from the floor, and didn't pull away until the final five minutes. It was a different story for Regina, which finished its season with a 2-18 won-lost mark, including four losses — two to UBC Thunderbirds and one each to Simon Fraser Clansmen and the Vikings — in four nights.

"We were just starting to jell tonight," said coach Gene Rizak, a former UBC star who played for Vancouver Gracers in the mid-1960s and helped them to a Canadian senior "A" championship.

The future of intercollegiate basketball is cloudy at Regina, mainly because of apathy on the part of the school's 3,500 students. The administration may take over the sports program from the students, but that decision hasn't been reached.

REGINA (62) — Grant Engel, Brian Johnson 16, Jeff Loffler, Mike Marloran 22, Terry Michell, Gen Novak 12, Bo Rasmussen 6, Ebi Vahdati, Skip Campbell 6.

VIKINGS (70) — Jim Dudderidge 12, Pard Hogeweide 4, Bert Zethof 3, Evan Jones, Dave Mulcahy 11, Doug Mosher 14, Lorne Dakin 15, Rob Parris 7, Dale Macdonald, Dave Speed 4.

SCHOOL SPORTS

By Jim Crerar

Proposals to stage province-wide championships at the junior high school level in B.C. have been popping up like a jack-in-the-box over the last three years. Each time the lid has been firmly closed.

Proponents would like to adopt the same format as the province's senior high schools, which compete each year for B.C. titles in 20 sanctioned events.

"The idea has come up at the last three annual general meetings," said Don Steen of Vancouver, executive-secretary of the B.C. Federation of School Athletic Associations. "It's been pretty well unanimous not to recognize junior high school championships at the provincial level."

Travel costs are the main stumbling block.

"Vancouver schools feel the travel costs they now have are critical," Steen said, "but they don't compare with those of some schools." He used as an example Mount Elizabeth Junior High in Kitimat, which he said must spend $10,000 to $12,00 a year transporting teams to competitions in its own area.

Schools frequently raise their own travel money and last year the B.C. federation's lottery subsidized transportation to the extent of $27,000.

There are no over-all figures on travel costs, but Steen estimates that senior high schools spend between $60,000 and $75,000 annually, exclusive of food and lodging.

Principals and superintendents are understandably reluctant to add such a large financial commitment at the junior secondary level.

Junior schools, meanwhile, will continue to compete in sanctioned events at the zone level, including Vancouver Island. In some cases, junior secondary athletes will still be permitted to compete provincially in senior high school events like swimming and track and field.

In addition there are a growing number of weekend invitational events bringing together schools from different zones.

It was just such an event — a province-wide basketball tournament for junior high schools — that brought the matter of B.C. finals to a head. The tournament came to be regarded as a provincial championship, even though the B.C. Federation never recognized it as such.

That stand was overwhelmingly endorsed by principals and superintendents four years ago and has been reaffirmed each succeeding year.

At last May's annual meeting of the BCFSAA, the matter was referred to the federation's board of directors and a committee headed by Robin Temoin of Prince George has since been studying the idea.

But unless the committee can work out a solution to the financial problems, the status probably will remain unchanged.

BRAIN STRAIN FOR COACHES

WASHINGTON (CP) — There will be further strain on the cerebral powers of coaches in the Canadian Football League when the 1975 season gets underway.

Because of a rule change approved Tuesday, they will have to decide after touchdowns whether to play it safe and kick for a single point or gamble by running or passing for two points.

The ball will be spotted on the five and the attacking club may try for a single point by placement or go for two points under the change approved at the annual meeting of the CFL's rules committee.

Under the old rule, the ball was spotted on the 10-yard line for the point-after attempt.

The two-point conversion has been in effect in United States and Canadian college football for several years and is used in many Canadian high school leagues as well.

The rule-makers decided not to let defensive teams wipe out field goals by running them back from the end zone, but did add a third option for teams that have just given up three points.

As in the past, the team scored upon may take take the ball on its own 35 or may kick off from that spot. The new option is that of having the scoring team kick off from its own 35-yard line.

Instead of the ball coming back to the 25 after a single, it will come back to the 35-yard line. Hap Shouldice, chief of officials, said that change will give "better field position right off the bat for the teams scored against."

When a penalty is called for unnecessary roughness this season, the victimized team will get an automatic first down in addition to the 15 yards called for under last year's rules.

Bowhunting in Saanich Most Logical Solution

A great deal of criticism has been bandied about in the media during recent weeks over the fish and wildlife branch decision to open a bowhunting season on deer in the Saanich Peninsula.

And, most of the opposition seems to be founded in pure emotionalism rather than through due consideration of the facts.

It must be remembered that there is a nuisance problem brought about by an expanded deer population in the area and increased crop damage has made some method of control mandatory.

Concede that point and the following should convince you a bowhunting season provides the only logical solution to the problem.

In this paper and elsewhere, it has been suggested that a bevy of trained conservation officers should be responsible for culling the population.

Granted, this would be much more efficient. But, with the high density of human population in the area, how are conservation officers going to be able to shoot the animals? Rifle bullets and shotgun projectiles carry an amazing distance and could pose a threat to residents.

And, who would be willing to pick up the tab for having the numbers of control officers in the field necessary to do an adequate job? It's not likely Saanich taxpayers would welcome the increased cost of keeping farmers in business.

On the other hand, flying arrows have a very limited range and even expert bowmen never try to shoot an animal further away than 40 yards. Beyond that distance, accuracy falls off rapidly.

Bowhunters also pay the extra cost of administering the season through a special licence they must purchase in addition to the regular hunting permit.

Another charge being voiced against bowhunting is over the wounding of animals.

As mentioned before, an archer must be close to make a killing shot and inexperienced bowmen are more likely to miss the animal entirely than to wound it. Even if an animal sustains a wound, there is more likelihood of recovery from the clean slice of a broadhead arrow than from the tear left by a mushrooming bullet.

A study on the relative effectiveness of hunting with a rifle or bow in California serves to drive this point home.

Deer hit with a bullet travelled an average of 420 yards before succumbing and only 44.6 were recovered immediately. In contrast, deer hit with an arrow went only 260 yards on the average with a 95 per cent recovery rate.

Many hours of constant practice are needed before a bowhunter can even think about bagging an animal. My own aching muscles and fingers attest to this fact and I'm not yet convinced that I'm ready to go afield.

You've probably noticed the remarkable restraint I've used until now to avoid mentioning the anti-hunting crowd, which has been responsible for a great deal of the criticism.

So, here it is, short and simple.

Only vegetarians who shun leather shoes and belts have any legitimate right to censure hunters. Everyone else merely delegates the act of killing to another person.

But that's another story — for later.

Above all, everyone — archers included — should remember this bowhunting season is an experiment in wildlife management which could have far-reaching consequences.

Man, through his encroaching residential sprawl, has driven most of the deer's natural predators off the peninsula.

Now we have come to a time of reckoning.

Pair of Upsets In Cup Soccer

LONDON (CP) — Stafford Rangers completed a triple triumph for England's minor-league soccer teams when they defeated fourth-division Rotherham United, 2-0, Tuesday to advance to the fourth round of the Football Association Cup.

Stafford won away from home in its third-round replay to join non-league teams Wimbledon and Leatherhead in the next round.

In another big upset, Manchester United, leaders of the second division, fell to third-division Walsall, 3-2, in extra time at Walsall.

In other third-round replays there were no surprises as Everton blanked Altrincham, 2-0; Middlesbrough beat Wycombe Wanderers, 1-0; Queen's Park Rangers defeated Southend United, 2-0; and Arsenal topped York City, 3-1, as Brian Kidd scored three goals. Hull City and Fulham tied, 2-2, after extra time and a goal 30 seconds from the end enabled Bury to tie Millwall, 1-1, in extra time.

But the story of the day was the part-timers from Stafford moving into the fourth round of England's premier soccer tournament.

Goals by Stuart Chapman and Mick Cullerton earned Stafford a homegame against Peterborough United, members of the third-division. Wimbledon, which eliminated Burnley, 1-0, Saturday, meets first-division Leeds United in the fourth round Jan. 25 and Leatherhead 1-0 winners of Brighton in the third round, takes on first-division Leicester City.

Bernie Wright gave Walsall a 1-0 lead in the 21st minute but Gerry Daly scored on a penalty shot in the 37th minute to tie the score for Manchester and send the game into overtime.

Wycombe players were cheered off the pitch by Middlesbrough after losing 1-0 to the first division club on a goal by David Armstrong.

Bob Latchford and Mick Lyons each scored a goal to lead Everton to victory over Altrincham. The losers held Everton to a shock 1-1 away-from-home tie Saturday.

McLachlan Brothers Pace Gulls

Brian McLachlan scored three goals and his younger brother, Barry, fired two to lead Juan de Fuca Gulls to a 7-3 victory over Saanich Braves in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game Tuesday night at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Colin Cleland and Darryl Ball completed the Juan de Fuca scoring while Mike Shemilt, Brian Cooper and Kim Bowles scored for Braves, who suffered their sixth straight loss and have only managed a tie in their past 12 games.

California Beckons City Cars

If at first you don't succeed . . .

That's obviously the motto for owners, drivers and crews of two Victoria cars entered in a pair of major races Jan. 18 and 19 at Riverside, Calif.

Ross Surgenor has entered the Permatex 200 late model race Jan. 18 for the third year in a row. He'll be driving his 1968 Ford Torino. Two years ago Surgenor finished 15th after having mechanical problems and last year blew an engine in the qualifying run. This year's qualifying test is this Sunday and Surgenor will be out to duplicate the 1971 Permatex victory by Victoria super stock champion Gary Kershaw, only Canadian driver to win the event.

Portland's Hershel McGriff, meanwhile, will pilot a 1974 Chevelle owned by Victoria's Dick Midgley in the Winston Western 500 at Riverside Jan. 19.

The car, built in McGriff's Portland shop just before last November's Times 500 run at Ontario, Calif., had engine problem during qualifying and did not compete.

McGriff will be in against five-time Grand National champion Richard Petty, winner of the Winston Western in 1969 and 1972; USAC driver A. J. Foyt, the 1970 winner; last year's winner, Cale Yarborough; David Pearson, Bobby Allison and several other top drivers. Qualifying is Jan. 17 and 18 and 35 cars will make the starting grid.

McGriff, last summer's Canada 200 winner at Western Speedway, will drive his own 1969 Chevelle in the Permatex race, which he has won three times.

Capitals Leave Bruins Speechless

By The Canadian Press

The high-flying Boston Bruins rolled into the Capital Centre at Landover, Md., Tuesday night and took on Washington Capitals, consistent losers this National Hockey League season.

The Bruins, who had road wins over Los Angeles Kings and Minnesota North Stars late last week, met a club that had managed only two goals in its last three games and had been blanked in its last two outings.

The Bruins had smashed the Capitals 10-4 and 12-1 in Boston earlier in the season, and expected another successful night. But the Capitals battled to a 3-3 tie, and the shocked Bruins players didn't want to talk about it.

In other action, California Seals surprised St. Louis Blues 3-2 and New York Islanders downed Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3.

The Bruins banned reporters from their dressing room after the game.

"They're in a bad mood," said coach Don Cherry. "They're very tired. They just feel very bad in there.

The Islanders announced they had acquired centre Jude Drouin from Minnesota North Stars in exchange for veteran right winger Craig Cameron.

The deal was described as the second part of a trade last Sunday which saw the Islanders acquire Jean-Paul Parise in exchange for Doug Rombough and Ernie Hicke.

All He Wanted Was a Chance

By The Canadian Press

Phoenix right winger Howie Young had nothing to complain about after the Roadrunners edged Toronto Toros 3-2 in a World Hockey Association game Tuesday night.

The 37-year-old veteran, who contends he has not been getting enough ice time with the Roadrunners, played a regular shift against the Toros and helped set up the last two Phoenix goals.

First he set up a first-period goal by Michel Cormier to give Phoenix a 2-1 lead. Then he got the second assist on John Migneault's insurance goal in the third period.

Quebec Nordiques edged Michigan Stags 3-2 in overtime to increase their lead. In Tuesday's other WHA games, Minnesota Fighting Saints beat Chicago Cougars 4-2, Indianapolis Racers topped Vancouver Blazers 4-2, San Diego Mariners defeated New England Whalers 5-3 and Winnipeg Jets tied Cleveland Crusaders 4-4.

MODEL WEDS FATHER OF HER CHILDREN

MONTREAL — Kahn-Tineta Horn, director of policy planning with the department of Indian affairs (left), has married her long-time companion Dr. George Miller, she announced Tuesday.

Miss Horn, 32, a former model and Indian activist, said she plans to remain with department of Indian affairs in Ottawa "for the foreseeable future" while Dr. Miller, 43, said he will stay in La Macaza, Que., as director of Manitou College, an Indian institution, for "another year before I go to graduate school."

The couple said they spend weekends together at the Caughnawaga Reserve near Montreal with their three children, Ojistoh, 3, Kahente, 2, and Yoseres, 1.

The couple had planned to marry last June but a month before the wedding date they announced the nuptials had been cancelled.

Miss Horn, a Mohawk from the Caughnawagwa Reserve and Dr. Miller, an Indian from the Six Nations Indian Reserve in Brantford, Ont., met 12 years ago at an Indian convention in Niagara Falls.

George III Is Charles' Idol . . .

LONDON — Prince Charles came to the defence of his ancestor King George III today, claiming the king was a conscientious, discreet monarch unjustly blamed for the American Revolution.

Charles, in a copyrighted two-part interview with the London Evening Standard published Tuesday and today, said he would like to be most like George III than any other British monarch in the last 1,000 years.

He first became interested in George III "because people had gone on for years and years in the history books describing him as the 'Mad Monarch'," he said.

This has tended to obscure George III's talents as patron of science and the arts and his character as a fine country gentleman.

"A lot of people would regard this as boring because he didn't do what Charles II reportedly did and have affairs with all sorts of delectable ladies," said the prince.

In Tuesday's section of the interview, Charles said he was lonely, has no particular girl-friend and gets some rough treatment from the press.

"The older I get the more alone I become," said the prince.

People who push their friendship on him usually have some ulterior motive, he added.

"The nicest people are those who won't come up and make themselves known," he said.

On marriage, he said he believes the real basis for lifelong happiness is "basically a very strong friendship" rather than romantic infatuation.

"My marriage has to be forever," he said.

"Obviously there are certain people I've thought of . . . But I wouldn't say anybody in particular at this moment."

He was mildly critical of the treatment he gets in some newspapers — particularly the headlines that built up over a recent visit to a pub in Cornwall and his request to try scrumpy, the rough local cider.

"Everyone must think I'm an alcoholic," he said.

Part of the loneliness in his life results from the impossibility of moving around without being recognized, he said.

Asked if he ever uses disguises, the prince said:

"It's quite pointless. I tried it once . . . I just looked like me trying not to look like me."

The prince is a lieutenant in the Royal Navy. Last week he decided to continue as a naval helicopter pilot rather than take a ship command.

Robot Ordered For Bomb Squad

LONDON (CP) — A robot detector, capable of defusing bombs by remote control, has been ordered by Scotland Yard. The device, already in use in Northern Ireland, has a television camera for inspecting the bomb and a shotgun for destroying the mechanism or carrying out a controlled explosion.

Wire Walker Hurt in Topple

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Philippe Petit, the aerialist who stunned New Yorkers by walking a wire strung between the towers of Manhattan's World Trade Centre, was injured in a 25-foot fall Tuesday while practicing for a circus debut.

Witnesses said he appeared to have landed on his right side and suffered injuries to either his hip or pelvis. He was conscious when he left the arena and there was no indication of broken limbs.

NEW YORK — Betty Hutton, the "blonde bombshell" whose frenetic energy was one of the wonders of Hollywood in the 1940s, is planning a comeback. The former song-and-dance star was released last week from hospital following treatment for a nervous breakdown. A spokesman said "She's begun thinking about the new act, which she wants Sammy Cahn to write for her."

* * *

NEW DELHI — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi suggested to mourn the death of Railways Minister Lalit Narayan Mishra in a bomb blast, Mrs. Tuesday that her enemies may be plotting to assassinate her. Speaking at a rally called Ghandi said the "explosion was a part of a dangerous plan and only a rehearsal."

"I am not afriad of death," he added.

ATHENS — About 100 Greek actors, including actress Melina Mercouri, and some 2,000 youths protested Tuesday against the arrest and alleged torture of political prisoners in Chile. The demonstrators, holding placards reading Down With the Junta and Down With the CIA, marched to the Chilean and United States embassies but after handing in written protests dispersed quietly.

LOS ANGELES — Mubarem Kurbegovic, the alleged alphabet bomber, is a "raving maniac," a psychiatrist told a sanity trial Tuesday. Dr. John Walters testified that Kurbegovic is mentally incapable of understanding the charges against him or aiding in his defence. The sanity hearing is to determine whether Kurbegovic is mentally competent to stand trial on three murder charges and other counts.

TORONTO — Saturday Night officials say they hope a fund-raising campaign will net $50,000 by Jan. 15 to allow an expanded rebirth of the magazine, which stopped publication last October. Editor Robert Fulford and board chairman Edgar Cowan are cautious in their optimism that the campaign, which had raised $43,100 by Monday, will reach $50,000 — the last piece of a refinancing package of $400,000 which includes $250,000 from private investors and a $100,000 grant from Imperial Oil of Canada.

WEATHERMAN WITH FROG IN THROAT

PEKING — A peasant weather observer in Honan province forecasts the weather — by listening to the croaking of frogs . . . with more than 80 per cent accuracy.

The official Hsinhua news agency said a folk proverb claims that "a downpour coincides with frog croaking."

But Chang Chi-tsai has found it isn't as simple as the ancients thought.

He says that if frogs croak on a fine day, it will rain in two days. If frogs croak after rain, it will be fine weather. If frogs do not croak after successive overcast days, it will continue to rain.

Helen Isn't Ready

LOS ANGELES — Australian-born singer Helen Reddy tops the 1974 list of Ten Worst-Dressed Women, the list's creator, designer Earl Blackwell, said Tuesday.

"She simply isn't ready," Blackwell said of the pop singer.

But he reserved the all-time "worst" for actress Elizabeth Taylor.

He told reporters Miss Taylor has figured most prominently in the list in the 15 years it has been compiled by him.

"There's too many yards of flesh for too few inches of fabric. She could be the most gorgeous woman in the world.

CONSUMERS FEARED

WINNIPEG (CP) — An official of Westfair Foods Ltd. strongly defended the grocery industry Tuesday against complaints by consumer groups, but predicted increasing consumer discontent in the future.

M. D. Booty, company vice-president and former head of the Canadian Grocery Distributers' Institute, said the industry has been among the most consumer-oriented and has not enjoyed unreasonably high profits.

"Despite the current climate of consumer frustration, it is fair to say that consumers would still rate us more innovative than department stores, more competitive than banks and fairer in our dealings with customers than automobile dealers," he said.

At the same time, however, Booty said the frequent contact between grocers and shoppers at a time of rising prices in general has made the industry "the whipping boy of inflation."

Booty expressed particular concern about a Manitoba government study into the possibility of establishing a chain of publicly-owned and operated food stores.

Such a chain heavily subsidized by general tax revenues could freeze out competition although consumer prices would rise markedly in the long run because of government inefficiency and bureaucracy, he said.

Desparate Man Crying for Help

the prairies

CALGARY (CP) — A 20-year-old man, arrested following a four-hour shooting incident Tuesday, was described by medical sources as "a desparate man crying out for help."

Dallas Wittman was taken to hospital for mental examination after a gunman fired about a dozen shots from a high-rise apartment. There were no injuries and police did not return the gunman's fire.

The man is suffering from brain damage and is considered to be retarded, he added.

Wittman's action was triggered by a gunfight here Dec. 20 which left a police detective and a gunman dead and six police officers wounded, he added.

The medical source said the publicity given the shoot-out gave Wittman the idea that he could draw attention to himself and his personal problems by recreating a similar incident.

Wittman surrendered to police after talking to Dr. Keith Pearce head of psychiatry at Foothills Hospital and the University of Calgary.

Dr. Pearce declined to discuss the incident, but credited police with avoiding another bloody confrontation.

The incident was markedly different than the Dec. 20 shoot-out, which involved more than 200 police and an armored personnel carrier from Canadian Forces Base Calgary.

LIE TO GET $135 COSTS 9 MONTHS

EDMONTON (CP) — A man who pleaded guilty to lying under oath during a civil action hearing in small claims court has been sentenced to nine months in jail for perjury.

Mr. Justice G. H. Allen said in passing sentence on Adrian Sites, 35, of Edmonton that perjury is committed "far too frequently."

Allen decided that a $500 fine and six-month probation period earlier imposed on sites was inadequate.

Sites pleaded guilty to lying under oath in an action involving claims for two separate automobile accidents in an attempt to collect $135.

Charges of attempting to fabricate evidence and attempted fraud were also laid against Sites but were not proceeded with, according to the Crown attorney's office.

Grain Report By June: Prober

SASKATOON (CP) — Mr. Justice E. D. Bayda of Queen's Bench Court in Saskatchewan, who is investigating labor-management relations at West Coast grain terminals, hopes to have his report completed by June.

He plans to travel to Vancouver within the next two weeks to meet management representatives and has already met with groups of employees at the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, Alberta Wheat Pool and Burrard Terminals.

He intends to hold public hearings "but I can't say where or when at this time."

DOCTORS VOTE

REGINA (CP) — Members of the Saskatchewan Medical Association are voting on a mediator's proposal for a settlement in their dispute with the provincial government over fee schedules.

Association Executive Secretary, Dr. E. H. Baergen, said Tuesday results of the vote will likely be known sometime next week.

A government negotiator, G. C. Patchett, executive director of the Medical Care Insurance Commission, said the government is "prepared to look very favorably" at the proposal.

The government and medical representatives have been negotiating for more than a year for a contract and fee schedule for doctors' services under the provincial medical care insurance plan.

Man, 63, Jailed for Morals

REGINA (CP) — A 63-year-old Regina-area farmer was sentenced Tuesday to 30 days in jail after being convicted of soliciting in Regina.

"If ladies of the night should be punished, then those who entice them should receive equal punishment," Judge J. J. Flynn said in passing sentence.

The court heard evidence that the man called a 20-year-old woman over to his car and that negotiations broke down over the price.

After the farmer said he is married, with children aged 29 and 24, Judge Flynn said "and this girl was younger than your own children; does you wife know you're in court?"

After the man said no, the judge noted that "she's going to wonder where you are for the next 30 days."

Athlete Talks About Discrimination He Hasn't Felt

Racial discrimination, what's that?

Ask Amarjit Hundal and it's almost as though he had never heard of the term. And that's good. But get him on the subject of jet flights and holidays that turn into whirlwind courtships and marriage and he knows all about it. Only too well.

In Monday's Times there was a story with a low-keyed warning that discrimination against East Indians was "lurking" behind the scenes in Victoria and that trouble could flare up the way it has done in Vancouver. But Amarjit doesn't believe it.

It's more than four years since Amarjit came here from India's northern Punjab State. "And in that time, I've never had a single experience where anyone has discriminated against me, not in my work nor where I live — not anywhere," he says.

If you think back, though, it's only a year since Amarjit, a tall and strikingly good-looking athlete, pulled his all-East Indian Tigers team out of the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association. The charge: discrimination.

But Amarjit relaxes in his comfortable modern apartment, pours you a beer, and quickly explains that the Tigers felt then that they were being discriminated against by some of the referees not because of their race but because they had a "strong team and were winning all the time."

Now the Tigers are back in the league and they are glad and so are the men's field hockey officials.

In his work and private life, Amarjit has been treated no differently to those born right here in Canada. "We (he shares the Maplewood Green apartment with Parmjit Atwal) have been in this building for two years and there has been no trouble. And in my work I am head shipper for Maplewood Poultry Ltd. and hold the most important job in the plant, so there is certainly no discrimination there."

Parmjit joins us and sits quietly listening to the talk and then says almost as quietly that he is starting into weightlifting, drives a truck for a firm that cleans chimneys and furnaces and no, he has never been discriminated against in the two years and four months he has been in Canada.

Amarjit grins, nods toward his roommate and says: "The guy he works for likes him so much — they are just like family."

But Amarjit admits it has been easier for him than for many East Indians coming to Canada. He is well educated, has a university degree and for 10 years was a technician in the Indian Air Force. He represented his country's air force team in international field hockey, India's national game.

"I had travelled so much in India, been to university and read so much about this way of life that I didn't have any problem adjusting to it," says Amarjit. However, lots of other East Indians coming to Canada, almost all of whom come from Punjab State, know little of life here and have language problems as well, he explains.

"All the five fingers are not equal," Amarjit offers kind of wisely. "There are bad members of every society and there are probably 10 times as many East Indians in Vancouver as there are in Victoria. In a big city like that, anything can happen."

And then Amarjit smiles hugely as he tells of his holiday in England that turned into a wedding in India.

One of six children, Amarjit flew to London to visit a sister who lives in the predominantly East Indian suburb of Southall. After two and-a-half weeks of living it up in Britain, Amarjit was all set to come back to Canada. Then he was jolted back to Indian reality. He received a telegram from his parents summoning him to return home.

Like an obedient son, he was on the plane the next day.

"And when I got to India, my parents had this girl in mind for me: so they wanted me to see her and see if I wanted to get married or not," he explains. "Somehow, we liked each other and decided to get married."

His bride, Abnash, a 27-year-old teacher with a masters degree and State champion in both javelin and discus, will join him in Canada in about three months.

Yes, says Amarjit, most marriages are still arranged in India, "but they do ask your consent — nothing was final until I said yes."

There was, he said, no hitch in his marrying a Canadian girl, if he wanted to. But he just didn't find the "right one" in his four years here and his parents obviously felt he'd had long enough to look and that, at age 33, it was time he was wed.

"I didn't plan it would happen within two weeks like that," says Amarjit. "It's a pretty short time." It was so short, in fact, that there wasn't even time to arrange the usual grand wedding ceremony. "It was just a small family affair with a few close friends."

Roommate Parmjit, too, would quite like a trip home to India but he's playing it cool right now. At 23, he figures he's got plenty of time before someone lines him up with a bride.

Except for a small placard on the wall with the Sikh National Anthem inscribed in both English and Hindu, it's just like your average Canadian apartment. And then, why shouldn't it be? Here are two likeable guys fitting in so well and, without trying too hard, on their way to becoming "average Canadians."

There is an echo, a chorus of "Don't go" as you rise, an offer to "share our meal," which smelled so great that I wish now that I had, and at the door there is sincerity.

"Do visit us sometimes," says Amarjit. And Parmjit adds quickly: "Yes, just pop in."

Thanks, indeed, I will.

Cruiser Burns, Sinks

A 24-foot pleasure boat caught fire and sank at Centre Shipyards, 130 Kingston, early this morning.

The boat, valued at $14,000 and owned by Joe Levine, assistant manager of the shipyard, was destroyed. Levine said he carried insurance for only half value.

Victoria firemen attended at 12:33 a.m. after nearby apartment residents turned in the alarm.

But by the time firemen arrived the boat, which had been tied to a float near the shipyard way, had burned to the waterline.

No sooner had firemen turned their hoses on the burning boat than it sank in 10 feet of water.

The fire ignited a boatshed but firemen were able to extinguish the blaze before any damage was done.

No one was aboard Levine's boat at the time.

A fire department spokesman said the fire appeared to have been caused by a short circuit in an electric cord supplying power to the boat.

Levine said the stern line had burned off allowing the boat to swing away from the float and helped prevent the fire from spreading to other boats.

Passmore 'Freedom'

Les Passmore, who retired in December after 33 years on Saanich council, will be given the freedom of Saanich at a ceremony at 8 p.m. Jan. 31 in the Cedar Hill Community Centre.

Passmore, along with a score of other residents, sat quietly in the council chamber this week as council voted to confer the honor.

Passmore will become the fourth resident to receive the freedom of Saanich, the others being Maj.-Gen. George R. Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes and well-known conservationist Freeman King.

YOUNG

Early Start Refused

City aldermen Tuesday ignored a plea by the Construction Association of Victoria for a one-hour earlier starting time on construction activity during dark winter days.

The public works committee recommended the city adhere to its present policy, which under the noise prevention bylaw prohibits construction except between the hours of 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

The Construction Association had requested a 7 a.m. starting time, pointing out in a letter that during November, December and January the combination of restricted daylight working hours and bad weather "substantially" curtails the industry's output.

But aldermen couldn't agree what to do with the request, and ended up doing nothing by giving it the "received and filed" treatment.

Among the suggestions tossed out were one from Ald. Mike Young, that the earlier start be allowed because "the paper boy wakes you anyway;" and from Ald. Sam Bawlf, that the 7 a.m. concession be allowed only in the downtown area and exclude blasting.

THE SUB COMPACT

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The Victoria Real Estate Board thinks it has a better idea to solve the housing shortage — the $35,000 house.

It's not your usual house.

And it's not your deluxe model. No fancy carpets. No expensive fixtures. Possibly the inside walls would be unpainted.

But it's inexpensive, as new houses go.

At the present time, new three-bedroom houses in the Victoria area sell between $52,000 and $60,000. This is for a three-bedroom, one-and-a-half bathroom home of about 1,200 square feet on a lot 60 feet by 120 feet.

The real estate board says municipalities in 1975 should consider altering their zoning regulations to permit smaller lots and smaller houses.

Lots could be reduced to 30 feet by 60 feet, large enough for a two-bedroom starter home, the board says. These would have a basement and single bathroom but no carpets on the floors.

The main purpose behind it all would be to enable young couples to buy a new house for $35,000.

Buying a new house is better than buying an old one, the board reasons, because the ancient $35,000 special can contain unpleasant surprises, like the need for new wiring or a new roof.

Young couples would rather do a little work themselves in the form of painting rather than have to hire someone to carry out expensive repair jobs on an older house.

The sub compact model home would serve a double function in Victoria — as a starter for young couples and as a retirement home, which is in high demand here.

Victoria builders say it is feasible to construct a $35,000 home if lots are made small enough. Each foot frontage costs $350. If a 60-foot lot costs $22,000, a 30-foot lot would cost about $11,000.

The sub compact home described by the board could, indeed, be constructed for just over $20,000, making an end price of about $35,000 for house and lot.

The builders and the real estate board agree the main problem is a reluctance on the part of municipalities to reducing lot size.

Saanich is the core municipality where most single family homes are being constructed at the present time.

Mayor Ed Lum called the real estate board proposal an interesting idea but not necessarily a better idea.

The problem, he said, is the cost of servicing land, which narrows down to the rather prosaic topic of sewers. Saanich is geared to a moderate-sized sewer system based upon about 15 people per acre.

The real estate board's proposal would result in about 35 to 40 people per acre. This would force Saanich to redesign its sewer system, an expensive undertaking.

"If the real estate board comes to us on an official basis with a plan of this nature we will run it through our planning department for an opinion. However, on the surface it seems to present insurmountable difficulties, at least for 1975."

It appeared to be a case of a rather imaginative idea running aground because of the high cost of services, he said.

"However, it is certainly worth looking at."

While it was not certain the idea could get off the ground in 1975 because of municipal reluctance, there was considerable controversy both within the board and among builders as to whether Victorians were really interested in cut rate housing.

"The problem is not simply inflation, but an inflation of expectations," a board member said. "People want more and more each year. It is the fancy car that sells, not the plain Jane model."

However, houses are not cars. And the majority of the board felt Victorians would be interested in saving $15,000 or $20,000 on the cost of a new house, even if it was small and plain.

One major Victoria builder wasn't so sure. He said Victorians could buy a three-bedroom condominium for the same price of the sub compact two-bedroom home. He doubted many would put up with the limited space for the sake of personal independence associated with home ownership.

Particularly when it was temporary accommodation in any case.

The second time the wife gets pregnant, it's game over for the two-bedroom home.

He said most young couples seem to want to rent until they can afford to buy the three-bedroom home, preferably the deluxe model.

These are soon going to cost in the price range of $60,000 — to start.

Meanwhile, the real estate board plans to try to sell young couples — and municipalities — on the idea of the $35,000 subcompact for 1975.

SECOND SECTION

Laid Off Employees Must Be Reimbursed

A Victoria legal research company, Victro Registry Services, has been ordered by the B.C. Labor Relations Board to reimburse two employees for lost wages.

In a 14-page decision, the board found the company violated a section of the Labor Code which prohibits discipline and discharge because of union activity.

The Service Employees International Union sought $604.28 for Wayne Murdoch, but not his reinstatement because he has other work, and $391.88 and holiday pay for James Ubukata, who has been rehired on a part-time basis.

The board said the company notified both men last August they were being laid off for economic reasons. But it said the company has failed to discharge the burden of proof "and the layoff of both Murdoch and Ubukata occurred because of their participation in the trade union.

"The two decisions of the employer, to cut back 50 per cent of its work and lay off a number of its employees, were an immediate and not very subtle reminder to anyone who was employed by this employer that it is not healthy economically to be involved with the union."

The board ordered the company to pay Murdoch $4.75 an hour for loss of wages between Aug. 23 and Sept. 11, plus holiday pay, and to pay Ubukata $4.75 an hour for 15 part-time shifts between Aug. 23 and Sept. 16, plus holiday pay.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you let me know if Jennifer Jones is alive or not. If not, when did she pass on? B.A.

A. Jones is still alive, and can be seen in the movie The Towering Inferno, now showing in Victoria, in which she falls to her death from the height of 80 storeys.

Q. Could you please tell me which is the most frequently used word in the English language? — M.B.

A. Most common in order of usage are: the, of, and, to, a, in, that, is, I, it, for and as. The most used in conversation is "I," says the Guinness Book of Records.

Museum Buys Shop Contents

The contents of a Chinese herbalist's shop which operated in Victoria for almost 90 years have been sold to the Heritage Village Museum in Burnaby and will be set up in a display shop.

The shop opened in Victoria in the 1880s and operated until seven years ago in the 1400-block Government. The owner of the shop, who lives in Ladysmith, removed the almost six tons of artifacts and natural medicines from the shop a year ago and the contents will now be moved to the Burnaby museum site.

Museum curator John Adams said many of the shop's contents were imported from China when the shop was first started and are considered rare.

The collection includes a large set of wooden drawers used for storing herbs which has a carved frame of gilded wood and a fifty pound cast iron grinder which is operated by foot power.

The museum has operated in Burnaby for three years and depicts a typical town of the Lower Mainland between 1890 and 1920. A general store, a blacksmith's, a printshop, a dress shop, an ice cream parlor, a church and a large country house are already set up on the museum site.

Adams said the Victoria herbalist's shop is typical of those found on Vancouver Island and Vancouver in the late 1800s.

The museum received a $5,000 grant from the provincial government to help buy the contents of the shop.

GARDEN HEARING

A public hearing will be held in Saanich on a request from the provincial government to establish six acres of allotment gardens on Gordon Head Road near Feltham.

The hearing is expected to be held at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 27.

In a letter, Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said his department intends to lease the property from the Catholic Public Schools of Victoria Diocese for two years.

The land is zoned residentially.

$2,075 Awarded For Injuries

A 26-year-old Victoria man who received skull and thumb fractures from assailants was awarded $2,075 under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act of B.C.

Six awards totalling $12,000 and a lifetime pension were announced during December under the provincial Act.

Under the Act anyone injured by crime in B.C. may apply for financial assistance through the Workers Compensation Board which administers the legislation.

Camping Demand Taxes Parks Branch

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Use of provincial parks is increasing so much the parks branch can't keep up with demands for more camping facilities, the deputy minister of Recreation and Conservation said today.

"Coupled with demands for more park facilities are more and more requests for parks — especially near urban areas," said Lloyd Brooks. "We are in a dilemma.

"The demands for facilities and parks exceed the yearly population growth. Costs are rising sharply."

Brooks statements follow a park branch report that attendance in provincial parks in 1974 climbed to an all-time high of 10,549,000. Attendance was 9,986,000 in 1973.

Attendance at the Long Beach section of the national park was 543,742 last year.

Brooks said part of the problem facing the parks branch is trying to make up for lost time in park development.

"For years there was little park expansion and park development," he said. "Now, it is a question of filling these needs."

"The $2 charge for camping in parks pays only half the cost of operation," he said.

This raised the question of whether people should continue to subsidize parks out of general revenue or should the parks pay their own way, he said.

"If we raised the camping fee to $5, it would mean that many young married couples with children could no longer afford using our parks," he said. "These are the people who probably need them most."

He said costs for repairing damage caused by vandals had also gone up sharply.

"So have costs for upgrading facilities in some parks to curb pollution," he added. "For example, pit latrines in some parks are no longer acceptable in view of the large camping population."

Brooks noted the 1974 park statistics showed some interesting trends:

—More and more British Columbians are spending their holidays in their native province rather than in other parts of Canada and the United States.

—For the first time in years the use of tents in parks increased. Camper accommodation in '74: 35.5 per cent tents; camper vehicles 32.3; trailers 17.9; tent trailers 14.9.

—In 1974 63.9 per cent of campers came from B.C.; 20.2 from other provinces and 15.9 from the U.S.

In 1973, 58 per cent were from B.C., 31 per cent from other parts of Canada and 21 per cent from the U.S.

Parks official John Walter said figures do not include backpackers who visit wilderness parks.

"It is difficult to keep a count of people who camp in the wilderness areas of parks instead of designated campsites," he said. "But indications are that they are increasing rapidly."

New Hot Dog Bun Invented

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Theodore Heidepriem loves Coney Island hot dogs but hates the mess when the chili spills out of the bun onto his lap.

A baker for 20 years, Heidepreim did something about the mess. He invented his version of the better mouse trap — a new hot dog bun.

"I'd been thinking about it for almost 20 years," he said. Like many great thinkers, he got his inspiration while sleeping.

"I didn't jump out of bed though," he said "I had Saturday off and I made the mold the next morning."

Using an aluminum foil TV tray, Heiderpriem made a mould around a frank-shaped piece of pipe and formed dough around it.

"I have a bun which acts as a container for the fod with an indented centre," he said. "It holds the food without spilling it on rugs or yourself. and it's baked with a simple method by use of a single pan."

The result is a boat-shaped bun for hot dogs with the meat lying uncovered on top. Chili, onions and the rest of the makings for Coney Islands are poured on and don't make a squishy mess.

"The side baked against the metal is on the inside of the bun and that's the porous side," he said. "The goodies seep into the bun but the outside had been sealed by the oven-heat and contains the juices about three times as long as other buns."

"It's the first new bun in seven years," the inventor said proudly.

Heidepriem knows he's trying to change one of America's most sacred sandwich inventions — the hot dog, which was born in St. Louis at the 1904 World's Fair.

Creamed Codfish supper, Maritimers' dream

Maritimers' Supper: Creamed Cod

By MARY MOORE

A one-pound wooden box of salt cod travelled from Vogler's Cove, Nova Scotia to Burnaby, British Columbia to Ottawa, Ontario before it reached Marianne's kitchen by way of Herbie.

You see Herbie's grandmother was Swedish and he remembers the codfish dinners she and his mother used to prepare. After Nana Onensen's funeral in Nelson, B.C. the family was reminiscing and Doreen, Herbie's sister, said she had a box of salt cod on hand that she could send home with him.

That is how it came to our hands and why we were jumping up and changing the water on the salt cod that was soaking for 24 hours. At last all of the salt was soaked out and we made

NANA ONENSEN'S CREAMED COD SUPPER
(serves 4)

NOTE: This recipe may be used for fresh frozen cod fillets.

One 1-lb. box or pkg. dried salt cod
4 tbsp. margarine
4 tbsp. flour
2 c. 2 per cent milk
(salt?)

Soak cod in cold water 24 hours changing the water at least 4 or 5 times during that period.

Barely cover soaked cod with cold water, bring to boil and simmer 5 minutes. (Note: If fresh or fresh frozen cod is used DO NOT SOAK but parboil it in the same way.) Drain and with a fork break up fish into bite-size pieces.

To make Sauce blend margarine and flour then stir in milk until thick. Pour over cooked cod or add broken up cooked cod to sauce. Taste sauce to see if you should add salt. We did not but did add a little white pepper.

Traditionally this is served over quartered hot boiled potatoes with canned green peas. Corn is good too. We did just that and got the much coveted nod of approval from Herbie. If you do not fancy it served over the potatoes, serve the sauce over the fish with parsleyed potatoes at the side.

A Maritimers' supper.

Hawkeye Mary was doing her usual prowl in the supermarkets to find the bargains. In three I found pork chops at a moderate price — trays of nine cut from a loin. This seemed to be a staple that many customers were putting into their shopping carts. So I did too.

Realizing the popularity of pork and beans I decided to buy dried beans to cook with my chops. What follows is the result and it was approved by three Home Economists, one opthalmologist, one social worker and one secretary. So you are assured of approval.

BAKED PORK CHOPS AND BEANS
(6 to 8 generous servings)

1 lb. dried white or yellow beans
5½ c. water
1½ c. garden cocktail or V-8 or tomato juice
2 tbsp. molasses
1½ tsp. dry mustard
1½ tsp. salt
2 tbsp. chopped onion
3 lbs. pork chops (¼ pork loin sliced - 9)

Put beans to soak overnight in the water. Bring to boil and simmer covered until tender and skins split, about 1 hour. Tip beans, liquid and all into large shallow baking dish (or roasting pan). Mix together the garden cocktail or V-8 or tomato juice, molasses, mustard, salt and chopped onion. Pour ¾ of this liquid over beans. Cover beans with overlapping pork chops. Pour remaining liquid over them. Cover and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 1 hour. Reduce heat to 200 deg. Fahr. and bake 1 hour longer, uncovered during last half hour.

Audience Decides Chef Most Delightful Treat

By LESLIE MAITLAND

NEW YORK (NYT)—In just an hour, the other day, Jean Vergnes whipped up breakfast (scrambled eggs), lunch (omelettes of all sorts), dinner (Supreme de Volaille Gismonda) — and the enthusiasm of a youthful audience that decided that the chef himself was the most delightful treat of the day. Vergnes kept the class of 70 sixth and seventh-grade girls from the Convent of the Sacred Heart School entranced as they feasted on the fantasies that he cooked for them and, at the same time, made the French vocabulary they had studied come alive.

Vergnes showed up in the rococo, green marble banquet hall of the school armed like a magician with a bag of tricks—in this case, two electric hotplates, three frying pans, countless eggs, mushrooms, and what looked like (no one worried about cholesterol) lots of butter.

The girls' French teacher, Ethelee Hahn, said that the cooking demonstration was an attempt to prove that French is a spoken language, a language that is useful.

And even after the girls were told that they could speak in English, they put their French to work.

"Qui aime le fromage?" asked the chef, showing them the grated parmesan (fromage rape) that he was adding to an omelette. Every hand shot up.

"Who's going to taste it?" he asked, again in French, and was greeted by a sea of squeals that showed no lack of comprehension or of volunteers.

"Il faut decorer les plats," he said, decorating the omelette on a paper plate with sprigs of parsley and mushrooms he had fashioned into flowers. "The eyes should give you the appetitie," he explained, switching into English to make sure the message was understood.

As morsels of every dish were passed around the room, the class burst into applause. The girls, dressed in the school uniform of gray, pleated jumpers with either red or white shirts, scrambled for a taste. The aroma of melted butter filled the mirrored room, where the happy smiles exchanged by Gergnes and the students were reflected and thereby multiplied.

"C'etait bon?" he asked 11-year-old Ann Creed, seated near his elbow. "Oh, you didn't have any," he was given to understand. "You'll have some of this one. This time you're going to try it, eh?"

When it came time to try the one-hand flip — tossing the spinach in a frying pan for the chicken dish he was preparing — the students applauded wildly for each classmate who succeeded, and then for those who tried it and could not.

The chef, dressed in white, passed out copies of the menu from his restaurant, Le Cirque, 58 East 65th Street, and asked the girls if they had questions. Oh yes, they had — what about his autograph? Other questions focused on the proper term for his tall hat ("une toque"), upon the number of different dishes he prepared each day, (120), and upon the nature of his favorite dish ("Everything," he replied. "J'aime tout").

Responding to the question of who cooked at home, Vergnes or his wife, he told the girls that he cooked just for company and that he generally liked to eat the simpler foods his wife prepared.

When the students had left the room, with a flurry of good-byes, Vergnes praised their French and told the teachers how his two sons, born in the United States, become annoyed with him if he speaks to them in French when they are with their friends.

Vergnes, a member of both the Maitres Cuisiners de France and L'Academie Culinaire de France, was asked if he thought that women could cook as well as men.

"Oh yes," he said, "sometimes I create new recipes by going to a regular housewife for dinner. I eat something and I think, why didn't I think of that?" In turn, he said he does not believe in keeping his own recipes a secret.

"Chefs don't go somewhere to criticize," he observed. "Chefs are the most easy-people to please. We go to a home, and we appreciate what the person has done, even if it's just a potato salad."

Where, Mrs. Hahn, the students' French teacher, inquired, had he eaten the food that he liked best?

"The best food I ever ate in my life was food that my mother was doing," Vergnes said. "I tried to do her dishes, but I could not. Mine were not as tasty. But then, maybe I liked hers best because she taught me how to eat."

FOOD

YOUR TURN TO COOK: COD'S HEAD STEW

(This week's reader recipe was submitted by Navy Commander Pat Nash of Ottawa. If you have a family or favorite recipe you would gladly share, please send it to the Times Family Desk, 2621 Douglas.)

When Commander Pat Nash, former Victorian now living in Ottawa, mails his Christmas cards, he never fails to include a recipe of a dish he has tried during the year.

This one is from his Newfoundland cookbook.

COD'S HEAD STEW

5 or 6 cod's heads
½ pound fatback pork
2 onions
4 potatoes, cubed
2 cups water
1 cup hard bread
salt and pepper

Fry fatback pork and onions in a large frying pan. Add potatoes and water, pepper and salt. Put cod's heads on top of potatoes and cook for 30 minutes or until potatoes are almost cooked. Add hard bread about five minutes before potatoes are cooked.

Mushrooms Fine Additions

By HILDA BEASTALL

If mushrooms were less expensive we would feature them as vegetables for their food values compare favorably in some aspects though they are different. Therefore they should be used in addition to the more common carrots, cabbage and potatoes. The texture and flavor of mushrooms are to be enjoyed wherever we add them to our meals.

There is no waste to fresh mushrooms so we buy a half pound occasionally, using some for making a delicious soup for a lunch and the remainder the next day for a hearty cheese and potato omelette for supper with a green vegetable.

Mushrooms found at local vegetable counters are in two general categories, the smooth creamy white kind and just now, a rougher skinned brown. Of the two, the brown have more flavor.

Look for firm textured mushrooms, dry to the touch. When damp, they are beginning to reach the decay stage.

Fresh ones will keep until the following day in the refrigerator if left uncovered with free air circulation all around. Use the open sided plastic "baskets" summer berries are sold in.

Cooked mushrooms will keep two more days in the refrigerator though they do lose some of the delicate flavor if reheated. However, cold cooked ones are as good for a salad, as they are cleaned and raw.

When you get the mushrooms home, wipe them with a damp clean cloth, avoiding washing as they readily absorb moisture. They do not require peeling. To do so removes much of the flavor. If stems are fleshy and the knife readily takes off a thin slice from the bottom end, use everything. A tough stem will not soften even though cooked a long time. In fact long cooking toughens mushrooms.

Whatever method is used for cooking, don't add the salt until the complete dish is almost ready. They contain a high percentage of water which is lost in cooking, so that the amount of salt needed is comparatively small.

The late Dr. H. T. Gussow, one-time Dominion Botanist at Ottawa, wrote the book "Mushrooms and Toadstools" for nature lovers and students. He retired to live in Victoria for many years, and loved to talk mushrooms. He would give tips on their preparation, and declared in no uncertain tones that most mushrooms served are "salty beyond enjoyment". One thinks of canned mushroom soup as a typical example.

MUSHROOM SOUP

1 small whole garlic clove
¼ cup finely chopped celery with leaves
1 tsp. grated carrot
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup boiling water
1 cup chopped mushrooms
1 Tbsp. butter or soft margarine
1 Tbsp. old-fashioned rolled oats
1 cup skim milk from non-instant skim powder
Chopped parsley or chervil
Paprika

Cook the garlic, celery and carrot in the boiling salted water until almost tender, about 10 minutes. Add mushrooms and cook for another five minutes. Add margarine and rolled oats to make a creamy consistency. Stir occasionally to prevent sticking as mixture cooks gently for 10 minutes.

Slowly pour in the milk, parsley (or chervil) heating only to just below boiling point. Now taste for needed salt; you may not require any. Sprinkle with paprika. Serve in heated bowls to 3 or 4.

Mushrooms contain various trace elements in addition to a small amount of protein, so go well with other proteins in omelettes and pancakes.

Here is Mushroom-Herb Filling, finely flavored with herbs and equally useful with omelette or pancakes; it takes about 15 minutes to make. It can then be set aside to keep warm while the omelette or pancakes are prepared and cooking.

MUSHROOM-HERB FILLING

½ cup vegetable water
½ cup milk
1 tsp. finely chopped onion or
1 Tbsp. finely chopped celery with leaves
2 Tbsp. soft margarine
2 Tbsp. rolled oats (not instant)
½ cup finely chopped mushrooms
A little salt
1 Tbsp. finely chopped chickweed, mint, parsley and chervil.

Put first seven ingredients into saucepan and bring to boil. Simmer gently for 10 to 15 minutes until celery and mushrooms are tender. Stir occasionally to prevent sticking. Rolled oats act as nutritious thickener, giving a creamy texture. If not thick enough for a filling, add another spoonful of oats and simmer extra 5 minutes. Add a little salt and the herbs.

Spoon on to the hot omelette or pancakes, fold over and serve while very hot.

Most mushroom recipes start with instructions to fry them first, but since they can be eaten raw in salads, and simmered lightly for these other dishes, why fry? Their high moisture content is simply evaporated and much flavor goes the same way, into steam.

JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Improvement a Matter of Inches

(This is the third in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of Why Grow Old? and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. You may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.)

Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP for short). Yesterday I helped you find out how much you should weigh. Today let's talk about measurements.

Women weigh in so they won't be way out — in the wrong spots. Actually a woman can be overweight and still have measurements which are in perfect ratio. They are all just too large. Howeber, more usual is the woman whose inches do not add up to a symmetrical silhouette.

This is the third day of my

STAND with your feet widely separated and raise your arms to a sideward-shoulder-height position. Keep the arms in this position as you twist as far to the left as possible, turning your head to the left, trying to see the back of the room. Now twist forward and on to the right, turning your head to the right and looking behind you. Continue. This is slimming to the waist.

Your measurements are important to figure beauty and there are certain standards to guide you in deciding which of your's need changing. Let me give you a few. There should be 10 inches difference between the waist and hips, and ideally, the hips and the bust should be the same. There should be 6 inches difference between your thigh and your calf and about 5 inches between your calf and your ankle.

Do not let this discourage you. Bones and muscles affect your measurement as well as your weight. Not all women can meet these requirements. In many instances, even if a woman is the correct weight, it might be impossible for her to have a waist that small because of her bone structure. Bones also affect the size of ankles and wrists. Of course, the larger bust has been the vogue for some years.

Perhaps you already know which measurements are giving you trouble. For a simple test look in the mirror, or perhaps the pressure on the seams of your clothes are more persuasive. If you must have your outfits let out in the same place over and over again, I am sure you have gotten the message.

I do think it is wise and interesting, though, to keep a record of your measurements as you exercise and lose pounds. Measure every two weeks or every week if you wish.

Measure around the fullest part of your bust, with or without bra. If you wear a bra wear the same one each time. Measure around your natural waistline. Measure around the fullest portion of your abdomen, hips, thighs and calf. It is very important to always hold the tape with the same tautness. Also, be certain that it passes straight around the body, going neither up nor down. Carelessness in either of these can make a difference of inches.

Those of you who have been following BIP this week have learned what you should weigh and how to measure and analyze your inches. You have also been given menus for two days.

MENUS FOR THURSDAY

Breakfast: 6 oz. glass tangerine juice, 1 slice salami on ½ toasted English muffin topped with 1 poached egg. Sprinkle lightly with garlic salt or parmesan cheese. Black coffee or tea with lemon juice.

Lunch: roast beef sandwich (3 oz. thinly sliced lean deli roast beef; use two slices whole wheat bread; season with diet mayonnaise and or mustard. Add watercress or lettuce) 1 glass skim milk or buttermilk.

Dinner: chicken breast parmesan, 1 medium boiled potato, sliced, ½ cup cooked spinch, 1 glass skim milk, ½ cup low-calorie gelatin.

Sprinkle ½ raw chicken breast (boned and skinned) with garlic salt and 1 T. parmesan cheese; saute in 1 T. margarine about 5 min. on each side. Garnish chicken breast and potato with 1 T. parmesan cheese, paprika and chopped parsley. Serve with lemon wedges for chicken and spinach.

You can have all of the following you want, anytime: celery, carrot, or cucumber sticks, cauliflower buds, watercress, diet carbonated drinks, radishes, bouillon, lettuce, green peppers, endive, plain tea or coffee.

Corn flakes, whole wheat bread, 1 banana, ½ cup tangerine juice, 1 grapefruit, lemon juice, skim milk, 1 oz. slice of any cheese, ½ cup skim milk yogurt, ½ cup unsweetened applesauce, ½ cup crushed pineapple — no sugar added, 1 slice salami, 1 can codfish, 3 oz. canned tuna, 4 oz. beef — ground round, 2 eggs, 1 dill pickle, 1 green onion, 1 cucumber, celery, watercress, ½ cup peas, rice, soy sauce, low-calorie salad dressing, vegetable oil, cinnamon, nutmeg, mixed salad greens (lettuce, escarole, endive, watercress, or fresh spinach).

If you missed tht first two days of this series or would like to have the entire course in a booklet, send for my BIP Kit which gives complete directions, calorie counted menus for two more weeks, spot reducing exercises, a calorie chart and an encouraging wall chart on which to plot your progress and watch your beauty line rise as your weight line drops. Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

BE A BEAUTIFUL LOSER WITH THE NARAN REDUCING PLAN

Your body is like a beautiful high-precision machine. When you overindulge in food and drink, the once smooth, sleek lines go to fat. To control weight, you must control your intake. That doesn't mean a starvation diet. Your body needs a variety of foods to provide the important life-giving ingredients. Start following a sensible, healthy diet. And to help you lose some of that unattractive excess poundage immediately, Naran has formulated a special weight-control regimen. The whole plan is included in every package. An exclusive liquid formulation that is taken with grapefruit juice, a vitamin supplement to help maintain good health, and a comprehensive low calorie weekly food menu. Follow label directions and take as needed.

Naran is a simple, easy regimen that can help you lose excess bulky fat quickly before you start on your long-term weight-control diet. If you are not completely satisfied with your first purchase, just return the empty carton for your money back.

The Naran Regimen

1. Pour liquid into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take 2 tablespoonsful twice a day as needed.
2. Take one vitamin pill per day as a dietary supplement.
3. Follow the daily Naran Food Plan Menu.

dear abby

The Door's Closed On Cupboard Love

DEAR ABBY: I am a 74-year-old childless widow. My husband left me a nice home and well off financially. Some close relatives are now pressing me to sell my house, buy a trailer, and move to another state so they can look after me.

Abby, I don't need "looking after." If that day ever comes, I plan to use my money to live out my days in a nice nursing home. I can certainly afford it.

These relatives ignore everything I say to them in this regard and keep pressuring me to sell my home and make plans to live near them. I am sure if I were penniless, they wouldn't be so eager to look after me.

My will does not include any of my family. Everything is going to charity.

In case you think I'm getting senile, let me assure you that I am not. How do I get these relatives to leave me alone? — Pestered.

DEAR PESTERED: Assure them emphatically that if you ever feel the need of their help, you will let them know. Then mention the fact that you are leaving everything to charity.

DEAR ABBY: Exactly a year ago today we lost our only child — a beautiful 16-year-old boy. He and I were returning home from a fishing trip in a blinding snowstorm. I skidded, lost control of the car and we landed in a ditch. My son's neck was broken and he died before I could get him to a hospital. I walked away with a small cut on my nose.

My wife hasn't been the same since. I know she blames me for the boy's death, but I give you my word, I wasn't going fast, I wasn't careless, and it was one of those freak accidents that couldn't be helped. I've tried to explain this to her a thousand times, but she doesn't seem to hear me. We're practically strangers, Abby, and I can't snap her out of her depression. I once suggested that she get psychiatric help and she said she wasn't "crazy."

Can you help me? We once had a good marriage. — Not Guilty.

DEAR NOT: Your suggestion of psychiatric help is the only solution. If you can't persuade her, perhaps someone whose judgment she trusts can. Your family doctor? A clergyman? A dear friend? Others who have suffered similar heartbreaking tragedies have found their way back to normalcy and peace of mind with professional help. I urge you to find a way to lead her to it.

DEAR ABBY: You advised women who were flat-chested and wanted silicone implants to consult their family doctors about which plastic surgeon to go to, so that's what I did. Well, I thought my doctor was going to throw me out of his office! I said I was "crazy and vain" and the way he carried on was enough to send me away in tears. I can't tell you how hurt I was. It had taken me three years to get up the courage to ask him.

I had talked it over with my husband, and he agreed that if I wanted to have silicone implants it was all right with him. Do you know of any reliable plastic surgeon in my area I could go to? If not, how can I find out? — Flat

DEAR FLAT: Contact your area medical association, and ask for a list of their board accredited plastic surgeons.

Little Chance Diet Causes Rheumatism or Arthritis

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By DR. JEAN MAYER

Arthritis and rheumatism are painful, disabling, sometimes dangerous, and still mysterious ailments. And because the victim often experiences periods of spontaneous remission when the pain and soreness suddenly go away, it is easy for a quack to convince the sufferer that HIS remedy did the trick. At the same time, it is just as hard for the specialist to be certain that the treatment HE was using at the time really had an effect.

Since the symptoms of several types of arthritis are often involved with different nutrients, particularly minerals, it would seem natural to think that diet is in some way responsible. But this does not appear to be the case. The deposits of calcium around the joints, that are seen in nonarticular rheumatism, like bursitis, and in osteoarthritis are not caused by excessive calcium intake or a disorder in calcium metabolism. Indeed, if you severely cut down on calcium in the diet, the result could be osteoporosis — the gradual demineralization of the bones — as the body takes calcium from them to satisfy other needs.

During the 1930s and 1940s, when the vitamins were being discovered and identified, it was natural for researchers to try one or a combination of vitamins as a treatment for arthritis. Vitamins C, D, and E were among those that were tried in large amounts, and despite all the effort, their effectiveness as arthritis treatments has repeatedly been refuted.

All types of diets have also been tried and found to be of no value. Bizarre regimens like cod liver oil and orange juice, the cherry, raw food, and "natural" food fads, as well as the use of molasses, honey and "surphur-containing" foods are simply that — bizarre diets.

For a time, it was also thought that patients with severe rheumatoid arthritis could not tolerate dietary carbohydrate because they showed a decrease in glucose tolerance. However, this now appears to be a consequence of the chronic inflammation of arthritis, and not of a diet high in carbohydrates.

Dietary protein was also thought at one time to provoke the excessive production of uric acid that is the hallmark of gout, a malady often lumped together with rheumatic diseases. But it now appears that the body manufactures uric acid from a number of sources, and that the fault in gout lies not in overconsumption, but in overproduction.

Is diet, then, totally unrelated to arthritis? Not at all. Whatever the form, arthritis is a group of diseases; and as with most maladies, proper diet is essential to facilitate successful treatment. The diet of arthritics should be balanced, containing all the known nutrients in good supply, and made up of a variety of fresh or lightly-processed foods, so that the trace minerals, which we are only beginning to understand, will be present as well.

When the arthritis sufferer is also overweight, a reducing diet is a must.

Let me caution, however, that a reducing diet should be a slow one — no more than a deficit of 500 calories a day, which will add up to a weight-loss of a pound a week. But don't fret, in the long run, 500 less calories a day means a loss of 52 pounds in a year! Remember, above all, don't try to fast excess weight off.

Gout is the only form of rheumatic disease for which a more specific diet can be recommended, although medication is by far the most important part of the treatment. However, I believe that it is also a good idea to drink considerable water to help prevent deposition of urates in the urinary tract. At the same time, alcohol should be consumed only in small amounts, while foods high in purines, such as liver and other organ meats, anchovies and sardines, and highly-flavored spices and condiments, should be completely avoided or taken in limited amounts and very occasionally.

Until we know the causes of arthritis, we shall not know the cure (or cures) or even the best possible treatment. Of the $2 billion Americans spend each year on useless "cures" for different diseases, about $400 million, or one-fifth of the total, go for "remedies" for arthritis and the rheumatic diseases. Or looked at another way, for every dollar that is invested in a quack remedy, only four cents are spent on arthritis research. If we could reverse those figures, the knowledge to conquer arthritis might come sooner.

New herds dot the North American landscape

Buffalo Roaming Again

By JAMES P. STERBA

One hundred years after they were slaughtered by hunters to the brink of extinction, buffalo are making a comeback in North America.

New herds of these awesome, shaggy-headed creatures now dot the North American landscape, mostly on private ranches, from Alaska to New York to Florida to New Mexico. Thousands of bushy-haired off-spring join their ranks yearly. Extinction has been all but foreclosed.

In fact, ranchers who nurtured remnant herds back to health over the past century now find buffalo raising to be a profitable business — much more so lately than raising cattle.

Buffalo—actually American bison — were estimated to number more than 60 million before hide-hunters decimated their herds in the 1870's, mostly to starve Indians. (Buffalo Bill was a minor figure in the slaughter.) In 1889, only 551 buffalo could be found in the United States. From that low point, their numbers have slowly increased on ranches and government reserves to an estimated 30,000 in the U.S. and another 20,000 in Canada.

Now, there is an organization of buffalo enthusiasts, which holds two conventions a year, a monthly buffalo magazine, and growing numbers of people who want the buffalo — this continent's native cattle — to replace the cow as a prime meat source because they claim it's more efficient to produce and healthier to eat.

"There is no question but that the buffalo will again play an important part in the economic life of the people in this country," said Roy Houck, president of the National Buffalo Association, an 8-year-old group of 181 active members and several hundred associates, including one in Venezuela and in West Germany.

"We will have well over one-half million head in this country before the turn of the century," he said. Houck has about 3,000 of his own near Fort Pierre, S.D.

Most buffalo ranchers have long waiting lists of people who want to buy buffalo meat. Currently, only a few thousand head are slaughtered yearly — compared to more than a half-million cattle slaughtered weekly. Only surplus bulls are sold for slaughter.

Fondue Pots

Chafing dishes or fondue pots are great "hostess-savers". They keep snacks hot and ready-to-eat any place and can be set out long before the guests arrive.

To stir up something yummy for that chafing dish, combine convenient chicken spread, sauteed mushrooms, sour cream and seasonings. Serve this simmering in the pot with crackers or melba rounds on a tray near by for guests to make their own canapes.

CHAFING DISH CHICKEN CANAPES

3 tablespoons butter or margarine.
4 cups chopped mushrooms, fresh.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.
3 tablespoons flour.
1 cup sour cream.
1 4¾ ounce can chicken spread.
3 tablespoons scallions.
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Melt butter or margarine in top of double boiler. Add mushrooms and cook for 3 minutes. Add salt and lemon juice; cover pan and continue cooking for another 3 minutes. Sprinkle flour over mushrooms and stir until mixture thickens; add sour cream, chicken spread, scallion and Worcestershire sauce. Stirring continuously, cook until mixture is bubbly. Turn into top of chafing dish. Let guests help themselves. Serve with small pieces of toast. Makes about 3 cups creamed chicken.

CHEESE AND HAM FONDUE

1 4½ - ounce can deviled ham.
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Melt cheese on top of double boiler; add remaining ingredients. Pour into a fondue pot and serve with French bread cubes.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Thursday, Jan. 9

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may find that the hue and the cry, the push and the pull had best be replaced by soothing voices, diplomacy and persuasion. Taurus, Libra figure prominently. Reach beyond expectations. Check language, law and foreign travel.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Now you can make decision based on process of selectivity. Means you have a choice and proverbial second chance. Money which affects partner or mate is in picture. Pisces, Virgo individuals could figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lie low and play waiting game. There are too many complications to move ahead with full head of steam. Legal manoeuver could be costly — be aware, alert and willing to face facts as they exist. Organize. Get files in order and have facts available.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Work and completion — these are featured. Obviously, this is no time for "loose ends." Get house in order. Open lines of communication. You are going to receive attention, publicity. Be sure it is not notoriety!

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Love, motivation, creative drive — these are featured. Nothing is apt to be mild, lukewarm or halfway. Now it is all or nothing, hot or cold and no holding back. It is the direct assault that circumstances demands.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may find that red tape has tied your hands. Ride along with the cycle. Don't force issues. there are elements of dissension within the ranks. Plainly, this means that loved ones disagree and are causing you to go through an emotional war of push and tug.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Forces may be scattered, but you get chance to relax and meet interesting people. Gemini, Sagittarius could be involved. Take special care in traffic. Steer clear of verbal disputes with relatives. Your healtth improves because you pay more attention to vitamins, diet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Element of deception could be connected with money, personal possessions. Check details. Be aware of what is written between the lines. Study fine print. Make changes. Protect your interests. Don't permit pride to dictate to common sense, logic.

SAGGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Utilize lessons learned in recent past. No one is going to give you something for nothing. Realize it and insist on valid information, not fantastic promises. Cycle is high and you can take initiative. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Relationships with those close to you could become more harmonious—if you so permit. Means make some concessions — without abandoning principles. Accent is on closed-door meeting, getting behind the scenes, discussing subjects previously considered taboo.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may find yourself consulted by persons who disagree, yet are drawn to each other. Key now is to be interested, sympathetic without becoming inextricably involved. Pisces, Virgo are spotlighted. Some of your hopes, wishes are subject to revision.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pressures of added responsibility are featured. In personal area, relationship intensifies. Nothing is lukewarm—it now is all or nothing. Get priorities in order. Deal with those who pull strings of authority. Take nothing for granted.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you attract people to you with their problems. You seem to get finger on pulse of public, to detect trends and cycles. March and December are your most significant months of 1975. Aries and Libra individuals play important roles in your life. You are generous, somewhat theatric—and usually side with the underdog.

Four Miners Die in Police Clubbing

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — South African policemen wielding clubs and firing tear gas charged striking black miners at the world's largest gold mine today. Four miners were killed and 33 injured.

Since the strike began Sundya, eight persons have died in rioting at the Vaal Reefs gold fields.

Officers said those killed or injured at Vaal Reefs were involved in inter-tribal fighting that broke out when Basotho tribesmen from neighboring Lesotho tried to enlist the support of South African Xhosa tribesmen in the strike.

Mine officials said the workers' protest had spread to Braken gold mine, near Evander, and the Blesbok and Largo coal mines east of Johannesburg.

Clashes between police and black miners at Vaal Reefs today first began when police moved in to quell disturbances around the mine entrances. Striking miners were atempting to stop other miners from working the next shift.

A Vaal Reefs spokesman said about 9,000 of its 32,000 workers remained on strike today.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J.A.H. HUNTER

"What about the stamps I sent for you and Ann?" asked Stan. "Any good?"

Doug smiled. "Sure, they were great. Ann got three more than half what she would have got if I'd kept three more than half what she did get."

"Okay, okay," Stan shook his head. "But what about you?"

"Well, I kept two more than I gave her," replied the boy.

How many stamps in all?

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer: FARM was 1256.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

As has been demonstrated in this column, even at the top-flight expert level, one frequently has to guess what his opening lead should be. Sometimes he guesses right, sometimes he doesn't. Today's deal, which was played in the World Team-of-Four Championships of 1972, illustrates this theme. East-West vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♡ J
◊ 10 8 5 3 2
♣ A 2

WEST
♠ Q 10
♡ A 7 6 4 2
◊ A 6
♣ J 5 4 3

EAST
♡ Q 9 8
◊ K J 9 4

SOUTH
♠ A J 9 4
♡ K 10 5 3
◊ Q 7
♣ K 9 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ◊.

The above was the bidding sequence when the United States held the North-South cards, and on the replay, when the Netherlands held the North-South cards. Against the United States, the West defender opened the diamond ace, and at trick two he continued the suit, East's king winning. To trick three East led the diamond jack.

No matter what declarer now played, it was impossible to prevent West from making a trump trick. Actually, he ruffed with the jack of spades, hoping that East had the queen. West overruffed with the queen, and then cashed the heart ace, for the setting trick.

On the replay of the deal, the American West defender elected to open the ace of hearts. At trick two he shifted to a club, in the hope that East possessed the club king.

The Netherlands declarer now had smooth sailing. He won the club shift with the board's ace, after which he cashed the king and ace of trumps, gathering in the outstanding pieces. He next played the king of hearts, and followed up by ruffing a heart. With East's queen falling, South's ten of hearts had become supreme. His only losers from here in were two diamond tricks.

As is evident, even after opening the ace of hearts, West could have defeated South's game contract by leading the ace of diamonds at trick two. East would have signaled for a continuation by playing the nine; and West would next have led his remaining diamond to East's king. A third diamond lead would now be made by East — and West would have himself a sure trump trick.

In theory, the cashing of the diamond ace at trick one could have been costly if South had possessed the diamond king. But, on this day, the lead of the diamond ace was the winning lead.

GARDENING

The Wind's Role in Pollination

Before the birds indulge in their winter feast of berries, gardeners might like to talk about why some shrubs of a given genus will have ample crops while those in other gardens have few.

This thought came to my attention last week while enjoying the sight of massed orange berries on pyracantha (Firethorn) shrubs on the south-facing wall of the Victoria Press building.

There must be 20 plants there, spaced about eight to 10 feet apart, with one gap for an air vent and another for the side entrance door. I noticed that fewer berries were formed on the first plant on the wall, the first one after the ventilator gap and the first after the entrance. Why?

Could it be that the prevailing wind from the upper harbor at flowering times assisted in pollination all down the line where plants were adjacent, but those having no near neighbor to windward were poorly pollinated?

We have all found that one small plant of a berrying shrub sets far fewer fruits than expected from the amount of blooming, whereas when the same shrub grows larger, pollination is good.

Gardeners will notice that bees do much pollinating on cotoneasters and firethorns, for the shrubs are abuzz with honey bees in May as the lightly scented flowers open in their thousands. They are a pretty sight, yet an unnoticing gardener will say quite sincerely "I didn't know cotoneasters (or firethorns) flowered."

Here again, when more than one cotoneaster is grown in a garden there seems to be more effective pollination, resulting in quantities of berries. But I have also noticed that wind direction plays some part in this too.

If bees alone are responsible, one can spend a few hours pondering where the bees come from and go when not busy working on the pyracanthas down on the Press building.

Kings Road, alongside, is scarcely a haven for honey bees though the street has hundreds of swallows in spring and early summer flying beneath the hawthorns, apparently snatching dangling caterpillars as they go, as well as any flying insects which emerge in warm moist weather of late spring. Flocks of robins too have already been noticed sampling the ripened berries on the second day of this year.

Since the groundcover in front of the pyracanthas is of a prostrate form of cotoneaster also liberally endowed with berries, the robins are assured of a royal feast indeed.

Gardeners with a newly planted shrub which was bought for the beauty of its berries should not despair at the few seen for the first years. Either get another as a companion for cross pollination or wait until the one plant becomes large enough to have masses of flowers.

In nurseries, it is usual to see fine crops of berries on even the small sizes of ornamental shrubs because of the quantity of plants of the same kind. But a single small plant taken to a private garden where none of the same genus are already growing, may remain barren for several years.

When the berries come, don't grudge the birds their share; as the city expands the areas of blacktop, fewer birds are seen.

Canadian Policy Hit Again

WASHINGTON (FP) Failure by the U.S. state department to take the "vigorous action necessary to protect American consumers" from Canada's oil-export policies has come under new criticism in Congress.

Senator Bill Brock, the Tenessee Republican who circulated a letter in late November calling on the Ford administration to retaliate unless Canada drops its oil-export tax, said Tuesday that the state department response has been "unsatisfactory."

The senator, whose November letter to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was signed by 16 other Senate colleagues, said Congress still has "no assurances . . . that a strong American policy has been developed to counter" the harmful effect on U.S. consumers of Canada's high oil prices and its phaseout of exports.

Brock's statement was issued Tuesday when he released the text of a state department reply to the senators' request for a tougher administration stand against Canada. The state department letter, signed by Linwood Holton, assistant secretary for congressional relations, merely reiterates the well-known official position of tacit acceptance of Ottawa's policies. Rejecting the call for a retaliatory tax, Holton writes that Ottawa's export-reduction program has made it "more urgent than ever" that the U.S. "work in a co-operative manner with Canadian authorities."

HOUSEBOAT TAX DEBATE SET

Esquimalt council will discuss a motion on Jan. 20 to ask the provincial government to change the Mobile Home Tax Act to let municipalities tax houseboats.

Notice of the motion was made by newly-elected alderman Larry Mann at Monday's council meeting.

The suggestion is the first involving the provincial government in the controversy over the untaxable floating homes.

The homes, to which some nearby residents object, have been moored at West Bay since October or later.

Council has already advised the Ministry of Transport that action of some kind should be taken under the federal foreshore lease regulations so that houseboats are adequately governed.

Gas Price Hike Ford's Answer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has decided on an energy policy that deliberately increases gasoline prices to discourage demand but rejects direct fuel restrictions or rationing, an informed administration source says.

The source also said Tuesday that Ford has won the voluntary agreement of auto makers to improve gasoline mileage, but that he would not propose federal mileage standards or a horsepower tax.

However, Ford was expected to propose standards or tax credits to improve building insulation.

The administration's energy policy is to be made public this month. Many of Ford's expected proposals would require congressional action, especially in imposing or easing taxes.

Ford was expected to stick to his goal of reducing oil demand by one million barrels a day by the end of this year and to select a target for limiting oil imports by 1985 to something between 10 and 20 per cent of U.S. demand, compared with the present 36 per cent.

But his energy policy was not expected to include a decision on stockpiling oil against the threat of sudden shortages, a subject to be studied further in the next several months.

The administration source said Ford was expected to propose:

—A tariff of $3 a barrel on imported oil and a $3 excise tax on domestic oil, costing consumers about $18.6 billion a year at present demand levels. Such increases could raise the price of gasoline about 7½ cents a gallon and other petroleum products by various amounts.

—General tax reductions to send the money back to the public for spending on other goods or services.

—Removal of price controls from "old" oil brought into production by 1972, allowing its price to rise to prevailing levels, now about $11, from $5.25 a barrel.

—The end of federal regulation over interstate prices of natural gas.

—A voluntary agreement by auto makers to improve gasoline mileage 40 per cent by 1979, bringing the average performance of 1980 models close to 20 miles a gallon.

Earlier Date Hinted For Address

WASHINGTON (WP)—President Ford is considering the possibility of delivering his State of the Union address to Congress ahead of Jan. 20, White House sources said Tuesday.

With unemployment rising and with Democrats planning to present their own economic program to Congress, pressures have mounted on the president to present his proposals earlier.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen would say only that no date has been set for the president's annual message, but he emphasized that Ford is not bothereed by polls showing a lack of confidence in his economic leadership.

First CIA Probe Session Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice-President Nelson A. Rockfeller is going to start next week with his investigation of accusations that the CIA was involved in domestic spying.

CIA Director William E. Colby would be one of the first to appear, he said, along with "others," expected to include Ambassador Richard Helms, who headed the agency during the time of the alleged surveillance of U.S. war protesters and other dissidents.

A spokesman released a telegram in which Rockefeller told the other seven members:

"I am calling the first meeting for Monday, Jan. 13, starting at 10:30 a.m. in my office, Room 275, of the executive office building.

Barbed Comment On Wire Issue

A Victoria alderman produced a barbed threat about barbed wire on Tuesday, but none of his colleagues on the public works committee seemed to take him seriously.

Ald Mike Young was irritated at lack of support for his strong stand against allowing a firm to supplement its storage yard fencing with three strands of barbed wire.

"If this (the firm's request) goes through I'll make application for a barbed wire fence around my property, too, and I'll yell gross discrimination when that's turned down," he fumed in mock indignation.

(Young lives on Oak Shade Lane in the Rocklands district.)

Northwest Propane Ltd., 335 Tyee road, had asked for the barbed wire—prohibited under the city's fence bylaw—as an added security measure for its yard storing empty gas cylinders.

But Young objected on esthetic grounds, and said the tanks should be kept in a warehouse, "not lying around contributing to the junkyard appearance we have there already."

He said he was surprised a previous city council had allowed the operation to be located in that area. Asked by another alderman where it should be sited, young replied: Fifteen miles out of town."

The committee urged council to approve the application.

U.S. Seeks Clamps On World Bank

WASHINGTON (WP) — The United States has started a campaign to get international lending institutions like the World Bank to cut off loans to the rich oil-exporting countries that have accumulated vast monetary reserves as a result of the fourfold increase in prices.

The shift in policy was first demonstrated when the United States disapproved five World Bank loans to Nigeria totaling $107.5 million on Dec. 17.

These loans went through despite the U.S. "No" vote, but the United States called on the bank's governing body to adjust its programs to the "new situation" presented by the huge volume of income flowing into the oil-producing countries.

The bank is holding a regular meeting Jan. 21 to review its financial policies and will discuss the U.S. position then.

It is still not clear whether Washington will be able to persuade other countries to follow its lead.

Indians 'Victims' in Schools

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Indian children are the victims of discrimination in schools in the Alberni Valley a newly-elected school trustee said Tuesday.

Marie Joseph, 35, a mother of three school-age children, is the first native Indian office holder in the area. She was sworn in as a trustee for School District 70 Tuesday.

Mrs. Joseph said the high school dropout rate among Indians is the result of discrimination.

Employed by Canada Manpower as an Outreach worker in job placement for 13 Indian bands, Mrs. Joseph said she has convinced four of five secondary school girls who dropped out last year to return this year.

"One or two of the teachers would call the girls 'squaws'" Mrs. Joseph said. "This rubs off on the non-Indian kids in the schools."

When children fight in school, it is the Indian combatant who is expelled, she said.

Mrs. Joseph said at a meeting of nearly 100 Indian students who form the Alberni Valley Student Council, many students said they would prefer to attend a school with a majority of Indian students.

She said a return to a segregated school, would give the students "a relaxed place to concentrate on what they want to learn" rather than a place where they experience humiliation by students and teachers."

Some students object to the teaching of French, which they feel is useless, and want instruction in their native west coast dialect, she said.

Recently the attitude of school officials toward fights between Indians and non-Indians has changed, she said. Three non-Indian youths were expelled from school after beating an Indian youth and chasing Mrs. Joseph's son.

In addition to her three school-age children, Mrs. Joseph has two daughters who dropped out of school.

"I hate to say it, but it was outright discrimination on the part of one teacher that caused them to run away from school. They ran away three times and I couldn't get them to go back."

CITY ESCAPES UNSCATHED

Victoria escaped virtually unscathed from overnight snow, high winds, phone and power failures that hit other parts of Vancouver Island west of Sooke and north of the Malahat.

Between three and four inches of new snow was reported on the Malahat, creating the worst driving conditions of the season while highway maintenance crews plowed, salted and sanded the pavement.

But further north conditions became steadily worse late Tuesday and early this morning, some parts of Duncan getting a foot of snow and a total 11 inches reported at Cassidy airport just south of Nanaimo.

Meanwhile, Jordan River and Port Renfrew were without electric power and telephone connections to Port Renfrew were reported out by the RCMP at Sooke.

Carrier Destination: Mideast or Vietnam?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A powerful U.S. navy carrier fleet sailed toward the Indian Ocean today amid intense speculation as to its ultimate destination.

Rumblings persisted over State Secretary Henry Kissinger's interpreted warning of possible U.S. military action in the Persian Gulf. At the same time there is increasing concern here over the Vietnamese situation.

There wert reports that senior defence officials pondered in recent days whether to delay the Enterprise's entrance into the Indian Ocean because its appearance there now might agitate Arab and other countries already aroused by Kissinger's veiled remarks about possible U.S. military action.

The six-ship study mission, led by the 85,000-ton nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise, was expected to enter the Indian Ocean within a few days after a voyage from Subic Bay in the Philippines.

Pentagon spokesman William Beecher said Tuesday the group is on an operational mission, but denied reports it is bound for waters off South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, waves of South Vietnamese planes attacked the Viet Cong headquarters at Loc Ninh and nearby Communist areas in retaliation for the loss of the capital of Phuoc Long province, the Saigon command announced today.

Fighter-bombers raided troop concentrations, anti-aircraft positions, ammunition dumps and supply centres in the Communist zones below the Cambodian border north of Saigon Tuesday night and today, and pilots reported ammunition explosions that sent smoke 3,000 feet into the air, a command spokesman said.

Saigon today also appealed to the United States to help turn back the Communist offensive.

"We need assistance, especially from the American people," acting Foreign Minister Ngo Khac Tinh said.

"The government and people of Vietnam call on the United States government to support this struggle."

Tinh, in comments at a special government briefing, accused Communist nations of "helping North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to invade South Vietnam."

"The Vietnamese people cannot sit here with our hands tied after fighting 20 years for the cause of freedom," he said.

The loss of Phuoc Long province north of Saigon, the biggest government defeat since U.S. troops pulled out of South Vietnam two years ago, extended Communist territory to within 35 miles of the capital.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials said privately the decision of Congress to slash Indochina military aid is partly to blame for the losses during the three-week-old Communist offensive.

In Washington, a White House spokesman said President Ford has been watching the stepped-up fighting with concern but would "live up to the law" barring U.S. military action in Indochina.

Military officers in Saigon said an estimated 2,000 troops and 40,000 civilians are missing in Phuoc Long. Many of the missing are believed to be dead or captured, they added.

Watergate Prisoners To Go Free

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Wednesday reduced the sentences of three major Watergate figures — John W. Dean III, Jeb Stuart Magruder and Herbert Kalmbach — to time already served and set the stage for their immediate release from prison.

Sirica, the judge who first broke open the scandal and presided over the recent Watergate cover-up trial, gave no reason for reducing the sentences of the three defendants.

Sirica said in his brief commutation orders that "on consideration of the defendant's motion for reduction of sentence ... it is ordered that the unexecuted and or remaining portion of the sentence ... is reduced to time already served."

A spokesman for the federal court said he believed the three men would be released immediately. The three were all in Ft. Holabird, Md., where they were taken to testify at the cover-up trial and had not been returned to prison where they had been serving time.

President Ford had no prior knowledge of the release and would make no comment, a White House spokesman said.

Dean was former president Richard M. Nixon's chief accuser during the Watergate scandal; Magruder, a key figure in the Committee to Re-Elect the President, and Kalmbach was Nixon's personal attorney.

Sirica handed down three short orders amending his sentences in each of the three cases.

According to the orders, Dean filed his reduction of sentence motion Dec. 2, Magruder filed his on Sept. 18 and Kalmbach's was filed Oct. 9.

Gas Tax Wires Flying

Premier Barrett fired off another telegram to Ottawa Tuesday repeating his request for immediate talks on natural gas taxation despite a negative response earlier in the day.

At the same time Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told reporters B.C. has not ruled out the possibility of a court battle over resource taxation.

Acting Prime Minister C. M. Drury replied to Barrett's original request for a meeting with federal cabinet ministers, sent out Monday, by suggesting that any uncertainties concerning new federal taxation proposal "have been explained."

Barrett had said in his original telegram that "proposals, ambiguities and uncertainties at the present time are having serious impact upon natural gas development in B.C."

Drury replied that if there are urgent problems in drilling, the federal government would hope B.C. could make arrangements "as they have been made in Alberta."

Essentially Drury was suggesting that Barrett follow the lead of Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed in compensating gas companies for the increased taxes they would be forced to pay under the federal proposal.

In B.C. such a move would likely mean increasing the price the B.C. Petroleum Corporation pays to producers for gas since the BCPC now pays 22 cents per thousand cubic feet for the gas it buys and sells it for an average of 82 cents thus accruing a large profit.

By insisting that taxes be based on the fair market value of gas, Ottawa is saying it will tax companies on a value of gas higher than the 22 cents it is paid by the BCPC.

But Barrett said the B.C. government has no intention of backing down on its marketing scheme, worked out earlier in the year with federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, and he wired Drury back again seeking a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau, Macdonald and Finance Minister John Turner.

Barrett said drilling companies must know the outcome of the dispute within 10 days if this winter's drilling program, already delayed, is to be salvaged at all.

He suggested Jan. 10 as a possible day for talks in Ottawa.

Earlier in the day Barrett said his government is prepared to suggest some "posi-

CITY STRIKE TALKS VITAL

A critical mediation meeting was under way today in an attempt to avert a strike of 280 city outside workers.

Mediation officer Clark Gilmour was meeting representatives of City Hall and Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees. The union has served strike notice but cannot strike until Gilmour withdraws as mediator.

The municipal employers co-ordinating committee, meanwhile, met this morning and issued a public statement at noon which said in part:

"Some plain words must be said. Massive pay raises only speed inflation and are ultimately self-defeating. An economic recession is no time to seek major gains.

In the past five years, salaries and benefits paid by our local governments have risen by more than 60 per cent while the Canadian consumer price index rose by 34 per cent. Current municipal salaries are well in advance of what is paid by many for comparable work."

The statement, couched in generalities, did not say if the employers are prepared to increase the rejected 15.75 per cent wage offers or what they will do if a single strike occurs.

Capital Regional District board chairman Jim Campbell declined to say whether or not the committee has decided to institute a general lockout in the event of a single strike.

"Well, we don't want to threaten anyone," he said after this morning's meeting. "We are prepared to respond to situations if we have to."

It was disclosed three weeks ago that such a move had been discussed by the committee, comprised of representatives of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Sidney, the regional district and Greater Victoria school board, but no decision had been made at that time.

Campbell, who said he was speaking personally, expressed disappointment at the decision by members of CUPE Local 388, representing 200 office and technical employees at City Hall, to reject a 15.75 per cent wage increase for this year and adjustments for lower-paid classifications as high as 34 per cent.

The union said the offer was not accepted because it did not contain a cost of living clause.

"I'm really concerned that it appears clear to me that the union hierarchy is directing individual locals," said Campbell, who acknowledged that Local 388 had recommended members accept the pay offer.

"In my personal view that is the problem. I think the advice is incredibly bad at this stage of the game and in these times."

USC Boxcar Still Not Full

People in Great Victoria have contributed $20,00 to the local Unitarian Services Committee campaign — and the goal of a boxcar-load of milk for children in Bangladesh is almost met.

Christmas has passed. But gifts are still in fashion. Hunger n Bangladesh hasn't passed with the holiday season.

It will cost $22,785 to buy, insure and ship the 36,000-pound carload of powdered milk. That's the target Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the USC, hoped for when she launched the Greater Victoria icampaign six weeks ago.

It was optimistic. The most successful previous annual campaign produced $16,641.83 in 1971.

But it was truly needed, she said.

Just $2,800 to go.

What sort of people have brought the campaign so close to success? Beth, Jennifer and Cathy sent their $2 with a note explaining they collected it Christmas carolling.

One family sent $10 with word they had decided to contribute instead of going out to dinner.

Many people said they were giving to the USC in place of sending Christmas cards.

The one question remaining? Will the rest of us sit around, counting on the other person to get that boxcar rolling?

Contributions to the Unitarian Services Committee can be mailed in care of the Vic-

U.K. Pilots Rip Hijack Gamble

Times News Services

LONDON — The British Airline Pilots' Association today condemned the drawn-out negotiations and fake flight to France used to thwart Britain's first internal hijack as a dangerous gamble with the lives of crew members.

The nine-hour drama ended Tuesday night with the Capture at Stansted, 34 miles northeast of London, of the hijacker who used a toy pistol and a dummy grenade to take over a BAC111 jet with its five crew members, extort $235,000 and demand a flight to France.

The only casualty was a steward who was bitten by a police dog.

The hijacker was to appear in court today. Police did not announce his identity but said he was an unemployed 27-year-old native of Iran living in England.

It was the first hijacking ever of a domestic British flight. The man commandeered the British Airways BAC111 as it was preparing to land at Heathrow Airport here after a flight from Manchester.

He held stewardess Barbara Brindley at gunpoint and demanded: "Tell the captain I would like to go to Paris. I have nothing to live for and we must go there."

Police said later the gun was a realistic-looking toy and the canister contained no bomb.

When the plane landed at Heathrow, the hijacker allowed the 46 passengers to get off and demanded the money and a parachute. Troops and police ringed the plane.

The hijacker held the crew for seven hours while Lea, seemingly angry, tried to talk security officials in the control tower into producing the ransom. He said the man was "obviously deranged" and was threatening to shoot the crew and blow up the plane.

Finally, officials handed over a parachute and the ransom.

But French authorities refused to allow the plane to land in France. Security chiefs decided to have Lea fly over England for more than an hour, then land at Stansted, an airport for charter craft north of London, where they would try to make the hijacker believe he was in France.

Two plane loads of troops and police were rushed to Stansted, and all signs and billboards there were covered, but the ruse did not work.

Police said the hijacker realized he was not in France and demanded a car to take him to Dover.

A police dog handler grabbed the hijacker a few yards from the plane, and in the melee the handler's dog bit Bond. His wound was minor.

NEWS BRIEFS

First Trains Move Since Strike End

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first freight trains to move on B.C. Railway tracks since a strike by shopcraft workers began six weeks ago were in operation Tuesday. Two northbound trains, one out of North Vancouver and one out of Prince George, started moving shortly after a new nine-month contract between shopcraft workers and the railway was signed.

Gold Price Up

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold rose on all European bullion markets today on renewed demand from the Middle East as well as Europeans.

MD Protest Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. government salaried doctors Tuesday shelved plans to disrupt services as a protest against the government's refusal to recognize the B.C. Medical Association as their formal bargaining agent.

Fare Hike Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC) has launched legal efforts to halt proposed rail passenger fare increases to take effect Jan. 15.

RAID NETS IRA CHIEF

DUBLIN (UPI) — Police raided a small home near Dublin today and captured a top Irish Republican Army leader accused of masterminding the pre-Christmas bombing blitz in Britain. The IRA said the arrest endangered the fragile Northern Ireland cease-fire.

Police said Kevin Mallon, 37, second in command of the outlawed IRA, the most wanted man in all of Northern Ireland, Britain and Ireland, offered no resistance.

6,600 Oilmen Out

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (UPI) — An estimated 6,600 Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union members defied their national leaders and struck Gulf and Texaco oil refineries at one minute past midnight today, setting up picket lines and shutting down the sprawling facilities.

"We are going on the old union philosophy of no contract, no work," said Floyd Forse, chairman of the Texaco main plant group, OCAW local 4-23.

The walkout came despite announcement by OCAW president A. F. Grospiron in Denver that negotiations with the petroleum industry would continue today. Contracts expired at midnight Tuesday, but the union instructed its 60,000 members at oil refineries across the nation to remain on their jobs.

SEARCH LAUNCHED FOR MISSING MAN

A full-scale search on Salt Spring Island was launched by the RCMP today for a man who apparently wandered, naked, into the bushland Tuesday afternoon.

An RCMP spokesman said two police dogs were called in and an aerial search carried out by the RCMP helicopter, based at Pat Bay airport.

He said the man, known only as Joe, lived in the Ganges area, having no fixed address, wandering from place to place.

He is believed to be 22.

He left the home of a friend, Glen McGee, about 2:30 p.m., McGee following him about half an hour later.

Customs Probed Gift to Margaret

OTTAWA (UPI) — A scrape with the RCMP and Customs officials has convinced Prime Minister Trudeau that he and his family have to begin looking gift horses in the mouth.

Nudged by a recent incident in which Customs and police officials investigated a $3,000 gift of photographic equipment from King Hussein of Jordan to Trudeau's wife Margaret, the prime minister has begun preparing guidelines on gift acceptance which may be made public by March, a spokesman for his office said.

During Hussein's visit to Canada last September, Mrs. Trudeau told him she was studying photography. When he learned she did not have her own equipment, he promised to give her a camera.

It subsequently entered Canada twice without import duty being paid, triggering the investigation, spokesmen said.

The equipment brought from Brussels by Mrs. Trudeau is impressive: a Nikon F2 single lens reflex with built-in light meter; a motor drive; a 28mm wide-angle lens; a normal lens; an 80-200mm zoom; a Braun vario-computer auto-flash; a full series of filters and a camera bag itself worth about $300. At Canadian prices, the equipment would cost slightly more than $3,000.

"The king was here in September ... the king offered Mrs. Trudeau a camera, which was delivered in Brussels by a representative of the king," a spokesman for the Prime Minister's office said.

Mrs. Trudeau displayed the equipment to news photographers aboard the government plane bringing the official party back from Europe, he added.

After two days in Canada, he said, Mrs. Trudeau left for Japan, carrying the new equipment. Reports from Japan that she was using new equipment alerted the Customs bureau and the RCMP.

On her return in November the prime minister's office was approached by both agencies and asked to explain how the equipment got into Canada.

Athlete Talks About Discrimination He Hasn't Felt

max low

Racial discrimination, what's that?

Ask Amarjit Hundal and it's almost as though he had never heard of the term. And that's good. But get him on the subject of jet flights and holidays that turn into whirlwind courtships and marriage and he knows all about it. Only too well.

In Monday's Times there was a story with a low-keyed warning that discrimination against East Indians was "lurking" behind the scenes in Victoria and that trouble could flare up the way it has done in Vancouver. But Amarjit doesn't believe it.

It's more than four years since Amarjit came here from India's northern Punjab State. "And in that time, I've never had a single experience where anyone has discriminated against me, not in my work nor where I live — not anywhere," he says.

If you think back, though, it's only a year since Amarjit, a tall and strikingly good-looking athlete, pulled his all-East Indian Tigers team out of the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association. The charge: discrimination.

But Amarjit relaxes in his comfortable modern apartment, pours you a beer, and quickly explains that the Tigers felt then that they were being discriminated against by some of the referees not because of their race but because they had a "strong team and were winning all the time."

Now the Tigers are back in the league and they are glad and so are the men's field hockey officials.

In his work and private life, Amarjit has been treated no differently to those born right here in Canada. "We (he shares the Maplewood Green apartment with Parmjit Atwal) have been in this building for two years and there has been no trouble. And in my work I am head shipper for Maplewood Poultry Ltd. and hold the most important job in the plant, so there is certainly no discrimination there."

Parmjit joins us and sits quietly listening to the talk and then says almost as quietly that he is starting into weightlifting, drives a truck for a firm that cleans chimneys and furnaces and no, he has never been discriminated against in the two years and four months he has been in Canada.

Amarjit grins, nods toward his roommate and says: "The guy he works for likes him so much — they are just like family."

But Amarjit admits it has been easier for him than for many East Indians coming to Canada. He is well educated, has a university degree and for 10 years was a technician in the Indian Air Force. He represented his country's air force team in international field hockey, India's national game.

"I had travelled so much in India, been to university and read so much about this way of life that I didn't have any problem adjusting to it," says Amarjit. However, lots of other East Indians coming to Canada, almost all of whom come from Punjab State, know little of life here and have language problems as well, he explains.

"All the five fingers are not equal," Amarjit offers kind of wisely. "There are bad members of every society and there are probably 10 times as many East Indians in Vancouver as there are in Victoria. In a big city like that, anything can happen."

And then Amarjit smiles hugely as he tells of his holiday in England that turned into a wedding in India.

One of six children, Amarjit flew to London to visit a sister who lives in the predominantly East Indian suburb of Southall. After two and-a-half weeks of living it up in Britain, Amarjit was all set to come back to Canada. Then he was jolted back to Indian reality. He received a telegram from his parents summoning him to return home.

Like an obedient son, he was on the plane the next day.

"And when I got to India, my parents had this girl in mind for me; so they wanted me to see her and see if I wanted to get married or not," he explains. "Somehow, we liked each other and decided to get married."

His bride, Abnash, a 27-year-old teacher with a masters degree and State champion in both javelin and discus, will join him in Canada in about three months.

Yes, says Amarjit, most marriages are still arranged in India, "but they do ask your consent — nothing was final until I said yes."

There was, he said, no hitch in his marrying a Canadian girl, if he wanted to. But he just didn't find the "right one" in his four years here and his parents obviously felt he'd had long enough to look and that, at age 33, it was time he was wed.

"I didn't plan it would happen within two weeks like that," says Amarjit. "It's a pretty short time." It was so short, in fact, that there wasn't even time to arrange the usual grand wedding ceremony. "It was just a small family affair with a few close friends."

Roommate Parmjit, too, would quite like a trip home to India but he's playing it cool right now. At 23, he figures he's got plenty of time before someone lines him up with a bride.

Except for a small placard on the wall with the Sikh National Anthem inscribed in both English and Hindu, it's just like your average Canadian apartment. And then, why shouldn't it be? Here are two likeable guys fitting in so well and, without trying too hard, on their way to becoming "average Canadians."

There is an echo, a chorus of "Don't go" as you rise, an offer to "share our meal," which smelled so great that I wish now that I had, and at the door there is sincerity.

"Do visit us sometimes," says Amarjit. And Parmjit adds quickly: "Yes, just pop in."

Thanks, indeed, I will.

Cruiser Burns, Sinks

A 24-foot pleasure boat caught fire and sank at Centre Shipyards, 130 Kingston, early this morning.

The boat, valued at $14,000 and owned by Joe Levine, assistant manager of the shipyard, was destroyed. Levine said he carried insurance for only half value.

Victoria firemen attended at 12:33 a.m. after nearby apartment residents turned in the alarm.

But by the time firemen arrived the boat, which had been tied to a float near the shipyard way, had burned to the waterline.

No sooner had firemen turned their hoses on the burning boat than it sunk in 10 feet of water.

The fire ignited a boatshed but firemen were able to extinguish the blaze before any damage was done.

No one was aboard Levine's boat at the time.

A fire department spokesman said the fire appeared to have been caused by a short circuit in an electric cord supplying power to the boat.

Levine said the stern line had burned off allowing the boat to swing away from the float and helped prevent the fire from spreading to other boats.

YOUNG
. . . awake anyway

Early Start Refused

City aldermen Tuesday ignored a plea by the Construction Association of Victoria for a one-hour earlier starting time on construction activity during dark winter days.

The public works committee recommended the city adhere to its present policy, which under the noise prevention bylaw prohibits construction except between the hours of 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

The Construction Association had requested a 7 a.m. starting time, pointing out in a letter that during November, December and January the combination of restricted daylight working hours and bad weather "substantially" curtails the industry's output.

But aldermen couldn't agree what to do with the request, and ended up doing nothing by giving it the "received and filed" treatment.

Among the suggestions tossed out were one from Ald. Mike Young, that the earlier start be allowed because "the paper boy wakes you anyway;" and from Ald. Sam Bawlf, that the 7 a.m. concession be allowed only in the downtown area and exclude blasting.

THE SUB COMPACT

Victoria Times
WEDNESDAY, JAN. 8, 1975 21
SECOND SECTION

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The Victoria Real Estate Board thinks it has a better idea to solve the housing shortage – the $35,000 house.

It's not your usual house.

And it's not your deluxe model. No fancy carpets. No expensive fixtures. Possibly the inside walls would be unpainted.

But it's inexpensive, as new houses go.

At the present time, new three-bedroom houses in the Victoria area sell between $52,000 and $60,000. This is for a three-bedroom, one-and-a-half bathroom home of about 1,200 square feet on a lot 60 feet by 120 feet.

The real estate board says municipalities in 1975 should consider altering their zoning regulations to permit smaller lots and smaller houses.

Lots could be reduced to 30 feet by 60 feet, large enough for a two-bedroom starter home, the board says. These would have a basement and single bathroom but no carpets on the floors.

The main purpose behind it all would be to enable young couples to buy a new house for $35,000.

Buying a new house is better than buying an old one, the board reasons, because the ancient $35,000 special can contain unpleasant surprises, like the need for new wiring or a new roof.

Young couples would rather do a little work themselves in the form of painting rather than have to hire someone to carry out expensive repair jobs on an older house.

The sub compact model home would serve a double function in Victoria — as a starter for young couples and as a retirement home, which is in high demand here.

Victoria builders say it is feasible to construct a $35,000 home if lots are made small enough. Each foot frontage costs $350. If a 60-foot lot costs $22,000, a 30-foot lot would cost about $11,000.

The sub compact home described by the board could, indeed, be constructed for just over $20,000, making an end price of about $35,000 for house and lot.

The builders and the real estate board agree the main problem is a reluctance on the part of municipalities to reducing lot size.

Saanich is the core municipality where most single family homes are being constructed at the present time.

Mayor Ed Lum called the real estate board proposal an interesting idea but not necessarily a better idea.

The problem, he said, is the cost of servicing land, which narrows down to the rather prosaic topic of sewers. Saanich is geared to a moderate-sized sewer system based upon about 15 people per acre.

The real estate board's proposal would result in about 35 to 40 people per acre. This would force Saanich to redesign its sewer system, an expensive undertaking.

"If the real estate board comes to us on an official basis with a plan of this nature we will run it through our planning department for an opinion. However, on the surface it seems to present insurmountable difficulties, at least for 1975."

It appeared to be a case of a rather imaginative idea running aground because of the high cost of services, he said.

"However, it is certainly worth looking at."

While it was not certain the idea could get off the ground in 1975 because of municipal reluctance, there was considerable controversy both within the board and among builders as to whether Victorians were really interested in cut rate housing.

"The problem is not simply inflation, but an inflation of expectations," a board member said. "People want more and more each year. It is the fancy car that sells, not the plain Jane model."

However, houses are not cars. And the majority of the board felt Victorians would be interested in saving $15,000 or $20,000 on the cost of a new house, even if it was small and plain.

One major Victoria builder wasn't so sure. He said Victorians could buy a three-bedroom condominium for the same price of the sub compact two-bedroom home. He doubted many would put up with the limited space for the sake of personal independence associated with home ownership.

Particularly when it was temporary accommodation in any case.

The second time the wife gets pregnant, it's game over for the two-bedroom home.

He said most young couples seem to want to rent until they can afford to buy the three-bedroom home, preferably the deluxe model.

These are soon going to cost in the price range of $60,000 — to start.

Meanwhile, the real estate board plans to try to sell young couples — and municipalities — on the idea of the $35,000 subcompact for 1975.

Passmore 'Freedom'

Les Passmore, who retired in December after 33 years on Saanich council, will be given the freedom of Saanich at a ceremony at 8 p.m. Jan. 31 in the Cedar Hill Community Centre.

Passmore, along with a score of other residents, sat quietly in the council chamber this week as council voted to confer the honor.

Passmore will become the fourth resident to receive the freedom of Saanich, the others being Maj.-Gen. George R. Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes and well-known conservationist Freeman King.

Laid Off Employees Must Be Reimbursed

A Victoria legal research company, Victro Registry Services, has been ordered by the B.C. Labor Relations Board to reimburse two employees for lost wages.

In a 14-page decision, the board found the company violated a section of the Labor Code which prohibits discipline and discharge because of union activity.

The Service Employees International Union sought $604.28 for Wayne Murdoch, but not his reinstatement because he has other work, and $391.88 and holiday pay for James Ubukata, who has been rehired on a part-time basis.

The board said the company notified both men last August they were being laid off for economic reasons. But it said the company has failed to discharge the burden of proof "and the layoff of both Murdoch and Ubukata occurred because of their participation in the trade union.

"The two decisions of the employer, to cut back 50 per cent of its work and lay off a number of its employees, were an immediate and not very subtle reminder to anyone who was employed by this employer that it is not healthy economically to be involved with the union."

The board ordered the company to pay Murdoch $4.75 an hour for loss of wages between Aug. 23 and Sept. 11, plus holiday pay, and to pay Ubukata $4.75 an hour for 15 part-time shifts between Aug. 23 and Sept. 16, plus holiday pay.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you let me know if Jennifer Jones is alive or not. If not, when did she pass on? B.A.

A. Jones is still alive, and can be seen in the movie The Towering Inferno, now showing in Victoria, in which she falls to her death from the height of 80 storeys.

Q. Could you please tell me which is the most frequently used word in the English language? — M.B.

A. Most common in order of usage are: the, of, and, to, a, in, that, is, I, it, for and as. The most used in conversation is "I," says the Guinness Book of Records.

Museum Buys Shop Contents

The contents of a Chinese herbalist's shop which operated in Victoria for almost 90 years have been sold to the Heritage Village Museum in Burnaby and will be set up in a display shop.

The shop opened in Victoria in the 1880s and operated until seven years ago in the 1400-block Government. The owner of the shop, who lives in Ladysmith, removed the almost six tons of artifacts and natural medicines from the shop a year ago and the contents will now be moved to the Burnaby museum site.

Museum curator John Adams said many of the shop's contents were imported from China when the shop was first started and are considered rare.

The collection includes a large set of wooden drawers used for storing herbs which has a carved frame of gilded wood and a fifty pound cast iron grinder which is operated by foot power.

The museum has operated in Burnaby for three years and depicts a typical town of the Lower Mainland between 1890 and 1920. A general store, a blacksmith's, a printshop, a dress shop, an ice cream parlor, a church and a large country house are already set up on the museum site.

Adams said the Victoria herbalist's shop is typical of those found on Vancouver Island and Vancouver in the late 1800s.

GARDEN HEARING

A public hearing will be held in Saanich on a request from the provincial government to establish six acres of allotment gardens on Gordon Head Road near Feltham.

The hearing is expected to be held at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 27.

In a letter, Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said his department intends to lease the property from the Catholic Public Schools of Victoria Diocese for two years.

The land is zoned residentially.

$2,075 Awarded For Injuries

A 26-year-old Victoria man who received skull and thumb fractures from assailants was awarded $2,075 under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act of B.C.

Six awards toatlling $12,000 and a lifetime pension were announced during December under the provincial Act.

Under the Act anyone injured by crime in B.C. may apply for financial assistance through the Workers Compensation Board which administers the legislation.

Camping Demand Taxes Parks Branch

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Use of provincial parks is increasing so much the parks branch can't keep up with demands for more camping facilities, the deputy minister of Recreation and Conservation said today.

"Coupled with demands for more park facilities are more and more requests for parks — especially near urban areas," said Lloyd Brooks. "We are in a dilemma.

"The demands for facilities and parks exceed the yearly population growth. Costs are rising sharply."

Brooks statements follow a park branch report that attendance in provincial parks in 1974 climbed to an all-time high of 10,549,000. Attendance was 9,986,000 in 1973.

Attendance at the Long Beach section of the national park was 543,742 last year.

Brooks said part of the problem facing the parks branch is trying to make up for lost time in park development.

"For years there was little park expansion and park development," he said. "Now, it is a question of filling these needs."

"The $2 charge for camping in parks pays only half the cost of operation," he said.

This raised the question of whether people should continue to subsidize parks out of general revenue or should the parks pay their own way, he said.

"If we raised the camping fee to $5, it would mean that many young married couples with children could no longer afford using our parks," he said. "These are the people who probably need them most."

He said costs for repairing damage caused by vandals had also gone up sharply.

"So have costs for upgrading facilities in some parks to curb pollution," he added. "For example, pit latrines in some parks are no longer acceptable in view of the large camping population."

Brooks noted the 1974 park statistics showed some interesting trends:

—More and more British Columbians are spending their holidays in their native province rather than in other parts of Canada and the United States.

—For the first time in years the use of tents in parks increased. Camper accommodation in '74: 35.5 per cent tents; camper vehicles 32.3; trailers 17.9; tent trailers 14.9.

—In 1974 63.9 per cent of campers came from B.C.; 20.2 from other provinces and 15.9 from the U.S.

In 1973, 58 per cent were from B.C., 31 per cent from other parts of Canada and 21 per cent from the U.S.

Parks official John Walter said figures do not include backpackers who visit wilderness parks.

"It is difficult to keep a count of people who camp in the wilderness areas of parks instead of designated campsites," he said. "But indications are that they are increasing rapidly."

GARDENING

The Wind's Role in Pollination

Before the birds indulge in their winter feast of berries, gardeners might like to talk about why some shrubs of a given genus will have ample crops while those in other gardens have few.

This thought came to my attention last week while enjoying the sight of massed orange berries on pyracantha (Firethorn) shrubs on the south-facing wall of the Victoria Press building.

There must be 20 plants there, spaced about eight to 10 feet apart, with one gap for an air vent and another for the side entrance door. I noticed that fewer berries were formed on the first plant on the wall, the first one after the ventilator gap and the first after the entrance. Why?

Could it be that the prevailing wind from the upper harbor at flowering times assisted in pollination all down the line where plants were adjacent, but those having no near neighbor to windward were poorly pollinated?

We have all found that one small plant of a berrying shrub sets far fewer fruits than expected from the amount of blooming, whereas when the same shrub grows larger, pollination is good.

Gardeners will notice that bees do much pollinating on cotoneasters and firethorns, for the shrubs are abuzz with honey bees in May as the lightly scented flowers open in their thousands. They are a pretty sight, yet an unnoticing gardener will say quite sincerely "I didn't know cotoneasters (or firethorns) flowered."

Here again, when more than one cotoneaster is grown in a garden there seems to be more effective pollination, resulting in quantities of berries. But I have also noticed that wind direction plays some part in this too.

If bees alone are responsible, one can spend a few hours pondering where the bees come from and go when not busy working on the pyracanthas down on the Press building.

Kings Road, alongside, is scarcely a haven for honey bees though the street has hundreds of swallows in spring and early summer flying beneath the hawthorns, apparently snatching dangling caterpillars as they go, as well as any flying insects which emerge in warm moist weather of late spring. Flocks of robins too have already been noticed sampling the ripened berries on the second day of this year.

Since the groundcover in front of the pyracanthas is of a prostrate form of cotoneaster also liberally endowed with berries, the robins are assured of a royal feast indeed.

Gardeners with a newly planted shrub which was bought for the beauty of its berries should not despair at the few seen for the first years. Either get another as a companion for cross pollination or wait until the one plant becomes large enough to have masses of flowers.

In nurseries, it is usual to see fine crops of berries on even the small sizes of ornamental shrubs because of the quantity of plants of the same kind. But a single small plant taken to a private garden where none of the same genus are already growing, may remain barren for several years.

When the berries come, don't grudge the birds their share; as the city expands the areas of blacktop, fewer birds are seen.

CITY ESCAPES UNSCATHED

Victoria escaped virtually unscathed from overnight snow, high winds, phone and power failures that hit other parts of Vancouver Island west of Sooke and north of the Malahat.

Between three and four inches of new snow was reported on the Malahat, creating the worst driving conditions of the season while highway maintenance crews plowed, salted and sanded the pavement.

But further north conditions became steadily worse late Tuesday and early this morning, some parts of Duncan getting a foot of snow and a total 11 inches reported at Cassidy airport just south of Nanaimo.

Meanwhile, Jordan River and Port Renfrew were without electric power and telephone connections to Port Renfrew were reported out by the RCMP at Sooke.

U.S. Naval Force: Mideast or Vietnam?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A powerful U.S. navy carrier fleet sailed toward the Indian Ocean today amid intense speculation as to its ultimate destination.

Rumblings persisted over State Secretary Henry Kissinger's interpreted warning of possible U.S. military action in the Persian Gulf. At the same time there is increasing concern here over the Vietnamese situation.

There were reports that senior defence officials pondered in recent days whether to delay the Enterprise's entrance into the Indian Ocean because its appearance there now might agitate Arab and other countries already aroused by Kissinger's veiled remarks about possible U.S. military action.

The six-ship study mission, led by the 85,000-ton nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise, was expected to enter the Indian Ocean within a few days after a voyage from Subic Bay in the Philippines.

Pentagon spokesman William Beecher said Tuesday the group is on an operational mission, but denied reports it is bound for waters off South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, waves of South Vietnamese planes attacked the Viet Cong headquarters at Loc Ninh and nearby Communist areas in retaliation for the loss of the capital of Phuoc Long province, the Saigon command announced today.

Fighter-bombers raided troop concentrations, anti-aircraft positions, ammunition dumps and supply centres in the Communist zones below the Cambodian border north of Saigon Tuesday night and today, and pilots reported ammunition explosions that sent smoke 3,000 feet into the air, a command spokesman said.

Saigon today also appealed to the United States to help turn back the Communist offensive.

"We need assistance, especially from the American people," acting Foreign Minister Ngo Khac Tinh said.

"The government and people of Vietnam call on the United States government to support this struggle."

Tinh, in comments at a special government briefing, accused Communist nations of "helping North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to invade South Vietnam."

"The Vietnamese people cannot sit here with our hands tied after fighting 20 years for the cause of freedom," he said.

The loss of Phuoc Long province north of Saigon, the biggest government defeat since U.S. troops pulled out of South Vietnam two years ago, extended Communist territory to within 35 miles of the capital.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials said privately the decision of Congress to slash Indochina military aid is partly to blame for the losses during the three-week-old Communist offensive.

In Washington, a White House spokesman said President Ford has been watching the stepped-up fighting with concern but would "live up to the law" barring U.S. military action in Indochina.

Military officers in Saigon said an estimated 2,000 troops and 40,000 civilians are missing in Phuoc Long. Many of the missing are believed to be dead or captured, they added.

Watergate Prisoners To Go Free

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Wednesday reduced the sentences of three major Watergate figures — John W. Dean III, Jeb Stuart Magruder and Herbert Kalmbach — to time already served and set the stage for their immediate release from prison.

Sirica, the judge who first broke open the scandal and presided over the recent Watergate cover-up trial, gave no reason for reducing the sentences of the three defendants.

Sirica said in his brief commutation orders that "on consideration of the defendant's motion for reduction of sentence . . . it is ordered that the unexecuted and or remaining portion of the sentence . . . is reduced to time already served."

A spokesman for the federal court said he believed the three men would be released immediately. The three were all in Ft. Holabird, Md., where they were taken to testify at the cover-up trial and had not been returned to prison where they had been serving time.

President Ford had no prior knowledge of the release and would make no comment, a White House spokesman said.

Sirica handed down three short orders amending his sentences in each of the three cases.

According to the orders, Dean filed his reduction of sentence motion Dec. 2, Magruder filed his on Sept. 18 and Kalmbach's was filed Oct. 9.

Gas Tax Wires Flying

Premier Barrett fired off another telegram to Ottawa Tuesday repeating his request for immediate talks on natural gas taxation despite a negative response earlier in the day.

At the same time Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told reporters B.C. has not ruled out the possibility of a court battle over resource taxation.

Acting Prime Minister C. M. Drury replied to Barrett's original request for a meeting with federal cabinet ministers, sent out Monday, by suggesting that any uncertainties concerning new federal taxation proposals "have been explained."

Barrett had said in his original telegram that "proposals, ambiguities and uncertainties at the present time are having serious impact upon natural gas development in B.C."

Drury replied that if there are urgent problems in drilling, the federal government would hope B.C. could make arrangements "as they have been made in Alberta."

Essentially Drury was suggesting that Barrett follow the lead of Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed in compensating gas companies for the increased taxes they would be forced to pay under the federal proposal.

In B.C. such a move would likely mean increasing the price the B.C. Petroleum Corporation pays to producers for gas since the BCPC now pays 22 cents per thousand cubic feet for the gas it buys and sells it for an average of 82 cents thus accruing a large profit.

By insisting that taxes be based on the fair market value of gas, Ottawa is saying it will tax companies on a value of gas higher than the 22 cents it is paid by the BCPC.

But Barrett said the B.C. government has no intention of backing down on its marketing scheme, worked out earlier in the year with federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, and he wired Drury back again seeking a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau, Macdonald and Finance Minister John Turner.

Barrett said drilling companies must know the outcome of the dispute within 10 days if this winter's drilling program, already delayed, is to be salvaged at all.

He suggested Jan. 10 as a possible day for talks in Ottawa.

RAID NETS IRA CHIEF

DUBLIN (UPI) — Police raided a small home near Dublin today and captured a top Irish Republican Army leader accused of masterminding the pre-Christmas bombing blitz in Britain. The IRA said the arrest endangered the fragile Northern Ireland cease-fire.

Police said Kevin Mallon, 37, second in command of the outlawed IRA, the most wanted man in all of Northern Ireland, Britain and Ireland, offered no resistance.

SOGGY SIGNATURE of yet another storm lies over Dallas Road at Boyd Street today, where winds from the southwest gusted to 64 miles an hour and waves hurled this carpet of wood chips and seaweed over seawall.

CITY STRIKE TALKS VITAL

A critical mediation meeting was under way today in an attempt to avert a strike of 280 city outside workers.

Mediation officer Clark Gilmour was meeting representatives of City Hall and Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees. The union has served strike notice but cannot strike until Gilmour withdraws as mediator.

The municipal employers co-ordinating committee, meanwhile, met this morning and issued a public statement at noon which said in part:

"Some plain words must be said. Massive pay raises only speed inflation and are ultimately self-defeating. An economic recession is no time to seek major gains.

"In the past five years, salaries and benefits paid by our local governments have risen by more than 60 per cent while the Canadian consumer price index rose by 34 per cent. Current municipal salaries are well in advance of what is paid by many for comparable work."

The statement, couched in generalities, did not say if the employers are prepared to increase the rejected 15.75 per cent wage offer or what they will do if a single strike occurs.

Capital Regional District board chairman Jim Campbell declined to say whether or not the committee has decided to institute a general lockout in the event of a single strike.

"Well, we don't want to threaten anyone," he said after this morning's meeting. "We are prepared to respond to situations if we have to."

It was disclosed three weeks ago that such a move had been discussed by the committee, comprised of representatives of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Sidney, the regional district and Greater Victoria school board, but no decision had been made at that time.

Campbell, who said he was speaking personally, expressed disappointment at the decision by members of CUPE Local 388, representing 200 office and technical employees at City Hall, to reject a 15.75 per cent wage increase for this year and adjustments for lower-paid classifications as high as 34 per cent.

The union said the offer was not accepted because it did not contain a cost of living clause.

"I'm really concerned that it appears clear to me that the union hierarchy is directing individual locals," said Campbell, who acknowledged that Local 388 had recommended members accept the pay offer.

"In my personal view that is the problem. I think the advice is incredibly bad at this stage of the game and in these times."

U.K. Pilots Rip Hijack Gamble

Times News Services

LONDON — The British Airline Pilots' Association today condemned the drawn-out negotiations and fake flight to France used to thwart Britain's first internal hijack as a dangerous gamble with the lives of crew members.

The nine-hour drama ended Tuesday night with the Capture at Stansted, 34 miles northeast of London, of the hijacker who used a toy pistol and a dummy grenade to take over a BAC111 jet with its five crew members, extort $235,000 and demand a flight to France.

The only casualty was a steward who was bitten by a police dog.

The hijacker was to appear in court today. Police did not announce his identity but said he was an unemployed 27-year-old native of Iran living in England.

It was the first hijacking ever of a domestic British flight. The man commandeered the British Airways BAC111 as it was preparing to land at Heathrow Airport here after a flight from Manchester.

He held stewardess Barbara Brindley at gunpoint and demanded: "Tell the captain I would like to go to Paris. I have nothing to live for and we must go there."

Police said later the gun was a realistic-looking toy and the canister contained no bomb.

When the plane landed at Heathrow, the hijacker allowed the 46 passengers to get off and demanded the money and a parachute. Troops and police ringed the plane.

The hijacker held the crew for seven hours while the pilot, seemingly angry, tried to talk security officials in the control tower into producing the ransom. He said the man was "obviously deranged" and was threatening to shoot the crew and blow up the plane.

Finally, officials handed over a parachute and the ransom.

But French authorities refused to allow the plane to land in France. Security chiefs decided to have it fly over England for more than an hour, then land at Stansted, an airport for charter craft north of London, where they would try to make the hijacker believe he was in France.

Two plane loads of troops and police were rushed to Stansted, and all signs and billboards there were covered, but the ruse did not work.

Police said the hijacker realized he was not in France and demanded a car to take him to Dover.

A police dog handler grabbed the hijacker a few yards from the plane, and in the melee the handler's dog bit Bond. His wound was minor.

First Trains Move Since Strike End

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first freight trains to move on B.C. Railway tracks since a strike by shopcraft workers began six weeks ago were in operation Tuesday. Two northbound trains, one out of North Vancouver and one out of Prince George, started moving shortly after a new nine-month contract between shopcraft workers and the railway was signed.

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold rose on all European bullion markets today on renewed demand from the Middle East as well as Europeans.

MD Protest Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. government salaried doctors Tuesday shelved plans to disrupt services as a protest against the government's refusal to recognize the B.C. Medical Association as their formal bargaining agent.

Fare Hike Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC) has launched legal efforts to halt proposed rail passenger fare increases to take effect Jan. 15.

USC Boxcar Still Not Full

People in Great Victoria have contributed $20,000 to the local Unitarian Services Committee campaign — and the goal of a boxcar-load of milk for children in Bangladesh is almost met.

Christmas has passed. But gifts are still in fashion. Hunger in Bangladesh hasn't passed with the holiday season.

It will cost $22,785 to buy, insure and ship the 36,000-pound carload of powdered milk. That's the target Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the USC, hoped for when she launched the Greater Victoria campaign six weeks ago.

It was optimistic. The most successful previous annual campaign produced $16,641.83 in 1971.

But it was truly needed, she said.

Just $2,800 to go.

What sort of people have brought the campaign so close to success? Beth, Jennifer and Cathy sent their $2 with a note explaining they collected it Christmas carolling.

One family sent $10 with word they had decided to contribute instead of going out to dinner.

Many people said they were giving to the USC in place of sending Christmas cards.

The one question remaining? Will the rest of us sit around, counting on the other person to get that boxcar rolling?

Contributions to the Unitarian Services Committee can be mailed in care of the Vic-

6,600 Oilmen Out

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (UPI) — An estimated 6,600 Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union members defied their national leaders and struck Gulf and Texaco oil refineries at one minute past midnight today, setting up picket lines and shutting down the sprawling facilities.

"We are going on the old union philosophy of no contract, no work," said Floyd Forse, chairman of the Texaco main plant group, OCAW local 4-23.

The walkout came despite announcement by OCAW president A. F. Grospiron in Denver that negotiations with the petroleum industry would continue today. Contracts expired at midnight Tuesday, but the union instructed its 60,000 members at oil refineries across the nation to remain on their jobs.

SEARCH LAUNCHED FOR MISSING MAN

A full-scale search on Salt Spring Island was launched by the RCMP today for a man who apparently wandered, naked, into the bushland Tuesday afternoon.

An RCMP spokesman said two police dogs were called in and an aerial search carried out by the RCMP helicopter, based at Pat Bay airport.

He said the man, known only as Joe, lived in the Ganges area, having no fixed address, wandering from place to place.

He is believed to be 22.

He left the home of a friend, Glen McGee, about 2:30 p.m., McGee following him about half an hour later.

Customs Probed Gift to Margaret

OTTAWA (UPI) — A scrape with the RCMP and Customs officials has convinced Prime Minister Trudeau that he and his family have to begin looking gift horses in the mouth.

Nudged by a recent incident in which Customs and police officials investigated a $3,000 gift of photographic equipment from King Hussein of Jordan to Trudeau's wife Margaret, the prime minister has begun preparing guidelines on gift acceptance which may be made public by March, a spokesman for his office said.

During Hussein's visit to Canada last September, Mrs. Trudeau told him she was studying photography. When he learned she did not have her own equipment, he promised to give her a camera.

It subsequently entered Canada twice without import duty being paid, triggering the investigation, spokesmen said.

The equipment brought from Brussels by Mrs. Trudeau is impressive: a Nikon F2 single lens reflex with built-in light meter; a motor drive; a 28mm wide-angle lens; a normal lens; an 80-200mm zoom; a Braun vario-computer auto-flash; a full series of filters and a camera bag itself worth about $300. At Canadian prices, the equipment would cost slightly more than $3,000.

"The king was here in September . . . the king offered Mrs. Trudeau a camera, which was delivered in Brussels by a representative of the king," a spokesman for the Prime Minister's office said.

Mrs. Trudeau displayed the equipment to news photographers aboard the government plane bringing the official party back from Europe, he added.

After two days in Canada, he said, Mrs. Trudeau left for Japan, carrying the new equipment. Reports from Japan that she was using new equipment alerted the Customs bureau and the RCMP.

On her return in November the prime minister's office was approached by both agencies and asked to explain how the equipment got into Canada.

Pair Committed to Trial In Armed Cardroom Theft

Two men charged with armed robbery at the Criterion Club cardroom, 562 Yates, were committed to stand trial in a higher court after a preliminary hearing Tuesday before Judge William Ostler in provincial court.

Charged in the $1,670 holdup on Sept. 5 are Henry Frank Guiney, 42, of 304 Oswego and Leo Arnold Baker, 24, of 885 Craigflower.

Baker is free on $5,000 bail but Guiney has been unable to raise $7,500 bail.

Both men have elected trial by judge and jury in B.C. Supreme Court.

Duncan IWA Recovers Back Wages

DUNCAN — The Duncan local of the International Woodworkers of America said today it has been successful in recovering $25,734.50 in wages owed to 87 former employees of Slegg Forest Products sawmill at Cowichan Bay.

The company, which closed in March, 1973, after financial problems in meeting payroll, never reopened but the labor department, acting on behalf of the IWA, seized money from a recent auction sale of sawmill equipment and land.

In addition to the $25,734.50 recovered for back wages, about $20,000 was also recovered for worker benefits such as pension plan payments, medical, health and welfare premiums, Workers' Compensation and Unemployment Insurance payments and some union dues.

Local president Fernie Viala said $20,000 of the back wages has been distributed to former employees but the union is trying to find 15 people who have cheques owing.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An impaired driver was sent to jail and a man who defrauded the Unemployment Insurance Commission was fined $540 in Victoria provincial court Tuesday.

Judge William Ostler sentenced Gene Kenneth Smith, 29, of Brentwood Bay, to 20 days in jail for impaired driving, and to another 20 days for driving while under suspension.

Smith pleaded guilty to both charges which were laid following an accident on Stelly's Crossroad at Brentwood Bay Monday night.

Prosecutor Clarence Vause noted Smith had been convicted of impaired driving less than three weeks ago, had been fined and suspended from driving for three months, and placed on six months probation.

Ostler said the recurrence of impaired driving in such a short span of time was "scandalous."

"Apparently the punishment set on the first occasion had no effect on you at all," the judge said, adding he would extend Smith's driving ban to one year.

William Lowe, 25, of 1254 Johnston, pleaded guilty to making nine false statements while receiving unemployment insurance benefits between January and May 1974.

Lowe had indicated he had no earnings during the period when in fact he had worked from Jan. 25 to March 3.

The accused received $1,046 in benefits to which he was not entitled, a VIC investigator said. The commission had made arrangements for restitution, he added.

Lowe's record includes thefts, driving infractions, and breaking and entering dating back to 1970.

A $5.25 investment in LSD turned into a $150 fine for Stephen Lawrence Knight, 18, of 1736 Newton, who pleaded guilty to possession of the restricted drug Dec. 14 on Yates.

Drug officers said they found three hits of LSD concealed in a book of matches Knight had tucked into his shorts. He told officers he had bought the drug for $1.75 a hit earlier in the evening.

A 53-year-old man received a one-day jail term and was placed on three years probation for cashing a $540 cheque which bounced.

Rodney Walter Stanley Wells, address not known, pleaded guilty before Judge Harold Alder to obtaining money by false pretences at the Ingraham Hotel July 19.

Police said Wells cashed a cheque drawn on an account jointly held with a business partner. The cheque was returned stamped "not sufficient funds" and "two signatures required."

Alder ordered Wells to repay the hotel.

In Judge Fred Green's traffic court, Norman Alcan Anderson, 30, of 51 High Street, was fined a total of $825, prohibited from driving for eight months and placed on six months probation with the condition he attend the impaired driver's course.

Anderson pleaded guilty to Impaired driving in Colwood Nov. 16 and was found guilty of failing to remain at the scene of an accident Oct. 19. Green set a $450 fine on the first, $375 on the second.

James David Bahr, 22, of La Ronge, Sask., was fined $75 for possession of marijuana.

Ostler, noting the drug had been bought with welfare money, ordered the fine paid immediately or a 14-day jail term in default would be imposed.

Bahr was also charged with possession of six counterfeit $50 bills and of uttering two of the bills at downtown Victoria stores last week.

He pleaded not guilty and was remanded to today for bail discussion.

$300 FINE FOR DRUG

Terrance Paul Weaver of Langford was fined $300 and placed on one year probation when he pleaded guilty in county court Monday to possession of MDA.

Weaver had been originally charged with possession of MDA for the purposes of trafficking. The crown, however, did not proceed with the charge after Weaver entered a guilty plea to the lesser offence.

Harassment Noted

COURTENAY — Surveying the need for a legal ombudsman here, a municipal council subcommittee reported that police harrassment of juveniles has been brought to its attention.

Subcommittee member Joyce Hicks said other matters brought to her group's attention include severence of unemployment benefits without notice, destruction of property by policemen with search warrants, and failure of police or courts to let juveniles see lawyers before court appearance.

MAN DIES IN SNOW

RCMP identified the man as Arthur Poulin, 27, of 389 Obed, and said the accident occurred on Poulin's brother's farm near Ranfurly, about 80 miles east of Edmonton.

Police said Poulin, who was born in the Ranfurly area, was visiting his family for the holidays when the accident occurred.

CONSUMERS FEARED

WINNIPEG (CP) — An official of Westfair Foods Ltd. strongly defended the grocery industry Tuesday against complaints by consumer groups, but predicted increasing consumer discontent in the future.

M. D. Booty, company vice-president and former head of the Canadian Grocery Distributers' Institute, said the industry has been among the most consumer-oriented and has not enjoyed unreasonably high profits.

"Despite the current climate of consumer frustration, it is fair to say that consumers would still rate us more innovative than department stores, more competitive than banks and fairer in our dealings with customers than automobile dealers," he said.

At the same time, however, Booty said the frequent contact between grocers and shoppers at a time of rising prices in general has made the industry "the whipping boy of inflation."

Booty expressed particular concern about a Manitoba government study into the possibility of establishing a chain of publicly-owned and operated food stores.

Such a chain heavily subsidized by general tax revenues could freeze out competition although consumer prices would rise markedly in the long run because of government inefficiency and bureaucracy, he said.

Desperate Man Crying for Help

the prairies

CALGARY (CP) — A 20-year-old man, arrested following a four-hour shooting incident Tuesday, was described by medical sources as "a desparate man crying out for help."

Dallas Wittman was taken to hospital for mental examination after a gunman fired about a dozen shots from a high-rise apartment. There were no injuries and police did not return the gunman's fire.

The man is suffering from brain damage and is considered to be retarded, he added.

Wittman's action was triggered by a gunfight here Dec. 20 which left a police detective and a gunman dead and six police officers wounded, he added.

The medical source said the publicity given the shoot-out gave Wittman the idea that he could draw attention to himself and his personal problems by recreating a similar incident.

Wittman surrendered to police after talking to Dr. Keith Pearce head of psychiatry at Foothills Hospital and the University of Calgary.

Dr. Pearce declined to discuss the incident, but credited police with avoiding another bloody confrontation.

"I was tremendously impressed with Insp. Ernie Reimer's actions and his cool, calm manner," said Pearce.

The incident was markedly different than the Dec. 20 shoot-out, which involved more than 200 police and an armored personnel carrier from Canadian Forces Base Calgary.

LIE TO GET $135 COSTS 9 MONTHS

EDMONTON (CP) — A man who pleaded guilty to lying under oath during a civil action hearing in small claims court has been sentenced to nine months in jail for perjury.

Mr. Justice G. H. Allen said in passing sentence on Adrian Sites, 35, of Edmonton that perjury is committed "far too frequently."

Allen decided that a $500 fine and six-month probation period earlier imposed on sites was inadequate.

Sites pleaded guilty to lying under oath in an action involving claims for two separate automobile accidents in an attempt to collect $135.

Charges of attempting to fabricate evidence and attempted fraud were also laid against Sites but were not proceeded with, according to the Crown attorney's office.

Grain Report By June: Prober

SASKATOON (CP) — Mr. Justice E. D. Bayda of Queen's Bench Court in Saskatchewan, who is investigating labor-management relations at West Coast grain terminals, hopes to have his report completed by June.

He plans to travel to Vancouver within the next two weeks to meet management representatives and has already met with groups of employees at the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, Alberta Wheat Pool and Burrard Terminals.

He intends to hold public hearings "but I can't say where or when at this time."

DOCTORS VOTE

REGINA (CP) — Members of the Saskatchewan Medical Association are voting on a mediator's proposal for a settlement in their dispute with the provincial government over fee schedules.

Association Executive Secretary, Dr. E. H. Baergen, said Tuesday results of the vote will likely be known sometime next week.

A government negotiator, G. C. Patchett, executive director of the Medical Care Insurance Commission, said the government is "prepared to look very favorably" at the proposal.

The government and medical representatives have been negotiating for more than a year for a contract and fee schedule for doctors' services under the provincial medical care insurance plan.

Man, 63, Jailed for Morals

REGINA (CP) — A 63-year-old Regina-area farmer was sentenced Tuesday to 30 days in jail after being convicted of soliciting in Regina.

"If ladies of the night should be punished, then those who entice them should receive equal punishment," Judge J. J. Flynn said in passing sentence.

The court heard evidence that the man called a 20-year-old woman over to his car and that negotiations broke down over the price.

After the farmer said he is married, with children aged 29 and 24, Judge Flynn said "and this girl was younger than your own children; does you wife know you're in court?"

After the man said no, the judge noted that "she's going to wonder where you are for the next 30 days."

CITY ESCAPES UNSCATHED

Victoria escaped virtually unscathed from overnight snow, high winds, phone and power failures that hit other parts of Vancouver Island west of Sooke and north of the Malahat.

Between three and four inches of new snow was reported on the Malahat, creating the worst driving conditions of the season while highway maintenance crews plowed, salted and sanded the pavement.

But further north conditions became steadily worse late Tuesday and early this morning, some parts of Duncan getting a foot of snow and a total 11 inches reported at Cassidy airport just south of Nanaimo.

Meanwhile, Jordan River and Port Renfrew were without electric power and telephone connections to Port Renfrew were reported out by the RCMP at Sooke.

U.S. Naval Force: Mideast or Vietnam?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A powerful U.S. navy carrier fleet sailed toward the Indian Ocean today amid intense speculation as to its ultimate destination.

Rumblings persisted over State Secretary Henry Kissinger's interpreted warning of possible U.S. military action in the Persian Gulf. At the same time there is increasing concern here over the Vietnamese situation.

There were reports that senior defence officials pondered in recent days whether to delay the Enterprise's entrance into the Indian Ocean because its appearance there now might agitate Arab and other countries already aroused by Kissinger's veiled remarks about possible U.S. military action.

The six-ship study mission, led by the 85,000-ton nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise, was expected to enter the Indian Ocean within a few days after a voyage from Subic Bay in the Philippines.

Pentagon spokesman William Beecher said Tuesday the group is on an operational mission, but denied reports it is bound for waters off South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, waves of South Vietnamese planes attacked the Viet Cong headquarters at Loc Ninh and nearby Communist areas in retaliation for the loss of the capital of Phuoc Long province, the Saigon command announced today.

Fighter-bombers raided troop concentrations, anti-aircraft positions, ammunition dumps and supply centres in the Communist zones below the Cambodian border north of Saigon Tuesday night and today, and pilots reported ammunition explosions that sent smoke 3,000 feet into the air, a command spokesman said.

Saigon today also appealed to the United States to help turn back the Communist offensive.

"We need assistance, especially from the American people," acting Foreign Minister Ngo Khac Tinh said.

"The government and people of Vietnam call on the United States government to support this struggle."

Tinh, in comments at a special government briefing, accused Communist nations of "helping North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to invade South Vietnam."

"The Vietnamese people cannot sit here with our hands tied after fighting 20 years for the cause of freedom," he said.

The loss of Phuoc Long province north of Saigon, the biggest government defeat since U.S. troops pulled out of South Vietnam two years ago, extended Communist territory to within 35 miles of the capital.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials said privately the decision of Congress to slash Indochina military aid is partly to blame for the losses during the three-week-old Communist offensive.

In Washington, a White House spokesman said President Ford has been watching the stepped-up fighting with concern but would "live up to the law" barring U.S. military action in Indochina.

Military officers in Saigon said an estimated 2,000 troops and 40,000 civilians are missing in Phuoc Long. Many of the missing are believed to be dead or captured, they added.

CITY STRIKE TALKS VITAL

A critical mediation meeting was under way today in an attempt to avert a strike of 280 city outside workers.

Mediation officer Clark Gilmour was meeting representatives of City Hall and Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees. The union has served strike notice but cannot strike until Gilmour withdraws as mediator.

The municipal employers co-ordinating committee, meanwhile, met this morning and issued a public statement at noon which said in part:

"Some plain words must be said. Massive pay raises only speed inflation and are ultimately self-defeating. An economic recession is no time to seek major gains.

"In the past five years, salaries and benefits paid by our local governments have risen by more than 60 per cent while the Canadian consumer price index rose by 34 per cent. Current municipal salaries are well in advance of what is paid by many for comparable work."

The statement, couched in generalities, did not say if the employers are prepared to increase the rejected 15.75 per cent wage offer or what they will do if a single strike occurs.

Capital Regional District board chairman Jim Campbell declined to say whether or not the committee has decided to institute a general lockout in the event of a single strike.

"Well, we don't want to threaten anyone," he said after this morning's meeting. "We are prepared to respond to situations if we have to."

It was disclosed three weeks ago that such a move had been discussed by the committee, comprised of representatives of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Sidney, the regional district and Greater Victoria school board, but no decision had been made at that time.

Campbell, who said he was speaking personally, expressed disappointment at the decision by members of CUPE Local 388, representing 200 office and technical employees at City Hall, to reject a 15.75 per cent wage increase for this year and adjustments for lower-paid classifications as high as 34 per cent.

The union said the offer was not accepted because it did not contain a cost of living clause.

"I'm really concerned that it appears clear to me that the union hierarchy is directing individual locals," said Campbell, who acknowledged that Local 388 had recommended members accept the pay offer.

"In my personal view that is the problem. I think the advice is incredibly bad at this stage of the game and in these times."

Watergate Prisoners To Go Free

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Wednesday reduced the sentences of three major Watergate figures — John W. Dean III, Jeb Stuart Magruder and Herbert Kalmbach — to time already served and set the stage for their immediate release from prison.

Sirica, the judge who first broke open the scandal and presided over the recent Watergate cover-up trial, gave no reason for reducing the sentences of the three defendants.

Sirica said in his brief commutation orders that "on consideration of the defendant's motion for reduction of sentence . . . it is ordered that the unexecuted and or remaining portion of the sentence . . . is reduced to time already served."

A spokesman for the federal court said he believed the three men would be released immediately. The three were all in Ft. Holabird, Md., where they were taken to testify at the cover-up trial and had not been returned to prison where they had been serving time.

President Ford had no prior knowledge of the release and would make no comment, a White House spokesman said.

Sirica handed down three short orders amending his sentences in each of the three cases.

According to the orders, Dean filed his reduction of sentence motion Dec. 2, Magruder filed his on Sept. 18 and Kalmbach's was filed Oct. 9.

Gas Tax Wires Flying

Premier Barrett fired off another telegram to Ottawa Tuesday repeating his request for immediate talks on natural gas taxation despite a negative response earlier in the day.

At the same time Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told reporters B.C. has not ruled out the possibility of a court battle over resource taxation.

Acting Prime Minister C. M. Drury replied to Barrett's original request for a meeting with federal cabinet ministers, sent out Monday, by suggesting that any uncertainties concerning new federal taxation proposals "have been explained."

Barrett had said in his original telegram that "proposals, ambiguities and uncertainties at the present time are having serious impact upon natural gas development in B.C."

Drury replied that if there are urgent problems in drilling, the federal government would hope B.C. could make arrangements "as they have been made in Alberta."

Essentially Drury was suggesting that Barrett follow the lead of Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed in compensating gas companies for the increased taxes they would be forced to pay under the federal proposal.

In B.C. such a move would likely mean increasing the price the B.C. Petroleum Corporation pays to producers for gas since the BCPC now pays 22 cents per thousand cubic feet for the gas it buys and sells it for an average of 82 cents thus accruing a large profit.

By insisting that taxes be based on the fair market value of gas, Ottawa is saying it will tax companies on a value of gas higher than the 22 cents it is paid by the BCPC.

But Barrett said the B.C. government has no intention of backing down on its marketing scheme, worked out earlier in the year with federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, and he wired Drury back again seeking a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau, Macdonald and Finance Minister John Turner.

Barrett said drilling companies must know the outcome of the dispute within 10 days if this winter's drilling program, already delayed, is to be salvaged at all.

He suggested Jan. 10 as a possible day for talks in Ottawa.

Earlier in the day Barrett said his government is prepared to suggest some "posi-

U.K. Pilots Rip Hijack Gamble

Times News Services

LONDON — The British Airline Pilots' Association today condemned the drawn-out negotiations and fake flight to France used to thwart Britain's first internal hijack as a dangerous gamble with the lives of crew members.

The nine-hour drama ended Tuesday night with the Capture at Stansted, 34 miles northeast of London, of the hijacker who used a toy pistol and a dummy grenade to take over a BAC111 jet with its five crew members, extort $235,000 and demand a flight to France.

The only casualty was a steward who was bitten by a police dog.

The hijacker was to appear in court today. Police did not announce his identity but said he was an unemployed 27-year-old native of Iran living in England.

It was the first hijacking ever of a domestic British flight. The man commandeered the British Airways BAC111 as it was preparing to land at Heathrow Airport here after a flight from Manchester.

He held stewardess Barbara Brindley at gunpoint and demanded: "Tell the captain I would like to go to Paris. I have nothing to live for and we must go there."

Police said later the gun was a realistic-looking toy and the canister contained no bomb.

When the plane landed at Heathrow, the hijacker allowed the 46 passengers to get off and demanded the money and a parachute. Troops and police ringed the plane.

The hijacker held the crew for seven hours while the pilot, seemingly angry, tried to talk security officials in the control tower into producing the ransom. He said the man was "obviously deranged" and was threatening to shoot the crew and blow up the plane.

Finally, officials handed over a parachute and the ransom.

But French authorities refused to allow the plane to land in France. Security chiefs decided to have it fly over England for more than an hour, then land at Stansted, an airport for charter craft north of London, where they would try to make the hijacker believe he was in France.

Two plane loads of troops and police were rushed to Stansted, and all signs and billboards there were covered, but the ruse did not work.

Police said the hijacker realized he was not in France and demanded a car to take him to Dover.

USC Boxcar Still Not Full

People in Great Victoria have contributed $20,000 to the local Unitarian Services Committee campaign — and the goal of a boxcar-load of milk for children in Bangladesh is almost met.

Christmas has passed. But gifts are still in fashion. Hunger in Bangladesh hasn't passed with the holiday season.

It will cost $22,785 to buy, insure and ship the 36,000-pound carload of powdered milk. That's the target Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the USC, hoped for when she launched the Greater Victoria campaign six weeks ago.

It was optimistic. The most successful previous annual campaign produced $16,641.83 in 1971.

But it was truly needed, she said.

Just $2,800 to go.

What sort of people have brought the campaign so close to success? Beth, Jennifer and Cathy sent their $2 with a note explaining they collected it Christmas carolling.

One family sent $10 with word they had decided to contribute instead of going out to dinner.

Many people said they were giving to the USC in place of sending Christmas cards.

The one question remaining? Will the rest of us sit around, counting on the other person to get that boxcar rolling?

Contributions to the Unitarian Services Committee can be mailed in care of the Vic-

6,600 Oilmen Out

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (UPI) — An estimated 6,600 Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union members defied their national leaders and struck Gulf and Texaco oil refineries at one minute past midnight today, setting up picket lines and shutting down the sprawling facilities.

"We are going on the old union philosophy of no contract, no work," said Floyd Forse, chairman of the Texaco main plant group, OCAW local 4-23.

The walkout came despite announcement by OCAW president A. F. Grospiron in Denver that negotiations with the petroleum industry would continue today. Contracts expired at midnight Tuesday, but the union instructed its 60,000 members at oil refineries across the nation to remain on their jobs.

SEARCH LAUNCHED FOR MISSING MAN

A full-scale search on Salt Spring Island was launched by the RCMP today for a man who apparently wandered, naked, into the bushland Tuesday afternoon.

An RCMP spokesman said two police dogs were called in and an aerial search carried out by the RCMP helicopter, based at Pat Bay airport.

He said the man, known only as Joe, lived in the Ganges area, having no fixed address, wandering from place to place.

He is believed to be 22.

He left the home of a friend, Glen McGee, about 2:30 p.m., McGee following him about half an hour later.

Customs Probed Gift to Margaret

OTTAWA (UPI) — A scrape with the RCMP and Customs officials has convinced Prime Minister Trudeau that he and his family have to begin looking gift horses in the mouth.

Nudged by a recent incident in which Customs and police officials investigated a $3,000 gift of photographic equipment from King Hussein of Jordan to Trudeau's wife Margaret, the prime minister has begun preparing guidelines on gift acceptance which may be made public by March, a spokesman for his office said.

During Hussein's visit to Canada last September, Mrs. Trudeau told him she was studying photography. When he learned she did not have her own equipment, he promised to give her a camera.

It subsequently entered Canada twice without import duty being paid, triggering the investigation, spokesmen said.

The equipment brought from Brussels by Mrs. Trudeau is impressive: a Nikon F2 single lens reflex with built-in light meter; a motor drive; a 28mm wide-angle lens; a normal lens; an 80-200mm zoom; a Braun vario-computer auto-flash; a full series of filters and a camera bag itself worth about $300. At Canadian prices, the equipment would cost slightly more than $3,000.

"The king was here in September . . . the king offered Mrs. Trudeau a camera, which was delivered in Brussels by a representative of the king," a spokesman for the Prime Minister's office said.

Mrs. Trudeau displayed the equipment to news photographers aboard the government plane bringing the official party back from Europe, he added.

After two days in Canada, he said, Mrs. Trudeau left for Japan, carrying the new equipment. Reports from Japan that she was using new equipment alerted the Customs bureau and the RCMP.

On her return in November the prime minister's office was approached by both agencies and asked to explain how the equipment got into Canada.
